

Ryan Falconer

Transport Consulting Leader for Arup
in Canada

Ryan Falconer is a Certified Transport Planner and presently the Transport Consulting Leader for Arup in Canada. His professional experience includes transport planning and land-use projects across Australia, New Zealand, China, North America and Canada.

Ryan is passionate about resilient cities of the future and sustainable transport. As a published author and thought leader, he has been active in the global discussions and industry publications. This year, Ryan joined the future mobility panel at the Smart Cities in Focus conference in China, presented at the Automated Vehicles Symposium in USA and NXT City Symposium in Canada, to name a few. Also, has written a thought piece on mobility-as-a-service for AQTr Magazine (Association Québécoise des transports). The body of his work includes more than 30 authored or co-authored technical papers and publications. In addition, Ryan provided the peer review to the UN-Habitat Global Report on Human Settlements (2012) and the WHO Health Co-Benefits of Climate Change Mitigation – Transport Sector Report (2013).