1 Corintios 1:22-25; Juan 2:13-25

In the first reading this week we hear the story of God delivering the Commandments to Moses. A friend once told me that every sin is a sin against the first commandment. If we truly live up to all that the first Commandment says and take it heart as a way to live our lives we cannot break any of the other commandments. If "You shall have no other gods before you" how can we take the Lord's name in vain? How can we not keep Holy the Sabbath? How can we not honor our mother and father? How can we kill, commit adultery, steal, lie about others, be envious of our neighbor's wife or property? We are all born with a desire to seek God, the problem is that there is a lot of media and cultural pressure to fill that desire with "false gods." All these false gods lead to an epidemic of immorality. As we start to live the commandments more fully that tendency will spread to our families, our communities and our nation. It may seem a daunting task to try and change the culture in this country, but no task is too big for God.

En la primera lectura de esta semana escuchamos la historia de Dios entregando los mandamientos a Moisés. Un amigo me dijo una vez que cada pecado es un pecado contra el primer mandamiento. Si realmente vivimos de acuerdo con todo lo que dice el primer Mandamiento y tomamos su corazón como una forma de vivir nuestras vidas, no podemos romper ninguno de los otros mandamientos. Si "No tendrás otros dioses delante de ti", ¿cómo podemos tomar el nombre del Señor en vano? ¿Cómo no podemos guardar el Sábado Santo? ¿Cómo no podemos honrar a nuestra madre y padre? ¿Cómo podemos matar, cometer adulterio, robar, mentir sobre otros, tener envidia de la esposa o propiedad de nuestro vecino? Todos nacemos con el deseo de buscar a Dios, el problema es que hay mucha presión mediática y cultural para llenar ese deseo con "dioses falsos". Todos estos dioses falsos conducen a una epidemia de inmoralidad. A medida que comencemos a vivir los mandamientos más plenamente, esa tendencia se extenderá a nuestras familias, nuestras comunidades y nuestra nación. Puede parecer una tarea desalentadora intentar cambiar la cultura en este país, pero ninguna tarea es demasiado grande para Dios.
