

Leading with Lean Academy

Developing your people for the future

The Leading with Lean Academy

The Leading with Lean Academy is aimed at furthering our mission of:

"Making the world of work a better place for People."

By enrolling in one of our courses, you're taking the first step in truly understanding what Lean Leadership is all about.

All of our courses are based upon the training used across multiple organisations, globally, and has been trained to tens of thousands of people in every function of the organisation.

From the Team Leader to the CEO, the Manufacturing Engineer to the HR Advisor, and from Lean Deployment Leader to Head of Business Transformation, completing one of our courses will provide you with the skills that will support you to become the Leader that you want to be.

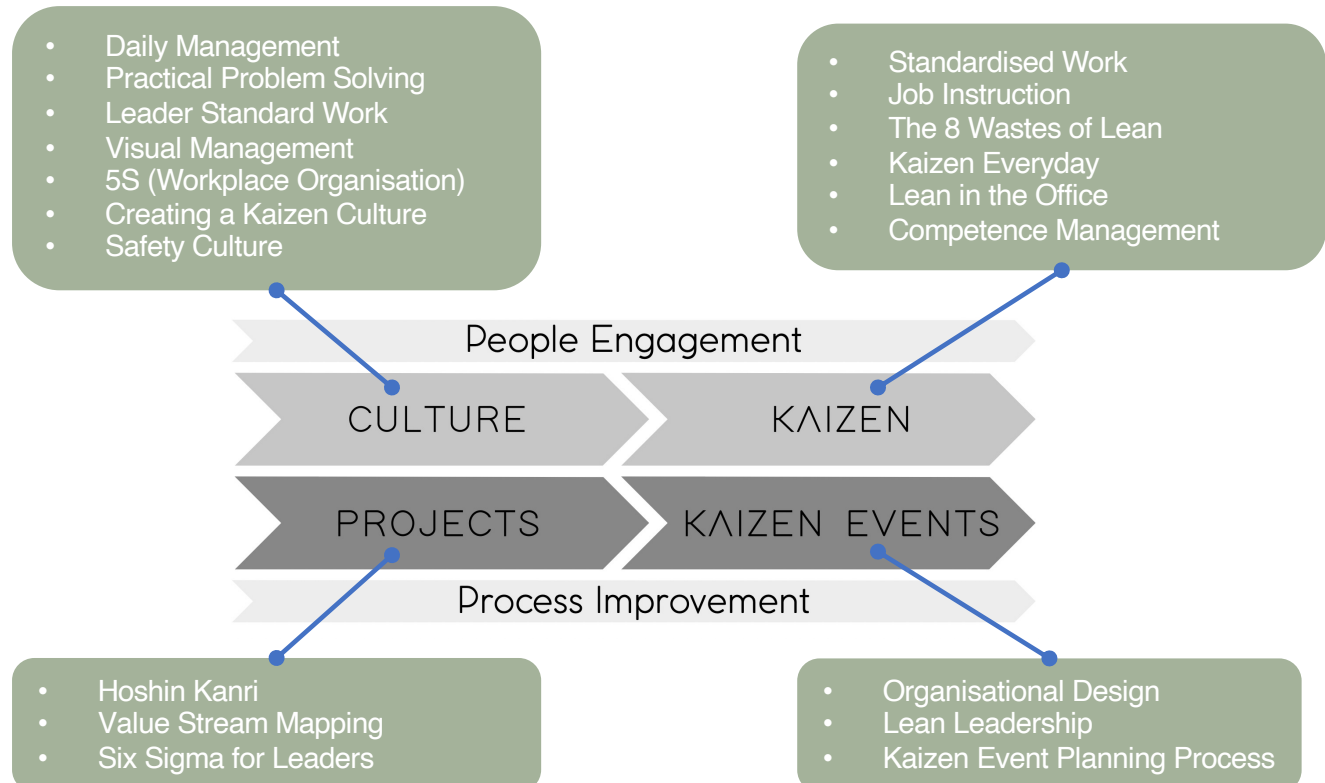

As we always say, it's about:

"Changing how you Lead, not who you are."

Our Curriculum

Our integrated Lean Leadership curriculum is based upon the Simplicity Model, a proven approach to defeating the complexity in your organisation and delivering the excellence that you strive for. The online, user paced, modules provide a high quality and flexible way of developing your people's Lean Leadership skills.

How we help you to develop your people

One of the biggest challenges for any organisation's Lean Transformation, is building the competence of its people. Classroom training is expensive, whether done in-house or with external providers, and once attended, cannot easily be repeated.

The Leading with Lean Academy provides your organisation with the ability to develop individualised, self-paced, training programs. We can work with you to design hybrid courses, using the online modules for flexibility and significantly reduced costs, combined with focussed live virtual and classroom coaching and training to consolidate learning.

Compare the traditional approach to Lean Training with the Leading with Lean way:

Traditional approach

- Classes of 10-20 people, with 1-2 instructors.
- 'One-time' training, without a real gauge of individual learning.
- Significant time 'out-of-office' at one go (typically 2-4 Days).
- Costs of upward of £250 per day per attendee for in-house training, significantly more for externally led training.
- Time-consuming, can take multiple years to fully train all staff.

The Leading with Lean way

- Classes of 1, self-paced online courses.
- Repeatable training, with assessment to gauge individual learning.
- Modular training allows management of 'out-of-office' time.
- Costs as low as £50 per equivalent day's training per attendee, with unlimited revisits to the training for reinforcement and revision.
- The ability to run targeted virtual & in-person sessions for learning consolidation.
- Can be rapidly deployed across all employees.

Using the Leading with Lean online Academy provides your organisation with the opportunity to focus your improvement teams on improvement activity instead of training classes.

As your Lean Learning Partner, we can provide your team members with the learning that they need to contribute to the improvement and be active members of improvement activities.

Your culture change starts with developing your peoples' Lean Leadership skills.

Your online instructor

Philip is the founder and Managing Director of Leading with Lean, a Consultancy Service which provides companies with a People-centred approach to Business Transformation.

He is a transformational leader with over 30 years of experience, is a respected author, and has held several executive leadership positions, including Senior Vice President of Operational Excellence at GKN Aerospace, Vice President of Continuous Improvement & Intelligent Automation at Travelport, and Head of Continuous Improvement for Philips.

Philip is dedicated to sharing his knowledge and insight into Lean transformation and leading Lean and has personally recorded all of the Leading with Lean Training Modules.

How the Online Training Modules work

Each module takes a total of between 2-3 Hours of study time, which is self-paced and, due to its 'bite-size' design, can be undertaken in multiple sessions of as little as 10 minutes at a time.

The training is on-demand and may be accessed on a desktop or mobile device. Each online course module comprises of:

- Instructor-led videos in spoken native English, utilising visual management to convey the key learning points.
- Auto-generated subtitles, available in over 60 languages, providing a learning support for second-speakers of English.
- Downloadable, high-quality slides.
- A final assessment to consolidate the learning.
- A digital certification of completion.
- The option to write comments and ask questions in the appropriate area of the course, which the Academy team will respond to.
