

Skunks

Skunks are the largest carrier of rabies in North America. Skunks can be a problem if you feed your pets outdoors. Aside from leaving a foul odor around, they also love digging holes under your buildings, and living under them. Skunks also dig little holes all over lawns in search of worms. Skunks can also live in window wells, in walls and garages. We do not relocate skunks, due to the fact that it is illegal, and the skunk could be rabid. Skunks will generally give a warning before they spray, by stamping their feet, and then turning around and raising their tail if the threat persists. Problem skunks should be removed immediately.
