

PROPOSAL FOR ENACTING A REPLACEMENT FOR THE CURRENT SYSTEM OF FIAT

BACKGROUND

As for the charismatic sensationalism that mass media uses, to glorify America's future with pipe dreams for a better tomorrow, America and what's left of the free market world, has reached epidemic proportions for squelching what actually constitutes the 'charismatic' part, of what's being constitutionally exercised as 'charismatic sensationalism'. Dr. Ron Paul appeared to be 'softly charismatic' with his approach on the Fed's influence on our monetary policy. That may be just good for starters, but now the momentum towards creating a new, constitutional convention is intensifying. Jurisdiction is being handed over to the states, just as it was after 1798.

America should only be as strong for being charismatic, as we are for the scientific intuition that makes up the guts of some national (or even international) program for massive retraining (and retooling) of our credit industry, and what actually constitutes 'credit'. Small business entrepreneurs, private industry, and the world at large would be grateful for not so many controls being put in place, that would steal the traction out of proliferating what should be the best definition of our own credit, as a citizenry.

How is this accomplished?

PROJECT - AN AVANTE-GARDE EXAMPLE OF A SYSTEM OF CREDIT COMPETITION

By identifying what the universally accepted form of advertising currency that might exist, for sending a candidate's message out en-masse, so that all who might agree with the candidate on certain issues, might be able to take note of how many others will also agree with them in the long run, based upon the strength of the advertising currency, and continue to support the candidate's form of advertising more in the long run rather than the short run.

Edible "nano-paper" money that doubles as a distributive network would form the basis of the advertising currency. At a very low cost per individual meal, edible, practically invisible nano-fibres are mixed into a freeze dried or irradiated food, consumed, and provide all the nourishment required. If a person chooses not to eat, the fibers also form a distributed parallel processing network via their proximity with other irradiated food.

The memory capacity of the nano-fibre network would not require any removable media, and would therefore handle a much larger storage capacity, since growth of the industry would be solely based on distributive networking and advertising. The fibers can be made with any flavor and consistency as any freeze dried breakfast, lunch, or dinner. The cobalt-irradiated packages would have a standard shelf life of over a year, and would not require refrigeration. They would also be used as a remote terminal for the purpose of mass marketing through advertising, on the basis that fasting produces enlightenment, and enlightenment draws a mass of believers closer to transcending the monopolies that major corporate infrastructures of Americans have become all too well enamoured with, as the growth of the monopoly's success, becomes solely gauged by numbers of widgets sold in terms of paper money earnings, rather than a way out of avoiding the trap of dependency with the particular "widget".

Name your widget - there is no end to widgets, as long as the particular advertising used "defines down" the cause of enlightenment. Corporate statism becomes entrapment by fiat, as long as the "fiat" currency remains. Addiction to fiat currency creates a growing addiction to non-revolutionary energy technology (corporate, private, government, or otherwise), but running the parallel currency by revealing new information on the currency (as well as having the nano-fibers re-adapt, and upgrade their nourishment potential) for the particular user, has to reconfigure the economic end game in terms of the life-extending reality in the food. Naturally the higher the currency, the more "user relevant" the nourishment becomes.

This is the new kind of currency that can also act as an advertising medium for the masses. Every time the nano-fibre currency permanently becomes utilized as a terminal, it will automatically increase in value according to how the usage interacts with the most widely distributed grouping of similar potential parallel processors that can 'handshake' with the advertising. If the interaction is judged positive, the face value of the nano-fibre package increases.

It would be a "Tree of Life" Genome Project-gone-capital, whose ultimate goal would have each "user" decide their own fate, described as either:

(1) Those who seek the protection of an ultimate provider of generic "one capital fits all systems of fiat"[1].

verses,

(2) The source of the "art" within the advertising itself, or the new, improved life force of the user (the edible nano-paper money).

This would allow anyone entering the market to decide which currency offers a better piece of their particular "puzzle of success".

Entrepreneurs to the New World had no 'way stations' stocked with exotic food, entertainment, and right-of-way passage to the Americas. They ate fish from the net and sang songs to each other in the spirit of the times. They manned the sails in the trade winds and knew their way by the orientation of the stars as well as the compass which kept them on course.

Today that compass has changed: it has changed not only into a G2V sun with an earth-like planet, but it has also changed into a memory compass for entraining western consciousness.

[1] a.k.a. the many arts (or users), assimilate with all those into another potential assimilator who chooses, and who will also buy into the art being used themselves as another "advertiser for assimilation" (in the world system of fiat).

The most enlightened will end up being the most well-nourished, while those in command of the advertising, will also have a new enlightenment that controls viewership on a mass scale. Those who wish to 'opt out' won't have the ability to opt back in, until an aetheric board has been re-certified by the opter for the re-opting. The re-certifying attaches some specific level of enlightenment at the beginning of a denomination. Thousands of denominations can exist on any currency between 1 and 100 dollars, such as 45.52, 30.01, etc. For example, if a currency has a denominational value of 87.29 showing on a $50.00 certificate, this would mean that the viewership is more of a controlling factor than the nutritional value. Likewise, if a 12.47 value is showing on the same $50.00 certificate, then the nutritional value is more of a controlling factor than the viewership.

Being societally more 'well balanced' means that the numbers are outside of specific limits that correlate to a preferred direction of advancement for the entire species, that is most similar to the user's own. One doesn't receive this information until the end of the tax year, because of all the eating and spending going on. A hive mentality of this sort pays more attention to the number relationship on the nano-fibre for their own good, rather than the number relationship on someone else's nano-fibre.

The nanofibre becomes a virtual A.I. assistant towards the species affecting it. One might say that the goal of the nano-fibre/user interface is to achieve a zero-point consciousness, in which the user can offer the greatest nourishment and/or advertising by either opting out or opting in to the system, for which he or she has offered all other users greater ability to unfold their own observed/non-observed zero-point consciousness as a guidepost, or an aetheristic path of least resistance towards things like free energy for space exploration.