KENNETH KING FOUNDATION

A LETTER FROM THE BOARD CHAIR & PRESIDENT

Dear Friends of the Kenneth King Foundation:

Enclosed please find the 2015 Kenneth King Foundation Annual Report.

In 2015, the Kenneth King Foundation made $487,700 in grants to Colorado-based nonprofit organizations. Most of our funding was geared towards creating meaningful employment and entrepreneurship opportunities for Colorado's at-risk. We continued to fund organizations that deliver basic human needs to those who need it most and to a lesser degree, supported Colorado's arts and culture organizations.

Our second year funding jobs created through entrepreneurship programs continued with investments in organizations such as the Rocky Mountain Microfinance Center, ACCION, Emily Griffith Technical College and Mi Casa Resource Center. We will continue to fund in areas such as this in 2016.

Colorado is ranked the 2nd most highly educated state¹, is considered the top state for labor supply² and Denver is considered the 3rd easiest city in the nation to find a job³. Skilled workers continue to move to Denver, purchasing homes and second homes and securing high-paying jobs. All of these economic indicators are good news for some but not all of us.

With a lower than national average unemployment rate of 3.4%⁴, Denver's booming economy is increasing the cost of living at a faster pace than the national rate of inflation, +13.6 percent since 2009⁵. Personal expenses such as rent, groceries, energy and fuel are rising faster than wages, making it difficult for non-skilled workers to keep up with our state's cost of living. And, many of the new jobs created in Colorado are at the lower end of the pay spectrum, or have been scaled back to part time, resulting in difficulties making ends meet. Given 25% of the Denver Metro Area's homeless reported having received money from working in the last month⁶, improving access to more meaningful employment and entrepreneurship has a meaningful impact on not only improving standard of living, but securing permanent housing for the homeless.

The nonprofit organizations we serve continue to respond to the needs of Colorado's at-risk population, identifying and addressing inequities among the uneducated and under-employed population, who require a multitude of creative solutions ranging from emergency services to job training. As Kenneth King recognized when he established his Foundation in 1990, employment and removing the barriers to employment continue to be promising permanent pathways out of poverty.

A LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

In 2016, the Foundation continues to expand its impact investing program. We see great potential in leveraging our grantmaking dollars to strengthen microloan programs, social enterprises and entrepreneurship programs across urban and rural Colorado. We encourage organizations interested in exploring impact investing to contact us, either by phone, 303-832-3200 or email, grants@kennethkingfoundation.org.

We continue to be inspired and awestruck by the perseverance, flexibility and creativity of Colorado's nonprofit sector. Thank you for allowing us this opportunity to serve those who need it most.

With Gratitude,

Tim Welker
Board Chair
