Ten-time Pro Bowler and NFL Hall of Famer Mike Singletary is returning to the game of football.

Singletary will take over the head coaching duties at Trinity Christian-Addison after coaching in the NFL off and on for ten years, most recently as a defensive assistant with the Los Angeles Rams in 2016. The move to the high school ranks will mark the first time he has coached below the professional level.

His NFL head coaching record stands at 18-22 after two full seasons and one season served as interim coach for the San Francisco 49ers from 2008-2010.

Singletary, a native of Houston, attended Baylor University where he earned all-American honors in his junior and senior seasons at the linebacker position. In his eleven NFL seasons, all with the Chicago Bears, he notched two NFL Defensive Player of the Year awards in 1985 and 1988 and a Super Bowl XX win in 1985. He was elected to the College Football Hall of Fame in 1995 and the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1998.

Trinity Christian-Addison, a powerhouse in TAPPS, has reached the state title game 13 times, most recently in 2012. However, the last five seasons have seen a downswing for the Trojans as they have posted a sub-.500 record of 26-32 over that time span.

"Being able to coach Texas high school football, being able to coach at a Christian school, I may not have that opportunity again," Singletary said to SportsDay. "I'm very excited."

Singletary joins fellow Hall of Famer Deion Sanders in the TAPPS coaching spectrum as Sanders will begin his second season as offensive coordinator at Trinity Christian-Cedar Hill next season.
