What is Interim Housing? / What do shelters do?

Interim Housing includes both Crisis Housing programs and Bridge Housing programs - bed resources (and vouchers, for families) meant to provide people experiencing homeless the stability and security needed to take steps toward permanent housing.

How do I use this list?

If you are or are assisting a person experiencing homelessness, you can identify a local LAHSA-funded shelter and call to inquire about their bed availability, and their intake process.

If you are or are assisting a family experiencing homelessness, please call 211.

What are Crisis Housing and Bridge Housing programs?

As mentioned, these Interim Housing programs are designed to support people experiencing homelessness to attain permanent housing. Each shelter provides regular meals, showers, and case management, as well as a bed.

The eligibility and population will often determine whether Crisis or Bridge is the best fit for the participant—access to both are described below.
