This seems spot on. I think he's right that Houston will get an added district which means we likely will have 8 or less teams in ours:

Bridgeland
Cy-Fair
Cy-Lakes
Cy-Park
Cy-Ranch
Cy-Springs
Cy-Woods
Langham Creek

I'd prefer "new" teams but this makes a lot of sense. #go  <https://t.co/6PGn3tbHCo>

TXHSFB EXPERT'S THOUGHTS ON REALIGNMENT

TWEETS FROM THE OLD COACH'S MATT DIGGS

Plano East will play LD Bell, Lake Highlands and Sachse in non-district. Plano East then may get to play Sachse in the playoffs as well. #txhsfb @TheOldCoach

Given that Skyline and Duncanville are likely to be your D1 teams in 8-6A, you could see a theoretical DeSoto vs. Duncanville first round playoff game. #txhsfb @TheOldCoach

Sachse vs. Rowlett could take on added meaning this year as the loser of that game will likely have to play Allen in the first round of the playoffs. #txhsfb @TheOldCoach

Where the UIL rewards Wylie with Garland ISD, Wylie East will get to go to John Tyler, Sherman and Texas High in DISTRICT play. Welcome to the metroplex, Texas High and John Tyler!

With the new split divisions in 5A, we're all expecting some interesting pairings, and probably some new teams in the DFW family of coverage.

The last few realignments, the UIL has given us a few headscratchers in DFW that make no sense. For instance, McKinney Boyd being put with Garland ISD over Allen or Wylie.

How will the UIL handle the fact that "technically" Trimble Tech and FW YMLA have to be 6A? Will they put them in a 10 team district or something similar to make it a regular district? Or will the UIL make us scratch our head?

In DFW, one of the very first questions we will wonder in 6A is if Abilene will be part of DFW.

Guyer non-district schedule:

Week 1 Aledo

Week 2 Cedar Hill

Week 3 Bye

Week 4 Mesquite Horn

North Crowley is in a nine-team district, so the Wildcats replace them with Horn. #txhsfb

They won state when they were in a DFW district. Abilene High will be just fine. ☺

I think @AngryOrangeCats will be eager to embrace the challenge. The miles on the road, though...🤔🤔
