

Remember It Well ©2013 Anthony William Forrest

The leaves seem so much wetter
Than they were last year
And the sidewalks, just aren't as friendly
Than when I first came here

The box I live in Ain't what it used to be
The cardboard has gone thin
And artwork disappeared

Hey ho, remember it well
Hey ho, the gangs all here
Hey ho, remember it, remember it,
remember it so well

The people come and go
They look but do not touch
Nice to see a smiling face
A city can be tough

The doorways are all taken
A wind can blow through steel
Its the endless battle of
A nature to be free

Hey ho, remember it well
Hey ho, the gangs all here
Hey ho, remember it, remember it,
remember it so well

The children turn and stare
Wondering what I am
It hurts to think of how
I was once just like them

The morning sun will rise
With its warmth and grace
And rains that tearful friend
Planting kisses on my face

Reaching out and stretching far Clouds are easy to feel
But the sun and moon's a story
Of a life I've dreamed

Hey ho, remember it well
Hey ho, the gangs all here
Hey ho, remember it, remember it,

remember it so well

So sitting back in a armchair
A neighbour just threw out
I look up at the world
As it passes by my house

Hey ho, remember it well
Hey ho, the gangs all here
Hey ho, remember it, remember it,
remember it so well

Hey ho, remember it well
Hey ho, remember it, remember it,
remember it so well
