Overview

It began on Saturday, August 8, 2015, the first House Head Summerfest (HHSF) produced by House of Black, at the Oskar Schindler Performing Arts Center (OSPAC) in West Orange, New Jersey. It was the start of a three-year journey, which culminated on August 13, 2017, with the start of a new tradition with the introduction of GOSPEL Summerfest (GSF).

House of Black is the brainchild production company of budding empresario, Julie Black-Peart, known to the entertainment industry as Julie Black. She is a former booking agent who has been producing events, from small comedy and jazz concerts in her backyard to the Summerfest events at OSPAC. While naysayers tried to convince Julie there was no room for another house music event, she forged on to see the Summerfest grow annually, from 1,500 patrons in year one, to approximately 3,500 in 2017. House Head Summerfest earned legitimacy as a go to event by the New York Times Thing to Do Calendar in 2016, and has been touted as “a classy event”, compared to the others. GOSPEL Summerfest is in the development phase. In 2017 it was met with positive responses from both patrons and performers and has expected growth for 2018 and beyond.

Armed with a love for house music and living in the suburb of West Orange, NJ, Julie’s vision was to bring this music genre to the staunch lovers of house - house heads, in Essex County. Knowing the other New Jersey house music festivals were well established events, sponsored by their respective towns and big brand names, Julie was determined to bring an event to her hometown, and make it different from the rest. With no sponsors, she did it on her own; creating an event for people like her, mature adults, who in years past, spent until the wee morning hours at clubs like Paradise Garage, The Shelter, Club 88, Zanzibar and a host of others. Most importantly, without a budget, Julie took a leap by asking every host, artists, DJ, security and helping hand if they would donate their time; and they did, until 2017, when she chose to bring in some non-local talent to enhance HHSF and the GSF.

To compete, she made the Summerfest a free event that was a cut above. She chose a venue with serene surroundings and actual bathrooms. “This is not a port-a-potty event,” she says. She provided a variety of food and vendors; a place where people could dance and reminisce to the music they love. Most important she enlisted talent the people would want to see and hear, all with an incentive to give something back. So, the mission of OSPAC, a non-profit organization, became hers: To create an environment where Essex County artists of all socio-economic and cultural origins may explore, create and communicate their craft in a supportive and nurturing environment; to present works of artistic expression by local, regional and visiting artists in an effort to foster the communications of ideas and perspectives; and to provide educational experiences to students of all ages with a special emphasis on programming for children of diverse cultures in low socioeconomic backgrounds.

All that remains is to make the Summerfest events bigger and better from this day forward. Here is where House of Black is seeking your help.

We look forward to discussing the possibilities.

Goals

1. Gain sponsorships for House Head Summerfest (this year incorporating the theme, GOSPEL of HOUSE), from businesses that believe in the vision of House of Black - supporting the mission of OSPAC. Sponsors are sought for:
 - a 40 x 60 frame tent, to shield patrons from the elements and the blazing summer sun. The tent shall be adorned with the sponsor's signage.
 - talent procurement. A successful event showcases talent the public wants to hear and see. This includes covering guarantees, round trip travel expenses, hotel accommodations and local ground transportation.
 - a portable dance floor, to provide increased area for self-expression.
 - Food, to provide green room refreshments to the DJs and performing artists.
 - advertising their own business through our events.
2. Develop the House of Black House Head Summerfest GOSPEL of HOUSE event and brand to a higher end event, capable of drawing name artists and DJs.
3. Upgrade OSPAC's sound system and lighting board to state-of-the art, to optimize productions in support of the OSPAC mission.

House Head Summerfest

THIS YEAR: August 11, 2018. Free from 12-2PM, $5 thereafter & requesting donations

The theme this year is the Gospel of House Music, a subgenre of house music that has always been there, now breaking new ground. In recent years, we have seen traditional and contemporary gospel music kicked up a notch to attract a wider, more radio-friendly audience. The same is happening for house music; and we are celebrating it at HHSF 2018.

The roster of talent as of early June:

- HHSF Official Host DJ Jose Burgos: Jose has been a DJ at each event. So well liked, that he was made the official HHSF DJ in 2017. Jose has just under 5k Facebook friends.
- DJ Ameer Brooks: Seventeen-year-old DJ phenom with just under 5k Facebook friends.
- Performing live, George Sykes III and the New Truth featuring SuSu Bobien. George is a talented music producer who has written and produced songs for many successful artists. SuSu Bobien is Georges latest protege, releasing her latest single "Let's Have Some Church" on June 7 this year.
- Special Guest Host: Tony "Tune" Herbert, President/CEO at New York Multi-Cultural Restaurant & Nightlife Chamber of Commerce Corp. Former host of Dance Trax USA.
- More DJs and performing artists are slated for addition to the bill.
