West Texas well represented in 2A

While much of the state of Texas is growing within the Urban Triangle corridor -- Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston, San Antonio -- one part of the state that isn't is West Texas.

In fact, quite a few places in the region are shrinking. There are 83 schools who will play in the smallest 11-man football classification that are located west of Interstate 35 -- 29 of those schools will be 2A-Division I, and the other 48 will be 2A-DII.

The first six districts in 2A-DI could easily be made up of schools located west of I-35, while the first eight districts could have all but one school located west of the interstate -- Tioga would be the exception as a member of District 8-2A-DII. Three members of the projected 14-2A-DII alignment -- D'Hanis, La Pryor and Rocksprings -- are also located west of I-35.

Another interesting development in 2A football will be the guarantee of a new state champion in 2A-DI. That's because the 2017 champion of that division, Mart, will move down to Division II.

Interestingly enough, 2A-DII runner-up Tenaha is moving up to Division I as well. A slew of 3A schools are moving down to 2A as well, and some of these schools are located inside the Urban Triangle or east of I-45.

In East Texas, Beckville, Garrison and Harleton are making the move down to 2A. Central Texas schools Bruceville-Eddy, Hearne and Jewett Leon are moving down from 3A as is Wallis Brazos, which is located on the Austin-Fort Bend County line just west of Houston.
