

Billy: But now we should discuss something concerning the Corona plague, about what we talked about together regarding the vaccinations against the Corona plague. You said that the whole thing should not be mentioned because of the underhanded machinations of certain vaccine manufacturers which is understandable which Sfath, your father, had already said, but about which I think that at least a word should be said about the protracted sufferings, the occurrence of fatal formations of blood clots in blood vessels in the brain, etc., in which respect you particularly mentioned ... We should discuss as well ...

Ptaah: We should avoid all that, Eduard, including the mentioning of names and designations, because that ...

Billy: Of course, I know I'd be pestered, which is why I'm only going to replace all the names with dots when I call up our conversation and write it down, that's clear. But as a whole, I think we should talk about everything in a somewhat paraphrased way, so that we can publish some important information in this regard. I have already done that with what I have said now, but not in the way that it should be done more openly.

Ptaah: *What you say is correct, and I would like to say the following, which I did not want to say at first, but now I do. The Corona vaccines that are administered to populations worldwide correspond to completely new mRNA products, some of which, according to our findings, pose the risk of antibody formation against the vaccines themselves and even result in life-threatening effects. We have also noticed time and again that false data and information are disseminated to the public by the government as well as by virologists and vaccine manufacturers, while at the same time important information for the people is concealed or insufficiently explained.

Now, as far as vaccines are concerned, these are unscrupulously and untested [without prior testing] first trailed on Earth human beings, which means an unconscionable and irresponsible intervention in the genetics of humanity and leads to many deaths. Without any scruples at all, the whole thing goes through a worldwide test, in which vaccines are tested on uninformed and dumbed-down people, in a quick and short period of time, which usually requires testing times of 10 to 15 years, before a vaccine can be determined to be largely effective and harmless to health, and can be used as a protective factor against infections.

Due to this unconscionability of the vaccine companies, as well as the equally unconscionable state leaders who allow the whole thing to happen, tens of thousands of people die or suffer as a result of the vaccinations. In addition to all the symptoms we have already mentioned several times since the open outbreak of the epidemic, there are many others that we have not yet addressed, such as muscle paralysis, facial paralysis, infertility, autoimmune disorders, loss of potency, vein occlusions in the brain, heart and other organs, as well as various organic long-term damages and lifelong suffering, etc., which can also be consequences of the Corona epidemic itself, as well as caused by the still untested dubious vaccines, from which for which the vaccine manufacturers are not held liable, but on the contrary gain horrendous profits. Human lives lose all value for them, as well as for the leaders of the state, because for these incompetent leaders only their personal security, their rule of power and their horrendous remuneration count, for which the peoples are obliged to pay with their tax money.

All vaccines to date, as well as all vaccines that will emerge in the near future, correspond to experimental and unresearched products that can cause vaccine damage and side effects as well as long-term damage, lifetime damage and deaths for a long time to come and only correspond to the purpose of an immense worldwide experiment on humanity. And to this end, state leaders are already putting forward ideas for compulsory vaccinations for various populations, i.e. vaccinations are to be enforced in order to separate the vaccinated from the non-vaccinated and to provide them with special identity cards.

The state leaders will also propagate that only their government <experts> would be able to know and explain the truth, while voices from the immature populations are wrong either way and should not be heeded but ignored.

People who commit suicide because they can't endure it all any more are carelessly disregarded and the whole thing is regarded as collateral damage. Likewise those responsible for the state will not pay any attention to all the people who, as a result of the epidemic, torment themselves with profound thoughts of guilt and feelings of guilt.

Moreover, the people who have become unemployed and destitute or are becoming even more destitute are simply completely ignored in their hardships and problems. This, however, only until they can be exploited, namely by harassing them with new fines, laws and taxes in order to replenish the emptied state coffers, which are emptied by the state leaders and senselessly squandered tax money, which they spend as <support aid> for companies and corporations etc., which have got themselves into trouble as a result of a lack of financial reserves.

Those who become destitute and object are patronisingly reprimanded and their objections rejected, just as - if they speak openly - open thinking or pointing out the mistakes made by the state leaders, may be punished and deprived of their liberty.

The state leaders conscience-lessly [without any scruples] demand that the people believe and follow them unconditionally and do not doubt their fundamentally wrong decisions and actions.

They denounce healthy, good and clear criticism as seditious, while they allow those to profit who reach out to them and help traumatize [hurt psychologically] all those who contradict their lies, deceptions, secrecy, high-handedly wrong decisions and actions as well as manipulation of figures and denounce all their wrongdoings.

However, it must now be said that every person has to determine for himself whether, how and what he wants to do with regard to vaccinations and all that I have disclosed. I cannot, will not and must not give any advice on the whole matter, because the freedom of every human being requires that he himself considers everything and anything, makes his own decisions and consequently also acts himself. My explanations and statements merely correspond to my observations and findings, so they are neither advice nor a call to act in a certain way. However, we should now leave it at what you and I have said, because with what you and I have explained, too much may already have been said and for you it may be a dan (ger)...

Billy:

... It is about the current experimentation with Corona vaccines on large parts of earthly humanity, because what is being done in this regard by the vaccine manufacturers together with the rulers of all states, corresponds, in my opinion, to a fraud on the entire earthly humanity, as well as life-despising machinations and an acceptance of deaths. This is because people are used as test objects for the vaccines, which alone causes many deaths, but which is not openly said, but is kept secret by the manufacturers of the vaccines, as well as by the state leaders, many of whom still profit unscrupulously financially from this, as well as with other things and machinations, such as with regard to horrendous profits through shareholdings and black money income with the trade in respirator masks. I know all this, because Sfath and I already found this out about 70 years ago, as you also mentioned recently.

In addition to everything that is done by certain irresponsible politicians to enrich themselves through profiteering to the detriment of the citizens, there is also the fact, through no fault of their own, that virologists are unable to recognise that the corona epidemic, depending on the case, in the event of a disease and successful cure, releases and stores corona impulses, through which, on the one hand, the epidemic can break out again sooner or later or cause another disease. This is because - as a result of unsuitable medical equipment and ignorance on the part of doctors and virologists - these corona impulses cannot be detected, and also because, depending on the case and circumstances etc., they can also be passed on to other people after recovery from the epidemic and infect them and make them ill. If you could now say something more about all the factors mentioned, then various questions would certainly be answered.

Our earthling experts, such as virologists etc., obviously have no idea of this, nor of what is really in the viruses, because they can, so to speak, only recognise the rough structure of the evil-bringer, as Sfath called the virus. So, the experts may know that a virus mutates, but they don't know why, because they don't know that a virus already contains the basic impulses of various species, which in turn contain various other forms of impulses that change, transform and mutate into new species according to the externalities or the external circumstances through the impulses given in their structure.

And this corresponds to a fact - which also applies to all the other approximately 2.5 million virus species, as you Pleiaren explain that this number exists on earth, which is about 1 million more than our earthlings assume - that applies to all viruses, which mutate constantly in the course of time if the suitable climatic and environmental circumstances are given for them. Moreover, it is also the case that viruses, once they come into existence, can never be eradicated again, even if virologists etc. claim the opposite, because they are obviously unaware in their hypothetical knowledge that viruses are not eradicated even when they can no longer be detected virologically and medically etc., but continue to exist silently.

And that all the experts have no idea whatsoever about the real and profound facts, such as, that - like all life and also all non-life, like viruses - everything that exists also carries creative-energetic-vibrational impulses within itself, which on the one hand preserve existence, but on the other hand are also capable of evolutionary changes and thus of new forms. And this knowledge is also lacking in the entire earthly natural science, as well as in all other sciences that deal with everything that exists. And since this fact is completely unknown to the entire earthly sciences, no earthling has yet come up with the idea of taking an interest in and researching the higher SI prefixes beyond nanotechnology, whereby according to Sfath, if I remember correctly, for the purpose of capturing the swinging wave impulse, an ultra-fine technique would have to touch the values of yotta-technology. These, however, have a value of 10^{24} and thus a fineness number that corresponds to a quadrillionth of a fine unit of a metre, and thus a finest technique from which the earthlings with their still extremely primitive nanotechnology are still countless light years away, as is also the case with regard to the time travel technique, which, depending on the case, reaches into the zebi technique areas and thus into a super-fine technique and into areas whose calculation value I no longer remember, although I had received it explained by Sfath. It was a long time ago, and I haven't got any younger.

Well, the fact is that viruses - when they are no longer detectable - have only retreated and stored themselves in some substances, materials and areas etc. in order to become active again when the opportunity arises. This can be after months, years or decades, or even after millennia or millions of years. Therefore, if virus-related ailments, diseases or epidemics disappear as a result of human efforts, or because they run their course, this does not mean that they no longer exist, but only that they have withdrawn and stored themselves somewhere in some matter. But sooner or later, or even after millennia or millions of years, they will free themselves again to become active again when the appropriate and necessary conditions, constellations, states, situations and elements, factors and conditions and all other aspects arise.

The whole of the current spread of the Corona plague basically means that almost countless mutations have emerged from one virus, which in the case of this Corona virus has led to over 5,000 mutations so far since its existence in the mid-1970s, which have become more and more dangerous and will continue to be so.

Now, other people are also asking various questions about this, which at the moment are interestingly related to the functions of the brain, if you are therefore willing to say something of general importance about this. But regards (that) what you are willing to say about all this, you should explain it in a clearer [meaning: more understandable] way so that we lay people can also understand everything correctly, because we from the common people are neither educated with regard to medicine nor especially with regard to brain science or neuroscience, which are, after all, areas of research in the natural sciences, in whose specialist areas the structure and functioning of the nervous systems belong.

Personally, I am particularly interested in the functioning of the central nervous system and the brain, and thus also in neuronal activity and the diverse functions of the brain, such as memory, among others. In addition, I would be grateful if you could also discuss the various disciplines that are related to this, such as biology, physiology and psychology, mathematics, medicine, computer science, robotics and cooperation, etc., because unfortunately I am far too little educated in these scientific fields and am just about a zero-nothing. Although I have a somewhat distant idea of this and that, that is not enough for me. So, if I may ask you?

Ptaah

I can do that, but I will speak to [meaning: have to approach] you about it again, because I still have time until the 15th of March. But now I shall answer what you have asked, using earthly terms in my explanations for general understanding, and I shall also have to explain a few things concerning the brain in particular:

In spite of vaccinations, many people continue to be infected, just as in the case of vaccinated persons and those who have recovered from the Corona epidemic, as well as in the case of existing antibodies, there can be no guarantee whatsoever that further infections can be absolutely ruled out.

Side-effects of vaccinations result from, for example, the rapid or later onset of death, or the fading into death, and they [the side effects] can also have late effects that result in lifelong suffering. Organ haemorrhages of various kinds and blood clots can also result from inappropriate vaccines. This [is so], because the Corona epidemic and untested and dangerous vaccines can quickly form blood clots in the veins of the brain, causing life-threatening cerebral venous thrombosis. So, such consequences can be caused directly by a Corona infection or by vaccinations, precisely with inappropriate vaccines, such as those that are currently still very insufficiently tested. This can lead to life-threatening reactions. If, for example, a blood clot occurs in a blood vessel in the brain, this leads to vascular occlusion [blood vessel closure] and thus to a cut-off of the blood supply to the brain, which means that cerebral venous thrombosis occurs.

The blood supply to the brain corresponds to the extremely important part of the blood circulation that regulates the processes in the brain with regard to the oxygen and glucose and other nutrients supplied to it and also separates and removes all metabolic products and all carbon dioxide. Overall, there are anatomical and physiological peculiarities to which this system is subject, which, because the human brain is subordinate to an extremely high basal metabolism , requires a great deal of rest and in this state already needs a lot more than one fifth of the total normal oxygen content of the entire body organism

) "basal metabolism" = the metabolism [burning of calories] needed to perform the most basic body functions like breathing, blood circulation, cell production

What is also important to mention relates to the nerve cells, which, unlike other cells in the body, are not designed to meet and maintain their energy requirements anaerobically, i.e., without sufficient oxygen. As for cerebral venous thromboses, which are not related to the corona disease, they are relatively rare, but they are dangerous and can lead not only to strokes but also to death.

In principle, the following must also be said: the cerebral venous thrombosis is not only caused by corona infections, but can also result from various other causes, whereby a blood clot usually forms in the vein, which inevitably leads to thrombophlebitis or inflammation of the veins inside the brain. Hormonal influences can also be risks for thrombosis, a hypercoagulability of the blood, which means a pathologically increased coagulability of the blood, which can subsequently result in intravascular thrombus formation or thrombophilia. This means that this is the main factor triggering the Virchow triad or the causal factor for the development of phlebothrombosis.

thrombosis = clotting of blood in a part of the blood circulation system

thrombophlebitis = inflammation of the wall of a vein associated with the blood clotting

phlebothrombosis = presence of a blood clot within a vein not associated with the inflammation of the vein wall

The fact that cerebral venous thrombosis occurs more frequently as a result of the Corona epidemic is due to the fact that the Corona infection causes various metabolic disorders, which increases the risk of thrombosis. This leads to an occlusion [closure/shutting off] of a cerebral vein, which does not obstruct the blood supply, but rather the outflow of blood, i.e. the transport of blood, which results in congestion of the blood and the danger of swelling of the brain tissue. This, however, becomes life-threatening, because the brain pressure increases dangerously, and this because the brain can only expand a little inside the bony skull. Consequently, when the strong pressure inside the skull increases, the whole thing becomes life-threatening and can quickly lead to death.

There is no sudden pain - in complete contrast to cerebral venous thrombosis, in which arterial circulatory disturbances occur - as well as no neurological deficits, etc. Headaches, nausea and vomiting develop slowly, as do various paralyses and cerebral nerve failures, e.g. seizures and disturbances of consciousness, etc., although changes also occur, such as bleeding from a cerebral artery, which is very similar to an ischaemic cerebral infarction or ischaemic stroke or cerebral infarction. This is an effective stroke due to sudden ischemia or reduced blood flow to the brain or due to constricting or occluding processes of the arterial brain vessels. If the swelling continues for too long, irreversible damage is caused to the brain or the whole thing ends in death if the thrombolysis or blood clot is not quickly dissolved by early decisive medical treatment.

Cerebral: pertaining to the brain (Lat. cerebrum = brain)

Infarction: obstruction of blood supply to a body region or organ causing localised death of body tissue (Latin infarcire = to stuff into) ischaemic: deficient blood supply to a body part due to the obstruction of the inflow of arterial (= the oxygenated, bright red) blood (Greek: echein = to hold and Gr. haima = blood)

thrombolysis: dissolving ("lysis") of a blood clot (thrombo)

Early childhood brain damage can also trigger epileptic seizures, the causes of which are often impossible to fathom, but which can trigger epileptic seizures throughout a person's life and into old age. Tumours in the brain can be the cause of epileptic seizures, as well as various brain diseases or vascular diseases of the brain. If we take a closer look at the brain, then we are not only dealing with an extremely complex and highly sensitive organ system, but also with the most important organ system of the human being, which can be disturbed or even severely damaged by an extremely wide variety of influences from within the body or from external forces, and this despite the relatively good bony protection of the skull.

Even the lightest form of craniocerebral injury, which occurs as a result of concussion, can be accompanied by unconsciousness lasting from a few seconds up to hours, as well as a short-lived loss of consciousness or even a delusional episode, and this can also result in short, longer, long-term or lifelong memory lapses, which, to my knowledge, is unknown in this respect in the earthly psychological and medical sciences. If, for example, severe skull injuries occur, such as massive contusions, then these have such a damaging effect on the brain substance that long-term or even only hourly disturbances of consciousness, epileptic seizures - which may occur sporadically again and again throughout life - as well as paralysis of the body or parts of the body may result.

Craniocerebral: pertaining to the skull (cranio) and brains (cerebrum)

A severe cerebral contusion can also lead to a ruptured bridging vein, which can have serious consequences. Any head trauma, no matter how minor, can cause an epidural () haematoma (morbid growth of blood = blood collects in an area of blood outside of blood vessels) for a short or long time, or even for life, which means that there is haemorrhage (haima = blood / rhage = gap, break up) between the outer and middle meninges (meninx = membrane) in the brain, even if it is only caused by bumping the head against something. In this case, a haemorrhage occurs between the hard cerebral membrane and the skull bone as a result of a rupture of the blood vessels. The resulting haematoma can cause clouding of consciousness or even hemiplegia (paralysis of one side (left/right) of the body) within minutes to hours, and may also become a long-term or lifelong condition, such as frequent or sporadic headaches, nausea, dizzy spells or migraines, etc.

epidural	Greek "epi" = on / Latin "dura mater" = outer membrane surrounding the brain
haemorrhage	Greek "haima" = blood / Greek "rhage" = gap, break up haimorrhages = bleeding violently
meninges	Greek meningos = membrane
haematoma	Greek "haima" = blood / - oma morbid growth, tumor
lumbar	lower part of the back
thoracic	Latin "thorax" - chest, breast (thoracic: in the chest area)

If spinal subdural or epidural haematomas occur, usually thoracic (in the chest area) or lumbar damage or fractures of the thoracic and lumbar spine, which is rare, then these can also be consequences of back trauma, etc., such as in the case of an increased tendency to bleed, which can also occur as a result of a lumbar puncture or after a puncture of the dural sac in the area of the lumbar vertebrae, whereby a hollow needle is inserted into the lumbar canal at the level of the loin and nerve fluid is extracted. That, Eduard is in brief as the most important thing to mention.

Billy, thank you, but if you don't mind, I personally have another question, namely, what is meant by multiple sclerosis and what is the connection between it and the brain and spinal cord, because that is just as unclear to me as how I should explain a stroke to a person in simple terms, because I was also asked about that.

Sclerosis Greek "hardening" (hard tumour)

"multiple sclerosis" refers to the hard areas ("plaques") along the nerve cell's axon (damaged sheath of nerve cells)

Myelin Greek "myelos" marrow, innermost part German "myelin" soft material found in nerve tissue[

Ptaah Multiple sclerosis is an inflammatory disease of the central nervous system and affects the brain and spinal cord. The disease is caused by a focal dissolution of the myelin sheaths or the insulating layer of the nerve fibres, because the dissolution of the myelin sheath means that there is no longer any nerve conduction. Depending on the localisation, this results in corresponding failures, whereby depending on the age, and indeed at any age of the human being, tumours can also develop in the brain, whereby these can be both malignant and benign. And what is still to be explained with regard to the cause of the occurrence of a stroke, such a cause results from an acute circulatory disturbance forming in the brain, through which the oxygen supply is suddenly interrupted because the nerve cells in the affected area of the brain die and become desolate.

Billy Thank you, Ptaah, my friend. With this, I have some work to do again, because answering all the questioners is tedious. So I think that when I find the time, I will retrieve your explanations, write them down and send them to everyone by fax and e-letter.

Billy Of course you can, my friend, but now the following is still pending [meaning: to be discussed / clarified], and that is what we discussed with each other early on, when in January 2019 the Corona epidemic broke out, which was then first detected in Wuhan in December and since then has claimed far more than 125 million infected and so far more than 2.5 million lives, this at least according to officially announced figures, but which will still rise to 140 million infected by the middle of the year, just as in the same period the official number of fatalities will have reached 3 million. What the total number of people will be in every respect, however, is not to be discussed, as your father Sfath said for a good reason. However, it is well known that false information is constantly being spread or that important information is being concealed, and that obvious dangers are not being recognised that should be recognised in principle, as will be the case, for example, in three weeks' time when the international ship transport between Europe and Asia collapses and triggers a transport blockade. But the concealment or non-recognition of facts brings damage to the populations as well as to the global economy, such as the concealment or non-recognition that children and young people have been increasingly endangered and infected by the Corona epidemic since December 2020 and that the whole thing is now beginning to spread among young people. The only thing that is not clear to me is why nothing is reported about this in the public organs to inform the population, whether the <clever> virologists have not yet established this, or whether they and the governments want to conceal the whole thing.

[So] that is [the] one thing, then the following comes up now, namely that which relates to the inadequate vaccines that have been hurled untested onto the vaccine market in what I consider to be an extremely unscrupulous action for the pure purpose of making money and profit, and which have so far also cost many human lives and caused people to fall ill from long suffering. The entire vaccine process in terms of the necessary tests, which usually take 10 to 15 or even more years to create a real and effectively effective vaccine, has been fabricated within a few months since the outbreak of the epidemic and thrown onto the vaccine market untested. And this is how it has come to this - because the stupid and relevant people of the WHO and the governments have allowed it - that the vaccine companies worldwide can legally abuse the whole of humanity for years to test their vaccines on billions of people unchallenged and free of charge and, moreover, to have their half-baked vaccine products paid for dearly in order to enrich themselves unlawfully. Something that the USA already carried out by the order and consciencelessness of the US President Harry Truman by just as conscienceless bomber pilots, when they criminally and mass-murderously destroyed the cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki in Japan with atomic bomb tests and thus murdered hundreds of thousands of innocent people. And this is an indisputable fact, which is now being repeated with the epidemic, in which, as a result of government decisions, many people are legally abused by vaccination tests and forfeit their lives.

Ptaah What you say is correct, because what is being carried out worldwide with the vaccinations is a large-scale and world-wide experiment without equal, through which the various vaccines are tested with regard to their correctness and effectiveness, in order to be able to develop an effective vaccine in this way that despises every human life. Human beings are contemptuously and irresponsibly abused as test objects, whereby I explicitly clarify that no actual benefit for the prevention of the Corona epidemic is taken into consideration in these tests, but only the test results that serve to find and produce an effective vaccine. The test vaccinations are intended to ensure a benefit in finding an effective vaccine against the Corona virus and its mutations, and for this a risk associated with vaccination is taken with regard to the life or death of all the millions of people vaccinated. Only in this way can the whole of vaccination make any real sense with regard to the Corona epidemic. And this is what both the state leaders and large masses of the population are falling for, not noticing that they are being abused as test objects by the corporations that supply their vaccines and are possibly gambling with their lives. It is also a fact that with regard to the test research, only certain age groups are considered with special attention, namely younger ones, while older ones are disregarded because they have lived their lives anyway, no longer work and thus do nothing for society and are a burden for it, consequently they should die quickly to make room for the younger generations who will use many pharmaceutical products for many years and fill the pockets of the vaccine corporations with money.

The people who are vaccinated all assume that the vaccines that are approved and administered to them will work, but how well they work, what they do and whether they work at all, they do not know, just as they do not know whether the vaccine administered to them will save them from infection or whether they will succumb to severe suffering or disease or die from it. In any case, every vaccination always has an effect, but only the course of the test will show what this effect will ultimately be. If untested vaccines are approved, and if they are untested, and all of them are untested at the moment, no one knows exactly how they work effectively, how well they work, what they will or can achieve, but there are only bare hypotheses or assumptions, but no precise findings. With all the test procedures that are being carried out worldwide by all vaccine manufacturers - without conscience on the willing and trusting of earthly mankind who are afraid of the epidemic - it is assumed that through all these abusive tests effective vaccines will be created next year and will then be used legally.

My statement in this regard on the <gene-based vaccines>, as they are sometimes called, is absolutely justified, as is my statement that the data now available to us on the effectiveness of all vaccine products used so far are extremely dubious and present facts that do not correspond to reality but to window dressing, as you usually describe such machinations. The fact is, as we have verified, that the risk of every vaccine currently in use is greater than the benefit, so that every person who gets vaccinated now is part of a huge and world-wide experiment, the outcome and effective result of which are not yet known and can only be known in the future when the final effects become apparent.

If we look at the vaccine companies, however, there is not a single one that can assume and bear any liability as a manufacturer for its own vaccine product. Even with regard to emergency vaccinations, none of the vaccine manufacturers can guarantee an effective, helpful effect, which means that in the event of a case, a vaccination can lead to death, which is actually more often the case worldwide than is generally known, because it is concealed and not admitted. However, various state leaders know this, which is why they are unsure about having themselves vaccinated, not without reason. To say more about this would be redundant talk.

Billy Actually, that's enough for rational people. After all, you were talking about the fact that many Corona infections cannot be detected by little rods, but could only be detected in organs themselves. Organs, if they are infected by the Corona virus, are a particularly nasty factor of infection, because those infected by the Corona epidemic infect their fellow human beings with the virus without them or the others knowing that the epidemic is being spread, because everyone lulls themselves into a sense of security. That's one thing, because you also said that vaccinations can be contagious if the needles are contaminated by contaminated aerosols in the vaccination room and these then enter the blood during the vaccination process.

Ptaah That is probably right, but this should be very rare, but that will not change the fact that the disease is still on the rise, this time with the first wave of mutations, as I know from my father's annals.

Billy That is correct, but the stupidity of those in power and the virologists etc. have still not grasped that it is not the 3rd wave of the virus of origin that is coming, but that the 1st wave of a corona mutation is already underway. This stupidity results in the earthlings who govern and in about 30 per cent of the populations of industrialized countries around the earth as well, whereby these are even more cross-dumb, which is why, unfortunately, as I have already said, the official deaths alone will soon exceed the figure of 3 million and, moreover, also the number of officially infected 140 million.
