

Revival

Once I left Him I caused myself a lot of pain,
My eyes were blinded, and my tears were shed in vain,
How did I let my Faith slip so far away?
How did I lose sight of my Purpose He gave to me?

Oh Lord, the things I refused to see,
That night the Light died in me,
My face was dead, and my smiles were empty,
Everything shattered along with my identity,

I know I've made some mistakes, I'm not proud,
I compromised my faith and regret screamed loud,
My composure faded, and support was a hopeless route,
My Feet wandered in doubt and advice drained out,

Until I picked up the pieces and stopped wasting time,
A mind void of understanding fills our hearts with lies,
It took a while, but I finally pushed myself aside,
I took a step and relied on the Voice I heard inside,

As I put my trust in You, I slowly came to life,
Because of Your grace I thrive,
Because of Your light, I am no longer blind,
Because of your forgiveness, I survived,

To my past I am no longer tied,
Now I see who I was and who I am yet to be,
Your Love has set me Free,
Your power rescued me,

I have finally found a love worth dying for,
A Love more precious than silver and gold,
I may have to walk this path alone,
But with Him, all my fear is gone,

My mind is renewed, and my heart is cleaned,
My smile is sincere, and my spirit is redeemed,
I am no longer the same,
I pray You stay and keep me in your grace,
As I walk this narrow path of Faith,

Thank You Jesus, I'm saved!
