Regulator Adjustment

The Survivor pistol with a barrel from 8" to 12" will work properly as far as feeding, cycling and ejecting with the regulator open from 10 to 14 clicks. Shorter barrels generally need one or two more clicks open (clockwise) and longer barrels generally work well with one or two clicks less open (counter clockwise).

Keep in mind that each gun is different as you work out the best setting for your gun.

As the gun breaks in, the regulator adjustment may change some. Generally, you may find one click less will be needed for good operation and feeding.
