Thursday afternoon our Lead Publisher of Football Recruiting Ashton Washington changed up her normal football camp schedule for a trip to Spring (TX) to see what Legacy the School of Sport Sciences is all about.

The founders Reggie and Kerrie who are Texas A&M University alumni, as well as former Aggie athletes, put their all into creating a program where athletes are not only being molded by their craft on the field or the court but yet by their academics too.

Legacy the School of Sport Sciences is the first school in the state of Texas that focuses on the professions within athletics.

If you're a parent or an athlete interested:

Registration is going on now. Only 100 spots left. www.legacymhs.org dual credit program, state-accredited charter school, experienced and proven coaches, professions of sport-work with industry experts.

Huge thank you to everyone at Legacy the School of Sport Sciences for the warm welcome and the family love.

I'm super excited to see the finished product and the student athletes that will soon be enriching their craft here for the next level. #Titans @legacyplayon pic.twitter.com/s3fbVt5fx4
