

The Occupied RV Parking issue has been debated for several years. No one is happy! Let's stop and talk facts in a Win Win.

Property owners want "common sense" control over their own property without undo government intervention.

RVers should be looked upon as an "industry of its own" that doesn't have a negative cost impact to the County.

Pinal County Supervisors want more money coming into the Treasurer.

RV visitors and owners tax monies support police, jail, and courts but rarely use their services.

The school system benefits as most RVers...whether property owner or visitor do not have children in school. RV property owners still pay school taxes.

Actually having nice looking well maintained RVs can increase property values just like having a nice looking well maintained passenger vehicles parked in driveways.

In general properties owned by snowbirds with RVs are more well maintained.

Selling a property for realtors is easier if RV guest are accepted.

Visiting RV guests are more likely to enjoy the benefits of living here and are more likely to buy property for themselves.

Winter visitors aka RV owners pay higher school taxes since they are not full time residents.

Sales at restaurants and local businesses increase greatly from winter residents/visitors and RVers.

Property owner with RVs are normally in a higher income bracket which would increase tax income to the County from all sources.
