Reflection

The first verse of chapter 10 of Mark's Gospel tells us that crowds gathered around Jesus, and he taught them, as was his custom. Immediately, the Pharisees approach Jesus to test him.

The Pharisees question Jesus about the lawfulness of divorce. Under specific conditions, divorce was an accepted practice among the Jewish people during the time of Jesus. It was regulated by the Law of Moses, as found in Deuteronomy 24:1-5. This law only permits that a husband may divorce his wife if he finds her to be indecent. This is the justification that the Pharisees reference when Jesus inquires about the commandment of Moses. In reply, Jesus quotes from the Book of Genesis and counters that God's original intention was that men and women would become one flesh in marriage. Jesus describes the teaching of Moses as a concession made to God's original intention because of human stubbornness.

At first glance, the final part of today's Gospel seems unconnected to the previous teaching about divorce. When read together, however, these passages present a strong picture of Jesus' emphasis on the importance of family. God intended for women and men to be joined together in marriage. Among the purposes of marriage is the raising of children. By welcoming children and fostering their relationship with God, parents and families bear witness to the Kingdom of God.

At the end of today's Gospel, the people were bringing their children to Jesus, and again Jesus' disciples show that they just don't get it. Recall that in the Gospel for each of the past two Sundays, Jesus has taught his disciples the value and importance of these "little ones" in the Kingdom of God. Yet in today's Gospel, the disciples try to prevent people from bringing their children to Jesus. Jesus reprimands his disciples and welcomes these children. Again Jesus offers these children as an example of the kind of complete trust and dependence upon God that ought to be the attitude of all believers.

El primer versículo del capítulo 10 del Evangelio de Marcos nos dice que las multitudes se reunieron alrededor de Jesús, y Él les enseñó, cómo era su costumbre. Inmediatamente, los fariseos se acercan a Jesús para probarlo.

Los fariseos le preguntan a Jesús acerca de la legalidad del divorcio. Bajo condiciones específicas, el divorcio fue una práctica aceptada entre los judíos durante el tiempo de Jesús. Estaba regulado por la Ley de Moisés, como se encuentra en Deuteronomio 24: 1-5. Esta ley sólo permite que un esposo pueda divorciarse de su esposa si la encuentra indecente. Esta es la justificación a la que se refieren los fariseos cuando Jesús pregunta acerca del mandamiento de Moisés. En respuesta, Jesús cita del Libro de Génesis y contesta que la intención original de Dios era que los hombres y las mujeres se convirtieran en una sola carne en el matrimonio. Jesús describe la enseñanza de Moisés como una concesión hecha a la intención original de Dios debido a la obstinación humana.

A primera vista, la parte final del Evangelio de hoy parece no estar relacionada con la enseñanza anterior sobre el divorcio. Sin embargo, cuando se leen juntos, estos pasajes presentan una imagen sólida del énfasis de Jesús en la importancia de la familia. Dios quería que las mujeres y los hombres se unieran en matrimonio. Entre los propósitos del matrimonio está la crianza de los hijos. Al dar la bienvenida a los niños y fomentar su relación con Dios, los padres y las familias dan testimonio del Reino de Dios.

Al final del Evangelio de hoy, la gente traía a sus hijos a Jesús, y nuevamente los discípulos de Jesús muestran que simplemente no lo entienden. En los pasados dos domingos, Jesús ha enseñado a sus discípulos el valor y la importancia de estos "pequeños" en el Reino de Dios. Sin embargo, en el Evangelio de hoy, los discípulos tratan de evitar que las personas lleven a sus hijos a Jesús. Jesús reprende a sus discípulos y da la bienvenida a estos niños. Una vez más, Jesús ofrece a estos niños como un ejemplo de la clase de confianza y dependencia completa de Dios que debe ser la actitud de todos los creyentes.
