Local Satyr Finds out he has a half Dryad love child.

A rakish Satyr named Cedric recently found out he is the father of a motherless half Dryad baby. The infant in question was found hidden under a pile of leaves above it's mothers grave. The death of the mother was apparently expedited by the mysterious withering of the forests throughout Orlon.

However there are rumors that the Satyr in question had a hand in facilitating her demise. Even so we would like to congratulate Cedric, and wish him all the best in raising his unusual and precious child.

THE KINGDOM CHRONICLES

Dear Alura':

Everytime I make Dinner for my husband, he "takes a walk" and the next day I notice more of the plants in my garden have died. I'm honestly not sure what to make of it.

~Baffled gardener

Dear Baffled,

You might want to check the soil in your garden for rotten food.

You also might want to invest in learning how to cook better.

Your food may very well be the cause of your dying plants, and the mysterious late night walks your husband takes.

MADAM GANTA'S RECPIE CORNER:

Today I will be telling you how to make:

Hogs head cheese.

Makes 60 servings of 2 tablespoons each.

Ingredients

10 cups water
2 1/2 lbs pork meat or the hog's head
1 pig's foot
2 tsp salt
3/4 lb onions, chopped
1 tbsp parsley flakes
1 tbsp celery flakes
1 cup chopped green onions
1 tsp black pepper
3/4 tsp red pepper

Directions

Clean the hog head by removing eyes, ears and brains. Saw into 4 pieces.

Measure water into 5-quart sauce pot. Add the hog head, pork meat, pig's foot, and 1 teaspoon of salt. Cook until meat is tender and the pig's foot and head can easily be boned.

Approximately 3 cups of liquid should remain in sauce pot.

Add chopped onions, parsley flakes, celery flakes, chopped green onions, and the remaining teaspoon of salt, black pepper, and red pepper. Cook for about 3 minutes.

Remove the meat from the liquid (but reserve the liquid). Debone the meat. Place meat in the food processor, chop well but don't puree.

Mix together the chopped ingredients and the reserved liquid. Pour into 9x13 pan. Chill thoroughly and serve on crackers.

It seems the afflicted suffer from horrible nightmares, and headaches, followed by vomiting and then utter madness! These people have been seen wandering towns at night, violently attacking anyone they see, and screaming about brain fires. The local constabulary urges people to stay indoors at night, and keep all their windows and doors locked tight, and not to let anyone in after dark, no matter the circumstances.

Doctors, as well as Alchemists, and Scientists are currently trying to figure out what exactly is causing this madness, and if there is any possibility of a cure. Please keep reading our newspaper for the fastest updates to this horrible epidemic.

Stev runs for mayor of Hopes Folly!

The humanoid known only as Stev has decided to officially run for the Mayoral position of Hopes Folly.

Our reporters met with Stev and, in a very interesting interview, he gave this comment

“Vote for Stev! It's in everyone's best interest to vote for Stev! I give you lots of things if you vote for Stev!”

His official forms were, oddly enough, submitted in what appears to be a colored wax, instead of the usual ink...

We questioned the local magistrate and after some unusual faces, confirmed that it was in fact a valid candidacy form.

So we at The Kingdom Chronicles would like to offer Stev best wishes on his campaign.

Last of 'Exchequer Conspirators' to be Hanged Tomorrow

Port City of Journey's End—Disgraced scribe Anastro Lavatri, convicted last year of treason in the wake of the "Exchequer Scandal," will be hanged tomorrow in front of Andith Tower in the Ambassador Towers district.

Lavatri's barrister, Bandaran Urnash, said last week that he'd exhausted his legal appeals, and that the writ of commutation which would have spared his life has languished in the Seven Coin Courts.

Lavatri's execution will bring to a close an embarrassing scandal at the vaunted Council Citadel. Three staff officers and two scribes, including Lavatri, were convicted last October of embezzling funds for the city's defense, and building themselves opulent towers on the Upper Central plateau.

The conspiracy was uncovered only after a routine crown audit noticed some discrepancies in the Citadel's books. At trial, some witnesses expressed doubt as to whether Lavatri realized the ledger entries he made were fraudulent.

Although she wasn't implicated in wrongdoing, the scandal led Knight-Marshal Chanarri Yewn to resign her commission. Her crown-appointed replacement, Knight-Marshal Banarak Tithon, holds the post to this day. He is expected to oversee Lavatri's execution.
