It Started With a Dream...

As a boy, Martin Wolf loved to spend time on his family farm tending to chickens and farm animals, planting seeds, gardening, adventuring through the woods learning about forestry and all of God's splendor. He dreamed of sharing this with others. Now, years later, Martin, his family and friends would like to share his dream by exploring God's outdoor classroom with our next generations.

Our goal is to share these same hands-on agri-experience where kids (grades 3-6) can learn to explore, grow, build and problem solve. Kids will be encouraged to "do" with their hands, head and heart in d in the process, discover how to be good stewards in life and of the land.

What to Expect

Kids can expect to have fun and get dirty while exploring trees, natural aquifers, learning about plant life, interacting with a variety of farm animals, getting creative in the woodworking shop and being imaginative through art, crafts and music.

Goals

A Place to Belong

- To provide a setting for youth to feel safe, accepted and have a sense of belonging.
- To create diverse learning opportunities where the values of respect for faith, people, animals, plants and the environment are developed and strengthened.
- To allow young people opportunities to discover and develop their strengths.
