INFORMED CONSENT ADDENDUM FOR TELETHERAPY

This form is to be used in conjunction with, but does not replace, the Informed Consent document that is required of all clients prior to starting therapy services.

What is Teletherapy?

Teletherapy includes the practice of diagnosis, treatment, education, goal setting, accountability, referral to resources, problem solving, skills training, and help with decision making through the use of the internet-based videoconferencing. Teletherapy may include psychological health care delivery, consultation, coaching, and/or counseling. Teletherapy will occur primarily through interactive audio, video, and telephone communications.

Risks of Teletherapy

1. Technological failure, such as unclear video, loss of sound, poor connection, or loss of connection.
2. Nonverbal cues are less readily available to both the therapist and the client.

Benefits of Teletherapy

1. Fewer limitations by geographical location.
2. Reduction of travel to a physical office, which includes decrease of travel time.
3. Participation in therapy from your own home or the environment of your choosing.

Teletherapy by Mary Stein-Webber may occur only with current residents of California. The current laws that protect privacy and confidentiality also apply to teletherapy. Any exceptions to confidentiality are described in the Informed Consent document.

All existing laws regarding client access to mental health information and copies of mental health records apply.

No permanent video or voice recordings are kept from teletherapy. Clients may not record or store videoconference sessions or face-to-face sessions.

Expectations of client during each session

1. Minimum bandwidth connection of 384 kb or higher.
2. Minimum resolution of 640x360 at 30 frames per second.
3. Operational web camera.

4. Proper lighting and seating to ensure a clear image of each party's face.
5. Dress and environment appropriate to an in-office visit.
6. Only agreed upon participants will be present. The presence of any individuals unapproved by both parties or not part of the treatment plan will be cause for termination of the session.
7. Valid ID must be presented by the client during the initial consultation. In addition, a copy must be provided by the client for the medical file.
8. The client must disclose the physical address of their location at the start of each session. Unknown locations will be cause for termination of the session.
9. The client shall also provide a phone number where they can be reached in the event of service disruption.

Teletherapy may not be the most effective form of treatment for certain individuals or presenting problems. If it is believed the client would benefit from another form of service (e.g. face-to-face sessions) or another provider, an appropriate referral will be made. If it would be beneficial for occasional face-to-face sessions with Mary Stein-Webber, LMFT, this will be discussed as part of the treatment plan. The client has the right to refuse such a recommendation. Such action may result in a referral to another provider. All referrals will adhere to the California State Board of Behavioral Science Code of Ethics for Licensed Marriage and Family Therapists and the American Association for Marriage and Family Therapy Code of Ethics.

Emergency protocol

Client is to provide the name and contact information for an additional person in case of emergency. In addition, in the event of a medical or mental crisis event, Mary Stein-Webber will contact the client's local emergency services. The contact information for the client's nearest hospital will be on record in the event an admission is necessary to address a client emergency. The information provided to emergency services will include the nature of the crisis and immediate needs of the client.

Response to technical difficulties

Should technical difficulties cause session disruption, Mary Stein-Webber will contact the client via preferred telephone contact. If the technical difficulties can be resolved quickly, the session will resume and the client will not experience a shortened session length. If the technical issues cannot be resolved in a timely manner, the session will be rescheduled for a time when functionality is restored. The client will be contacted by telephone to develop a plan for continuation of the session.
