The Fowler Clark Epstein Farm in Mattapan is the new home of the Urban Farming Institute of Boston, Inc. (UFI). With the move to this historic farm, UFI has expanded its educational services with workshops such as food as medicine, growing food without a garden, urban edible foraging, bees and beekeeping. We have also created the popular Fit Around the Farm program for seniors and families. Our 2019 Farmer Training Program kicked off in June and our Young Farmers Project kicked off on July 8th with 4 engaging teens. Partner with UFI to support growing food, healthy eating, and living well.

Request: Please support our farm stand operations to providing access to fresh local food this summer by making a $250 donation today.

$250 contribution: Your dollars will go towards our goal of providing fresh grown and fresh picked food for all at our farm stands. Please make your check out to the Urban Farming Institute.

In Return: Your logo will be on our UFI farm stand bag, on our farm stand communication materials, on select workshops and in social media.

Why give? To support our mission to impact lives. “We don’t just grow food, we grow people.”

Help us build a healthier community by supporting the work that we do.
