To whom it may concern:

Alicia Charboneau was a student in my 16 week Child Development class at Macomb Community College during the winter, 2012 semester.

Alicia was a conscientious, responsible student who took her classwork seriously. I always looked forward to reading her papers that not only reflected a strong knowledge of the topics but also an intuitive understanding of young children. She excelled on her tests and class projects and was an active participant in class discussions.

During the semester Alicia was also a new mother, worked at a home daycare and took classes at our college, all of which reflected her strong work ethic.

I highly recommend Alicia for studies in Early Childhood and/or elementary education. She would definitely be an asset to any program.
