Town eyes on-site cannabis consumption opt-out

By Melanie Lekocevic
Capital Region Independent Media

COEYMANS — Town officials are considering a local law that would permit the sale of cannabis in the town, but opt out of allowing on-site consumption at the retail site.

A hearing is scheduled for Nov. 22, at 6:30 p.m., to give community members the chance to voice their opinion about the proposed new law, dubbed the On-site Cannabis Consumption Opt-Out.

“There is a local law being proposed and it is an opt-out for on-site consumption, but not for retail,” Town Supervisor George McHugh said at Thursday’s board meeting. “So we want to allow retail sales of cannabis, but not on-site consumption, so opting out of the on-site

Former Gov. Andrew Cuomo signed legislation March 31 legalizing recreational adult-use cannabis. Municipalities across the state have the option to

McHugh said the proposed local law is a “happy medium.”

“This local law being proposed would allow for the retail sale and purchase of cannabis in our town, outside the boundaries of the village, but it would not allow for the consumption on site, meaning there would be no smoke rooms in the cannabis shops that you could go to and consume the cannabis once you purchased it,” McHugh said.

Municipalities do not have the option of banning the use of recreational marijuana altogether. Communities have until Dec. 31 to make a decision; those that do not opt out by that time are auto-

Faith groups lend a helping hand to kids in need

By Melanie Lekocevic
Capital Region Independent Media

RAVENA — CarePortal is a blend of modern technology and an old-fashioned helping hand.

The technology platform that links faith-based organizations with those in need is managed in the Capital Region by Justice for Orphans, based in Ravena.

The group has been helping families in Albany and Schenectady counties for the past couple of years, and expanded its reach when it launched CarePortal in Greene County on Oct. 28.

Ravena-based Justice for Orphans launched CarePortal in Greene County on Oct. 28. Pictured, left to right, are Kati Sewak from Justice for Orphans; Greene County Administrator Shaun Groden; Greene County Legislator Ed Bloomer, R-Athens; Commissioner Kira Pospesel from the Department of Social Services; and Sandra Flach from Justice for Orphans.

CarePortal is a national program that launched six years ago and is active in 27 states nationwide, according to Sandra Flach, director of Ravena-based Justice for Orphans.

“Before COVID, we really had a desire to bring CarePortal to Greene County,” Flach said. “COVID slowed things down, but we are here today and thrilled to be able to partner with the county and the churches throughout Greene County to meet the needs of children and families in crisis.”

Kira Pospesel, commissioner of the Greene County Department of Social Services, said the platform will link needy families with churches that want to help.

“Every year around Christmastime, many people will reach out and ask what can they do for the children that we have in foster care,” Pospesel said. “Everyone loves for people to have a Christmas gift. At the Department of Social Services, Christmas is every day, not only for a gift — a coloring book, a gift card, a new computer — but it may be the things you see up in the portal that a caseworker has been requesting. It may be diapers, it may be the front door that needs to be replaced, it may be a bed to sleep on.”

Schenectady County was the first county in New York state to participate in the platform beginning in late 2018, and a year later, Albany County came on board.

“To date, just in those two counties, 1,900 children have been served throughout the Capital Region through churches using the CarePortal,” Flach said.

County caseworkers identify and vet the needs of families and children, input the requests into the CarePortal system, and then churches can choose to help by fulfilling those needs where they can.

“Churches do want to help, they just most of the time don’t know exactly where the needs are, how to help or what the needs are, and CarePortal will really simplify that process,” Flach said. “It goes into the system, it goes out to the churches, and the churches respond.”

In 2020, there were 1,059 calls to Child Protective Services in Greene County, Flach said, and those are families that could be helped through CarePortal.

There are essentially four situations in which the platform can help, Flach said — to help prevent a child from entering the foster care system; to stabilize biological, foster or adoptive families and kinship placements; aid with reunification with the biological family; or to help youth who are aging out of foster care begin their new life.

Assistance can range from providing beds or bedding to purchasing diapers or baby wipes, replacing a broken door or window, and more.

For one family in Albany County, help meant four new beds for the mom and her three children with autism.

“The four of them were sharing a mattress on the floor. That is very common in communities all around us,” Flach said. “That is the number one need throughout the portal, not only locally but nationwide. So when the churches showed up that day, that family of four each had their own bed.”

Eight churches in Greene County had signed up to participate in CarePortal as of the launch date — Gospel Community Church in Coxsackie, Lighthouse Church in Athens, Rock Solid Church in Hudson — which will meet the needs of families in Greene County, Full Life Church in Catskill, the United Methodist Churches in Catskill and Palenville, and St. Patrick’s Church of Catskill and Athens. All have been enrolled and trained to work with the portal, and it is hoped more will join, Flach said.

“An ongoing goal of Justice for Orphans is to continue to enroll churches to utilize the platform,” she said.

CarePortal’s launch in Greene County began with its very first request and response — a single mother with no present income who was diagnosed with COVID while pregnant with twins, who also has other health issues, including difficulty walking due to a leg injury.

“Her most pressing concern at this time is the need for diapers and due to safety concerns with the two toddlers, mom has their beds on the floor to ensure the children cannot jump off an elevated platform bed and hurt themselves,” Flach said. “This results in mom having to get up and down off the floor, despite her physical limitations in doing so. Safety rails for the two toddler beds will assist mom in keeping the children safe and preventing her from having to bend over to the floor to care for them.”

After a launch countdown, a representative from Gospel Community Church hit the “Yes I can help” button to assist the family by purchasing diapers and two bed rails for the toddlers.

The Rev. Bartly Heneghan from Gospel Community Church said his church will meet the needs of that family and others moving forward.

“We thought it was a great opportunity to help. People want to help, but they don’t know what the needs are,” Heneghan said. “Case workers identifying the needs make it a lot easier for us.”

See FAITH A2

Michael Pirrone, representing the community of St. Patrick’s Church of Athens and Catskill, said CarePortal helps faith-based groups come to the aid of families in a way that they need.

“We understand that there are needs and this provides a more direct way to meet the needs of people who are in need,” Pirrone said. “Instead of doing things helter skelter, this is a more organized way to help.”

Kathi Sewak, of Ravena, has been working with Justice for Orphans for years. Initially, the group focused on increasing awareness of adoption and foster care, but broadened its focus when they heard about CarePortal.

“It’s really difficult to ask most people to consider fostering or adopting — that is a very difficult ask and that’s where we started, to raise awareness of those needs, which are still there,” Sewak said. “But when I learned about CarePortal, more people — just about anyone — can get involved and help. Prevention is huge — some of these kids don’t even have to go into foster care if we can just provide the parents with the things that they need.”

Helping through CarePortal is voluntary for churches, and gives them a simple way to get involved, Greene County Legislator Ed Bloomer, R-Athens, said.

“There are needs, people who need help, and a church might be able to help with a specific request,” Bloomer said. “This gives them the opportunity to help — no one is obligated, no one is forced, it is strictly volunteer and it saves a great deal of money. It is win-win, certainly for the county and for the people in need.”

matically opted in.

The law under consideration by the town council mimics a similar law in the town of Colonie, McHugh said, and has become a popular option for municipalities statewide.

“We are imitating the town of Colonie, among others,” McHugh said. “A lot of them have done this, but the town of Colonie did the same law where they opted out of on-site consumption.”

The reasoning behind opting out of on-site consumption relates to the possibility of impaired driving following on-site consumption, and the fact that police do not presently have a testing method to determine whether an individual who has smoked marijuana is legally impaired to be behind the wheel, McHugh said.

“It is very difficult for police to enforce that right now because they don’t have the science and they don’t have the testing equipment to really do that like they do with blood-alcohol content,” the town supervisor said. “We are trying to avoid that situation where people are buying, consuming on-site, and then getting in their vehicles and driving away. Hopefully, they will buy it, take it home and do whatever they do.”

Coeymans Police Chief Douglas Keyer confirmed at the board’s Oct. 28 meeting that law enforcement does not have a testing method to determine impairment from marijuana.

“Every level of government that is responsible for this type of stuff is trying to come up with a test that will pass muster for identifying the presence of THC, but at what level? THC is the drug specific in cannabis that affects us and our motor function,” Keyer said. “Last I heard, they are close but not there yet, and what form of test that is going to take is yet to be determined.”

The proposed law still permits the sale of cannabis in the town, and the town would benefit from tax revenue generated by those sales, McHugh said.

Under the state law, there will be a 9% state excise tax on sales of marijuana and a 4% local tax. The county would receive 25% of the local tax revenue and the remaining 75% would go to the municipality where the dispensary is located.

If a dispensary were to be located in the village, the town and village would split the tax revenue, Town Councilman Zachary Collins said.

“If it’s in the town, we would get all 3%,” Collins said. “If it’s in the village, we would get 1.5%.”

Town Councilman Daniel Baker questioned how much revenue the town could collect from such a venture and said the revenue generated by a cannabis dispensary is unclear.

“A lot of people are thinking it’s a huge amount of tax dollars,” Baker said. “I don’t know how much it is going to be — 3% or 1.5% of what?”

Collins asked where consuming marijuana would be permitted.

“Anyplace where smoking is allowed,” Keyer responded.

The public hearing will be held Nov. 22 at 6:30 p.m. at Coeymans Town Hall, 18 Russell Ave., Ravenna.

Town adopts $2.8M budget

By Melanie Lekocevic
Capital Region Independent Media
COEYMANS — The town council adopted a $2.8 million budget for 2022.

The final general fund budget came in at $2,828,033, an increase of $133,698 compared to the 2021 budget of $2,694,335.

The council unanimously adopted the budget Nov. 4 following a public hearing where two local residents spoke.

Joy Iafallo, chairwoman of the RCS Community Business Association, said she would like to see resources allocated to draw business to the town.

“I would like to see some economic development put into the budget,” Iafallo said. “I don’t think there is even a line for it in the budget. Anything to have any kind of business attraction for our community to the town of Coeymans, I think — I don’t know what the amounts could be, but any amount would be able to help us.”

Town Supervisor George McHugh asked what economic development in a town budget would entail.

Iafallo said neighboring Greene County has countywide funds set aside to encourage business in the county.

“I know this is a county one, but ‘Buy in Greene’ is a program that they do in Greene County, which highlights all the businesses and they get everybody together and do basic advertisements and marketing plans for their area. It’s not business specific — it’s for all businesses.”

McHugh asked how much money is allocated by the county for the Buy in Greene program.

“It starts at about $20,000,” Iafallo said.

The town does allocate funding for a grant writer that helps to bring business to the town, McHugh said.

“We do have $10,500 for a grant writer who is there to work towards economic development grants, as well as other grants,” McHugh said. “So we do have $10,500 dedicated in the town budget, which sounds like it is more than half of what the whole Greene County has for economic development, and we are just one town.”

The town also has a welcoming atmosphere for new businesses, McHugh said.

“We set an environment that is fertile for economic development,” he said, including providing tax incentives, grants and support through the county’s Industrial Development Agency.

“I think if we are putting $10,500 and the entire Greene County is putting $20,000, I think we are doing pretty good,” McHugh said, adding that the town also allocates funds toward an engineer to help the grant writer draft grant applications that encourage economic development.

Resident Carol McDonald asked about a new position being added to the town’s highway department.

“We are putting in a new position called a deputy highway superintendent and that will run through next year,” McHugh responded.

The board voted later in the meeting to approve the creation of the new position, which will come out of the budget’s “A” fund. But at the same time, the town is eliminating a foreman’s position due to retirement. That salary was paid through the “DB” fund and the retiring employee will not be replaced.

The 2022 adopted budget also included salaries for elected officials, which remained flat from last year. The supervisor position earns $45,000 annually; each town council member earns $12,500; town justice is paid $23,000; highway superintendent earns $60,000; and the town clerk position pays $50,500.

That’s the Anatriello Agency difference!

“ I have had the privilege of working with Johna and the Anatriello Agency both professionally and personally. I am a retired insurance agent and underwriter and worked very closely with this agency for many years. I know how concerned they were to make sure they were providing the right coverage for their clients. When I retired I chose the Anatriello Agency as my personal agent because I knew that my insurance needs would be met. Because they are a small Agency every client gets the personal care that is so lacking in larger agencies. You can talk with them and they will listen. Letter to the Editor

Thank you

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the residents of Bethlehem for putting your trust in me to serve as your town board member. I intend to continue earning your trust each and every day, working collaboratively with residents, businesses and community groups from all across town.

I am grateful for the support I received and I feel privileged to have met so many people from our wonderful community during the last several months.

We all care so much for our town. We have many different perspectives, but we all have one thing in common – our desire to see the best for our community. We all want Bethlehem to be the best place to live, raise kids, pursue our dreams, own a small business and retire. And after knocking on approximately 3,000 doors, I believe that even more today than I when I started this journey back in January.

I will work tirelessly to make Bethlehem a place we can all be proud to call home. I am committed to ensuring everyone's voice is heard, respected and considered because at the end of the day it is always more important to get it right than to be right.

I am eager to begin our work together and to demonstrate that inclusiveness is the best way to move forward.

Finally, I want to thank my wife and daughters who were by my side and so understanding while I was out meeting voters and learning about issues important to residents. I could not have done this without their support.

Again, thank you to for putting your faith in me. Let's get to work!

Catskill cemetery participating in Wreaths Across America Day

CATSKILL —National nonprofit Wreaths Across America (WAA) has announced that the Town of Catskill Cemetery has once again joined in the effort to support the mission to "Remember, Honor, Teach," as an official location for 2021.

Wreaths Across America started as a simple gesture of thanks that has grown into a national movement of dedicated volunteers and communities coming together to not only remember the nation's fallen and honor their service, but to teach the next generation about the sacrifices made for us to live freely.

This year, there will be more than 2,700 participating locations placing wreaths on National Wreaths Across America Day – Saturday, Dec. 18 – with more than two million volunteers coming together at noon.

"We are forever grateful for the thousands of supporters who dedicate their time and effort to fulfilling our mission on a local level," said Karen Worcester, executive director of Wreaths Across America. "These individuals and their communities know the value of remembering the fallen, honoring those who currently serve and teaching the next generation about the sacrifices made for our freedom every day, and without their continued support, Wreaths Across America would not exist."

Those interested in sponsoring a wreath for Wreaths Across America are invited to visit the national Wreaths Across America web page to learn more. National Wreaths Across America Day is a free, non-political, community event open to all people.

Wreaths Across America is the non-profit organization best known for placing veterans' wreaths on the headstones of the nation's fallen at Arlington National Cemetery. However, the organization, in total, places more than 1.7 million sponsored wreaths at 2,557 participating locations nationwide and offers other programs throughout the calendar year. These programs include The Mobile Education Exhibit and Wreaths Across America Radio, among other education programs.

You can sponsor a wreath for $15 at <https://www.wreathscrossamerica.org/NYCTCC>. Each sponsorship goes toward a fresh balsam veteran's wreath that will be placed on the headstone of an American hero as the group endeavor to honor all veterans laid to rest at the Town of Catskill Cemetery this December.

Squirrel Syndrome sets in My biological clock has recently clicked onto fall. I have my annual dose of what I refer to as “Squirrel Syndrome.”

I get this anxious feeling deep down in the parts of me where the ancient animal lives and I start to scurry around the property trying to get all the jobs I wanted to get accomplished during the warm months done. I have so far resisted the primal urge to stuff my cheeks with peanuts while doing this for fear that the neighbors will worry, but it’s been hard.

Everywhere I look there are signs of the “big sleep” approaching. The gardens are wilted and what flowers remain are fading fast, in spite of the occasional warm weather. Brown, dried leaves are starting to collect under some of the plants and trees. I noticed one of the deer browsing on some of our perennials was carrying a legal pad, probably making out a winter menu or map of where the tastier plants can be found in our gardens. I burned our copy of “Bambi” recently.

I took a break and sat at the picnic table and watched one of my fellow squirrels hopping from garden to garden, trying to find seeds or nuts. I didn’t have the heart to tell him the deer had already eaten all of them. As often happens on such occasions, I had a little ponder.

We once had an impromptu gathering at a local restaurant. We had around a dozen old friends, the combined age of the group would have totaled over 600 years or so. The good old days and current medical conditions were the main topics of conversations. It was really enjoyable.

I looked around the group and couldn’t help thinking about my gardens. As a group, we looked a little wilted and bowed before the weather. The time of our big sleep is getting closer than most of us would like to admit. However, just as when a garden is at rest during the winter, life can be found with a little digging and warming.

It was comforting to find the signs of life in our little group — the eyes still sparkled, the smiles and laughter came easily and often. A shared memory would shed the white hair and wrinkles and 30 or 40 years would slip away and we were young again, excited by our journey down life’s dusty road.

Just as I have faith that my gardens will bloom again in the spring, it’s pretty easy at times like this to have the faith that my friends will bloom again in a garden further down the path.

The hopping little gray squirrel drew me out of ponder mode when he hopped close to the picnic table, having seen no movement to frighten him. I wished him well, which scared the shebangs out of him, and he flew up the nearby maple tree and proceeded to tell me in an angry voice what he thought of my intrusion into his search for lunch.

The idea of lunch reminded me that snack time was rapidly approaching. I reluctantly left the sun-warmed picnic table and the irate squirrel and retreated to the peace and quiet of the refrigerator. One must keep their strength up.

Thought for the week — “Experience is something you don’t get until just after you need it.” — Olivier

Until next week, may you and yours be happy and well.

Fall colors: It’s not over

I hope you escaped some of the serious flooding that some parts of the region experienced in recent days.

Yet another monsoon-like event recently dumped as much as 6 inches of rain on some of the higher elevations of the Catskills. My rain gauge only holds 5 inches and it was full by Tuesday afternoon. I would guess another inch fell at my house that did not get recorded.

Heavy rains such as this are more easily absorbed by the rapidly growing foliage during mid-summer, but by now, leaf growth and evapotranspiration rates have slowed to a standstill. The result is saturated soils that flood.

I always worry that Prattsville, in Greene County, will once more be washed away, as was the case when Tropical Storm Irene dumped about 20 inches of rain in 24 hours. As of yesterday, the Schoharie Creek was indeed at flood stage, but it had not reached the street level.

The “Beyfuss Brook,” aka the drainage ditch across the road from my house, turned into a raging river that would have easily swept a car away or drowned anyone who fell in it. Fortunately, after my road washed out earlier this summer, the local highway department installed more culverts and they seemed to do their job. Kudos to the highway guys once again.

I did not think I would ever say this, but I have to admit that this year’s fall color display has been a bit disappointing so far. In order to develop the intense and brilliant hues of shades of yellow, orange and gold produced by certain specific pigments, i.e. xanthophyll and carotene, it is critical for the chlorophyll pigment to disappear completely. Chlorophyll masks these pigments, which have been present in the leaves all season long. Chlorophyll degradation only happens when the plant shuts down water to the chloroplasts, which is where the pigment is produced. Cold weather, particularly hard freezes, trigger this process most quickly. This fall, we have yet to receive a single hard freeze, at press time, even at higher elevations in the Catskills.

GARDENING TIPS

I don’t think leafspot diseases, which were very common this wet summer, have much to do with this, but anything that causes premature leaf drop is always a factor. The golden color of sugar maple, our predominant tree species in the region, has appeared muted due to lingering chlorophyll in the leaves. It is certainly visible, but not as brilliant as we would like.

It is not only the yellow colors that are muted, but other pigments, which are responsible for the red, purple and deep maroon shades, require sunlight to fully develop. These chemicals are produced in the fall (for reasons no one understands) and are not present all season long. This fall has been pretty cloudy, except when it has been pouring rain.

So the combination of warm, cloudy or rainy days and night temperatures above freezing are the main reasons why it has been a bit disappointing. But I did say “so far.” Different tree species develop their fall colors at different times of the fall. Maples and hickories, sumac, birch, aspen, (poplar), hop hornbeam, black locust and ash are the first to show color, whereas red oak and beech are the last. These two major species are still pretty green in most locations and they will eventually turn red and golden yellow.

Beech in particular is usually the last tree species to turn and by the time that happens, we often have had enough frost and subsequent leaf loss to make the change less noticeable. Beech trees continue to photosynthesize quite late in the fall, provided there is adequate soil moisture. There is certainly plenty of soil moisture available.

I am noticing some particularly vivid fall color on beech right now that we don’t usually see, and the oaks are yet to come in many locations. Beech leaves sometimes go from green to brown, to gone, in a hurry, but this year I am observing some lovely shades of rusty, yellow appearing.

So, if it ever stops raining, and we finally get some frost and some sunny days, I think we will be treated to a later season of fall color than “normal.”

I expect that some of the beech and oak leaves will linger until Thanksgiving this year, especially in the valley towns.

To quote a line from the song “My Little Town,” by Paul Simon, “It’s not that the colors are black, it’s just imagination they lack.”

We don't have 30 waiting room chairs -

We have 30 years of expertise!

"You will hear again. That's a promise!"

"Home of the N-O-P" - No Out Of Pocket Hearing Aids for Empire Plan

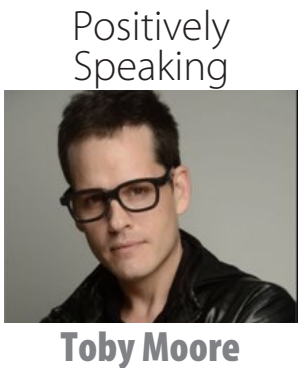

Ten years from now

When my dad told me four years ago he was going to be a syndicated columnist, I gave it little thought. I had confidence that he could do anything he wanted.

I didn't know much about his column. He was calling it "Positively Speaking!" and it was about having a positive mindset. That was nothing new to me; as far back as I can remember, he promoted thinking positively. He was a motivational speaker for a time.

I was a busy kid and was involved in many different sports. Whenever my dad drove me to practice, he'd pop in a cassette tape or a CD, and we listened to Zig Ziglar, Tony Robbins, Jim Rohn, Norman Vincent Peale, Napoleon Hill and many more. I would've rather listened to some '80's hair bands instead. I pretended not to hear, but I was listening.

As I grew older, I began to listen to them myself. In college, I was reading the books I'd heard about in the car with my dad.

He was a big thinker — he taught me that anything was possible as long as I believed and worked hard.

It's been three months since he passed away. He always kept a positive attitude about dying. If you were a fan of his columns, you probably remember that he didn't accept that he would die soon. He planned on living a few years longer.

About 10 days before he died, he asked me to continue writing his column on his behalf. It wasn't something I envisioned myself doing. I was apprehensive, but how do you tell your dying father no?

It wasn't easy figuring out who all of his contacts were with the newspapers. By the time I agreed to fulfill his wish to continue the column, he didn't have the energy to teach me how to get it to the editors every week.

Sometimes I post links to his old columns on social media. They consistently receive many more likes than mine. If you were a fan of my dad's columns, after reading my first few, you probably thought to yourself, "This kid doesn't have anywhere to go but up!"

I've enjoyed getting to know a couple of his old friends through this process. Lynda, with a "y," is of great encouragement; she will laugh when she reads that! Hi Lynda!

Another is a lady named Judith. I thought she was an editor for a newspaper for the first couple of weeks. She emailed me about how to be a better writer. She gave great advice; after a few emails, I figured out she was a writing friend of my dad's and not a newspaper editor. She and my father shared a love for writing.

Judith recently recommended I write a column about how my dad might have been if he lived another 10 years.

That's a tricky thing to write.

He was very excited about the company we started, Cubestream. He and our partner Ted helped to develop it from the beginning. He had big plans to make it an international company.

We would have gone on a couple of family road trips. We planned on doing one earlier this year, but he was too sick. He wanted to go out west to see the mountains and the buffalo like we did when I was young.

He would've enjoyed seeing his two grandsons, Caleb and Noah, graduate from high school — they were everything to him.

He may have even started lifting weights again. When I was a child, he was a big weightlifter and was very strong.

As he grew older and became more affectionate, he made sure to let us know how much he loved us.

In his final year, he frequently wrote emails to my two siblings and me telling us things about his life we never knew to help us understand him better.

It's hard to say all the things he might have done if he lived another 10 years, but one thing I do know — he would have continued to be more loving, affectionate and caring.

Love you, Dad.

State announces $1.5M to grow Farm-to-School program

By Melanie Lekocevic
Capital Region Independent Media

ALBANY — The state has allocated $1.5 million for the Farm-to-School program, bringing locally grown food to schools around New York state.

New York State Agriculture Commissioner Richard Ball last week announced the funding is available to eligible school districts. The Farm-to-School program aims to connect students in kindergarten through 12th grade by increasing the use of locally grown food on school menus.

“The Farm-to-School Program is a great way to ensure New York’s students have access to fresh, healthy foods and they understand where their meals come from,” Ball said. “I’m proud that this program continues to help schools tap into the local food movement and serve more healthy lunches with products either grown in their school garden or purchased from their community farmers. This is a win-win for our agricultural industry and for our state’s future leaders.”

Applications for Round 6 of the program can be submitted to the state through Dec. 30, according to the Department of Agriculture.

Students benefit from locally grown, healthy foods, New York State Education Commissioner Betty Rosa said in a statement.

“Students that have access to healthy, locally sourced food are not only better prepared to be successful in school, they also learn of the benefits of a well-balanced, nutritious diet,” Rosa said. “New York’s Farm-to-School Program has been a wonderful way to supplement food options in schools across the state and I thank Gov. Kathy Hochul for expanding this important program.”

Eligible schools include public, private and not-for-profit schools and other entities participating in the National School Lunch Program, the School Breakfast Program or the Summer Food Service Program, that serve students in kindergarten through 12th grade, according to the department.

The program provides grant funding of up to $100,000 per project and can cover costs including employing a local or regional farm-to-school coordinator; training food service staff in procuring and preparing locally produced food; purchasing equipment to increase capacity in school kitchens to prepare and serve locally produced food; making capital improvements for the transport or storage of locally produced food; and creating new meals for the menu.

Up to $500,000 has been earmarked for applicants that have not received a Farm-to-

School grant in previous years.

Grant applications must be received by Dec. 30 by 4 p.m.

Since the launch of the Farm-to-School Program in 2015, $6.8 million has been committed to support Farm-to-School projects across the state. The New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets has awarded a total of 119 projects, benefiting hundreds of school districts in every region in the state, according to the department.

The Farm-to-School Program is part of the state’s ongoing efforts to combat food insecurity, increase the amount of fresh, local foods served in schools, and to connect New York’s farmers to new markets.

It is also a component of the No Student Goes Hungry initiative and the New York State 30% initiative, which increases the reimbursement schools receive for lunches from 5.9 cents per meal to 25 cents per meal for any district that purchases at least 30% of its ingredients from New York farms.

Last year, 47 school districts achieved the purchasing requirement, with some school districts spending over 40% of their lunch budget on New York state farm products, according to the state Department of Agriculture.

DEC: 230K pounds of pesticides, chemical waste collected

New York State Department of Environmental Conservation Commissioner Basil Seggos announced the collection of 230,000 pounds of pesticides and chemical waste at two CleanSweepNY events this year.

The first collection event, held during the week of May 10, included counties in the Hudson Valley (DEC Region 3), and the second event was held during the week of Oct. 11, and included counties in the Capital Region (DEC’s Region 4).

DEC’s CleanSweepNY program helps promote healthy and sustainable communities by providing opportunities for proper disposal of unwanted and/or obsolete pesticides and other chemicals.

“To advance New York’s ongoing efforts to protect public health and our environment it’s critical to remove excess pesticides and other chemical wastes from our communities and landfills,” Seggos said. “We are pleased that so many farmers, businesses and institutions participated in CleanSweepNY events this year and that so many New Yorkers recognize the importance of safely removing potential hazards from the environment.”

The spring CleanSweepNY event collected more than 86,600 pounds of chemical wastes from 89 participants in Ulster, Sullivan, Orange, Rockland, Dutchess, Putnam and Westchester counties.

The fall event collected over 143,500 pounds of chemical wastes from 69 participants in Albany, Columbia, Delaware, Greene, Montgomery, Otsego, Rensselaer, Schenectady and Schoharie counties.

DEC employees visited four sites for the collection of waste chemicals unsafe to transport due to the poor condition of pesticide containers and storage areas. DEC also facilitated safe disposal for participants that had difficulty safely handling and transporting waste chemicals to collection locations.

DEC schedules and organizes CleanSweepNY events in collaboration with the New York State Department of Transportation. Collection events were held at multiple DOT facilities.

The 2021 events mark the 29th and 30th collection events administered by the CleanSweepNY program since its inception in 2002. The program has resulted in the collection of more 2 million pounds of chemical wastes across New York state, as well as the safe collection of more than 950 pounds of liquid elemental mercury.

In addition, approximately 6,100 plastic pesticide containers, including many 55- and 30-gallon triple-rinsed pesticide drums, which would otherwise have been disposed of in landfills, were collected and properly recycled.

The program is endorsed by Cornell Cooperative Extension, the Agricultural Container Recycling Council, Soil and Water Conservation Districts, the New York Farm Bureau, and related agricultural associations.

CleanSweepNY services are available to agricultural and non-agricultural professional pesticide applicators, schools, and certain businesses that use pesticides such as golf courses, cemeteries, and marinas. Homeowners cannot participate, but information about reducing household hazardous waste is available on DEC’s website.

I wanted to thank everyone within the Ravena / Coeymans / Selkirk communities for their continued support over the last year. It has been difficult at times but we have managed to get through it and provide a helpful community service. We are back to regular business hours Mon - Fri 10am - 5pm / Sat 10am - 3pm / Closed on Sundays

Currently, with the volume of bottles and cans we are only taking drop offs - bring in your empties, place them in a designated area, we take your name and then give you the earliest time frame to come back or any time thereafter to collect your money. Since opening in July 2018, we have helped raise approximately $52,500, which is almost 924,000 bottles/cans for 50 different organizations which anyone can donate to.

We look forward to servicing the community in the future. If you have any questions regarding operation, donations or fundraisers please reach out....

Bethlehem girls' tennis defeated in state semifinals

By Melanie Lekocevic
Capital Region Independent Media

BETHLEHEM — The Bethlehem girls' varsity tennis team ended their season Friday with a tough loss to Syosset in the team state semifinals.

The team was undefeated for the regular season with a 15-0 record and won both the Suburban Council and Section II titles.

The perfect regular season record earned the team a trip to Flushing Meadows in Queens, in New York City, for the New York State Public High School Athletics Association girls' tennis team championships, according to the Bethlehem school district website.

The championship team earned a spot in the state competition by defeating Section III's Fayetteville-Manlius by a score of 6-1, according to the district.

The girls' tennis team at Bethlehem Central High School had a perfect 15-0 season, but was defeated Friday in the state semifinals in New York City.

The victory sent the team to the state contest at the USTA Billie Jean National Tennis Center in Flushing Meadows, the home of the famed U.S.

Open.

This year was the first time in the history of the New York State Public

High School Athletics Association that a team tennis champion was named.

While the Bethlehem team fell to Syosset on Friday by a score of 7-0 in the team state semifinals, their undefeated season was a memorable one.

The following students competed in the 2021 season: freshmen Hope Brown, Kripa Hongalgi, Shayna Huli, Rayka Kogut, Zara Pattison, Anna Peles and Nina Vargas; sophomores Paige Davenport, Purvayi Patil and Kirsten Phang; juniors Suzanna Amirbekian, Isabelle Brand, Audrey Henson, Natalee Huli, Catherine Thibault and Genevieve Vollaro; and seniors Madalyn Brand, Archisha Kancha, Elizabeth Krege and Emma Liu.

The division one team tennis championship was won by the team from Scarsdale.

DEC: New regulations to improve conservation on hunting lands

ALBANY — New York State Department of Environmental Conservation Commissioner Basil Seggos has announced the adoption of new regulations governing the public use of Wildlife Management Areas (WMA) and the simultaneous repeal of three obsolete area-specific regulations.

These regulations will become effective Jan. 1, 2022.

DEC's Division of Fish and Wildlife manages 125 WMAs and several Unique and Multiple Use Areas across the state. Collectively known as the WMA system, these areas comprise nearly 250,000 acres.

"Visitor use and enjoyment of DEC's wildlife management areas across the state have increased significantly over the years," Seggos said. "To protect these special places for future generations and sustainably welcome visitors, DEC is updating our rules to ensure the WMA system continues to meet the primary goals of conserving wildlife and providing opportunities to safely hunt, trap, and appreciate wildlife."

DEC adopted the new regulations following a public comment period earlier this year. New regulations include provisions to:

- Restrict the use of motor vehicles and some motorized equipment, such as chainsaws, in WMAs. Snowmobiles will be allowed on designated routes covered by a minimum of three inches of snow or ice and only from the close of the regular big game hunting season until March 31. This measure will help prevent the degradation of trails and habitat, particularly during winter and spring thaws.
- Prevent the introduction of aquatic invasive species.
- Restrict the discharge of firearms other than for hunting or trapping to designated areas. Only paper targets will be allowed.
- Restrict the use of boats to electric or non-powered boats. Boats may not be stored or anchored overnight on WMAs.
- Require that dogs be kept on a leash and under control. Exceptions include when dogs are being legally used for hunting, training for hunting on lands designated as dog-training areas during training seasons, or when participating in a DEC-licensed field trial.

Visitors to New York

State's WMAs should always be aware of the rules governing the

WMA. Each WMA has a webpage that lists featured activities, available facilities, any site-specific restrictions, and a map of the area.

DEC honors veterans with annual free fishing day

New York State Department of Environmental Conservation Commissioner Basil Seggos announced that New York state will honor veterans with the sixth and final free fishing day of 2021, on Thursday, Nov. 11.

New York's Free Fishing Days encourage more people to get outdoors each season to enjoy the state's world-class fishing opportunities.

"We thank all of New York's veterans for their service to our county and hope that the upcoming free fishing day provides an opportunity to spend time with family and friends or even the chance to introduce someone new to the sport," Seggos said. "This year, anglers can expect expanded fishing opportunities throughout the state thanks to our recently implemented Trout Stream Management Plan and take advantage of a catch-and-release trout season on inland trout streams."

New this year, DEC is increasing fishing opportunities for anglers with the state's new catch-and-release trout stream season. The new season, which began Oct. 16 and runs through March 31, expands opportunities for anglers so they can enjoy New York's trout stream fishing resources year-round.

Anglers are required to use only artificial lures and immediately release trout they catch. The catch-and-release season applies to trout streams only. Anglers should consult DEC's regulations guide for regulations associated with lakes and ponds that harbor trout before fishing.

Free Fishing Day participants are reminded that, although the requirement for a fishing license is waived during Free Fishing Days, all other fishing regulations remain in effect.

When not participating in Free Fishing Days, anyone 16 years of age or older must have a current state fishing license to fish in New York. Fishing licenses are valid for 365 days from the date of purchase. More information on purchasing a fishing license can be found on DEC's website at www.dec.ny.gov.

DEC's Free Fishing Days program began in 1991 to give people who might not fish the opportunity to try the sport at no cost, as well as to encourage people to support conservation by purchasing a New York State fishing license.

To find out about angling opportunities near you, visit the Places to Fish pages on DEC's website. For more information on expanded trout fishing opportunities on inland streams consult the Interactive Trout Stream Fishing Map on DECinfo Locator at www.dec.ny.gov. The map provides trout stream anglers with one-stop shopping for information about stocking, fishing access, season dates and regulations.

Praise and reward go a long way

By Charlene Marchand
For Capital Region Independent Media

It is a good mental health exercise to remind ourselves each day of all the positive aspects of our lives, be they ever so small. This type of “fitness program” helps to keep us balanced and positive. It is especially important to be grateful for loving families and close friends.

As often happens, we can become complacent about the good deeds, generous people, great weather, et al. that surround us. To say it another way, most of us can take the upsides of our day for granted. And so it is with our companion animals – their good and desirable behavior, that is.

The premier tenet of positive reinforcement is to reward all desired behavior – in other words, don’t take it for granted! If Hugo has been quiet by our side while we read a good book or watch a program or iron our clothes, remember to periodically reward that lovely, devoted, passive behavior with a word, pat or a treat.

When Tommy Tom Cat explodes through the door at a blistering pace and Hugo leaps up to get in “his” practice lap for the Indianapolis 500, dear old dad (the pack leader) may voice his displeasure.

SOFT PAWS

Nothing wrong with that, IF he didn’t take those two hours of quiet time for granted.

When mom and Hugo are out for their daily stroll and the perfect puppy has trotted merrily by her side, with a lot of “at attention” eye glances, it is then that she should be rewarding and reinforcing her canine son. Don’t take it for granted.

When that tantalizing grey squirrel scoots across mom’s path and Hugo decides that he’s entered in the tractor pull at the Chatham Fair, a redirection IS probably in order – but the truth is that the lesson will be learned faster, and compliance with the rules will be more reliable, if we are thankful for and reward that gentle dog by our side. Don’t take it for granted.

The same rules apply to Strawberry Shortcake. While she’s busy exercising those retractable feline nails on her posts or scratching boards, our praise should be lavish, effervescent. Falling into the trap of correcting Minnie’s manicuring enthusiasm when she heads for the new lounge, will render the lesson longer to learn. We took the desirable behavior, which was to have her nails done at the feline manicure station, for granted. Always a mistake.

Here’s my hit list: Never take eye contact from any companion animal species for granted. Praise and reward. Is Herman sitting quietly waiting his turn at the dog doctor? Praise and reward. Did Polly the Puppy quickly squat and “do her business” while in the middle of a torrential downpour? Don’t take it for granted. Is Gorgeous George patiently waiting for you to finish dusting before his street patrol? Don’t take it for granted. You will find those quiet downtimes increasing with age!

McCoy honors county veterans for their service

ALBANY — From the Revolutionary War to the War on Terror, thousands of Albany County residents have put their lives on the line for their community, and they deserve to know that their service has not gone unnoticed, county officials said. Albany County Executive Daniel P. McCoy recognized two exceptional individuals who have bravely served the country at a ceremony Nov. 4.

The biannual Honor a Living Veteran ceremony was held last Thursday at Crossgates Mall. It was the first time the ceremony has been held since the COVID-19 pandemic started.

Two county veterans were honored during the service — Penny Lee Deere and Hartley Williams.

Penny Lee Deere is a 65-year-old veteran who enlisted in the United States Army at the age of 19, and served in the Gulf War. When she wasn’t on active duty, she founded Mindbody-soulpenny, Support Our Troops/Art4Vets, and Listening Library, all of which are programs to help veterans after service.

Hartley “Willie” Williams is an 87-year-old veteran who enlisted in the United States Air Force at the age of 19, and served in the Korean War. Williams participated in Airborne Electronics Navigation Equipment Repair during his service, and moved to Antigua, where he was the Rotary President. He returned to Albany County to live out his retirement with his wife.

This was the 14th Honor A Living Veterans ceremony McCoy has hosted since 2013. Some 40 veterans have been honored since that time, McCoy said.

A scientific approach to sustainable vegetable gardening

By Thomas Christopher
For Capital Region Independent Media

The title of Robert Kourik's new book is "Sustainable Food Gardens," a must-have for those who want to raise their own food in an environmentally friendly manner. "Myths & Solutions" is the subtitle, and Robert devotes plenty of text to exposing the former and proposing the latter.

I should at this point share the fact that I have been an admirer of Robert Kourik's work for many years, and that I wrote the foreword to this book. I do not benefit financially from its sales, though I do intend to put it to work in my garden.

As the spouse of a scientist and someone trained to seek out evidence-based solutions, I am often frustrated by the gardening media, where opinions readily pass themselves off as facts and tradition commonly trumps science. Robert's writings are refreshingly different in this regard. He's a dogged researcher, and an avid reader of horticultural journals and reports. He's not afraid to contradict popular opinion, although he's more interested in getting to the root of the issue (a special knowledge of plant roots, incidentally, and how their habits affect plant growth and maintenance is one of Robert's accomplishments and the subject of a chapter in this book).

Robert has had his hands in the soil for a long time. He started on of the first organic landscape-maintenance companies in this country back in 1974 and he is still experimenting with new techniques and testing new methods. He was a personal friend, for example, of Bill Mollison, half of the Australian duo that founded the Permaculture movement, and Robert shares insights that he learned from this sustainable gardening pioneer.

Robert's not slow, however, to depart from Permaculture dogma when he finds it contradicting peer-reviewed horticultural studies or his own experience. Indeed, Robert devotes 25 pages to a largely positive critique of permaculture, suggesting, however, ways in which its teachings may be adjusted to better reflect the realities of American suburban gardening.

Robert doesn't hesitate to call out his own mistakes as well. He devotes a full page of this book to decrying a list of "dynamic accumulators" he published in 1986.

Dynamic accumulators are plants that will, through the action of their roots, bring into solution and concentrate in their tissues minerals from the soil, making them available ultimately to their less enterprising neighbors in the garden. Robert has since come to question the reliability of his sources for the original list, and though he still maintains the value of the concept, he includes lists in this present book based on more reliable research such as the meticulous work of the late Dr. James Duke of the United States Department of Agriculture.

"Sustainable Food Gardens" is a remarkably comprehensive guide that will benefit both beginners and experienced gardeners alike, taking them from the details of "Nurturing the Soil" (Chapter 4) to "Attracting Beneficial Insects" (Chapter 11) and "Designing Sustainable Gardens" (Chapter 12). He has even included a chapter (Chapter 13) on "Sustainable Garden Play," as there should be room in such a guide for ideas of how to create children's games, as well as a recipe for persimmon margaritas (as well as many others, including "mocktails" for those who prefer their beverages and play to be alcohol-free).

I don't always agree with Robert. For example, he cites in this book the publications of Professor Arthur Shapiro of the University of California, Davis, which emphasize the beneficial role that introduced plants play in hosting butterflies and caterpillars in suburban California. This seems to me to be contradicted by the findings of ecologists such as Dr. Douglas Tallamy of the University of Delaware and Dr. Desirée Narango of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst. I respect the fact, though, that Robert is not expressing a personal opinion but rather the peer-reviewed results of legitimate research. I would love to listen in on a debate between the respective scientists.

As a paperback book priced at $69.95, this might seem a costly purchase, but I believe its 462 information-packed pages make it a bargain. If nothing else, Chapter 8, "Free Fertilizers," will quickly save you back the cover price and more, while putting your gardening on a more sustainable, more environmentally friendly path. I highly recommend this book for any gardener's winter reading.

Is taxing Social Security fair?

Dear Rusty: Taxing Social Security benefits isn't fair. It would benefit everyone if seniors could earn as much as possible without having their Social Security taxed. We would still be paying into Social Security, which would help the fund.

I also feel that all people earning over $100,000 should pay into Social Security because they can afford it. This would help fund Social Security without hurting anyone financially. Many seniors are struggling financially and should be able to earn as much as we can without a portion of our Social Security being taxed.

Signed: Overtaxed Senior

Dear Overtaxed Senior: Few would argue that paying income tax on Social Security benefits is fair. Nevertheless, Congress enacted taxation of Social Security benefits in 1983 as part of a reform package which restored Social Security to solvency at the time.

When the law was first enacted, 50% of SS benefits were taxable for single tax filers who earned more than $25,000 and for married couples who earned more than $32,000. That was the law until 1993 when Congress added another threshold for both single and married filers. The 1993 law allowed up to 85% of SS benefits to be taxed for single filers who earned more than $34,000 and for married filers earning more than $44,000.

Ever since they were enacted, those laws have been viewed as unfair by many senior organizations and especially by the individuals who paid income tax on their benefits.

SOCIAL SECURITY MATTERS

The unfortunate reality is that eliminating income tax on Social Security benefits without also implementing other offsetting reforms would exacerbate Social Security's now tenuous financial condition (income tax on benefits added $41 billion to Social Security's revenue in 2020). Thus, calls today for repealing income tax on Social Security benefits go largely unheeded. It's worth noting that 13 U.S. states also levy a state income tax on Social Security benefits.

Although the payroll taxes you pay into Social Security while working are different from income taxes on your benefits, people earning over $100,000 today do pay into Social Security through a FICA tax (or self-employment tax) on their earnings. Paying this tax is what entitles you to receive Social Security benefits.

The 2021 threshold after which SS contributions are no longer taken from earnings is $142,800, and this amount goes up a bit each year. But even completely removing that payroll tax cap and further taxing higher earners would not fully resolve Social Security's current financial issues.

Social Security's trustees predict that monthly benefits are at risk of reduction starting in 2034 unless Congress acts to reform the program. Eliminating income tax on benefits is one of many suggestions now being considered in reform proposals, as is increasing (or eliminating) the payroll tax cap. Whether Congress will include either of those suggestions in future Social Security reform legislation is anyone's guess.

So, while we agree that levying income tax on Social Security benefits amounts to "double taxation" (because you also pay income tax on your earnings used to qualify for Social Security), taxing your Social Security income is, nevertheless, permitted under current law.

As unpalatable as that law may be, and as unfortunate the effect is on struggling seniors, the AMAC Foundation can only offer guidance on how existing Social Security laws and regulations affect those who contact us. However, our parent company, the Association of Mature American Citizens, is very well aware that paying income tax on Social Security "isn't fair" and regularly lobbies Congress on that topic.

Say ‘no’ to holiday weight gain

Here’s an interesting fact — a deer can walk by a pack of lions that has already made its kill, without the fear of being attacked. Why? Because the deer instinctively knows the lion won’t eat more than it needs.

Like the lion, humans have that built-in mechanism, too. But, unfortunately, that mechanism has been silenced, leading us down the road to obesity and chronic diseases.

Hunger and fullness is regulated by the part of your brain called the hypothalamus and when you’ve had enough food to satisfy your needs, signals are sent to the hypothalamus, registering fullness.

A study published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition stated that when two groups of children ages 3 and 5 were given large portions of macaroni, the 3-year-olds stopped eating when they were satisfied, but the 5-year-olds kept stuffing themselves.

According to Barbara Rolls, Ph.D., of Pennsylvania State University, “Learned behavior overtakes instinct between the ages of 3 and 5. So like the lion, the younger group in that experiment instinctively stopped eating when satisfied while the older group learned to clean their plates.”

Growing up in an Italian/Irish household, food was the focus of all meals, especially dinner. My brothers and I learned pretty quickly that if your plate wasn’t clean, there wouldn’t be any dessert.

And this is partly why many people gain weight, especially during the holidays. So when we continually ignore our body’s natural instincts and overeat, that instinct goes into hibernation and it can take years to coax it out.

Reprogramming your body’s natural ability to regulate appetite can be challenging, but not impossible, if you start incorporating these tips.

It takes approximately 20 minutes for fullness signals to transmit from the stomach back to the brain, so start chewing your food slowly and savoring the taste of it.

CONCEPTS IN FITNESS

MARY SCHOEPE

Let’s face it — we live in a fast-paced world. But eating too quickly often results in gas, bloating and other digestive problems, like acid reflux. When you eat in a rush, you’re more likely to swallow air along with your food, which results in gas and bloating. Putting down your fork in between bites might just save you some discomfort later on.

Another way to reprogram your body’s natural hunger cues is to make lunch the largest meal of the day. According to Ayurveda, lunch is the most important meal of the day because this is the time of the day when your digestion is strongest. Dinner is when your appetite is the weakest, so dinner should be your smallest meal of the day and should be eaten before 7 p.m., if possible.

Learning to eat intuitively — meeting your body’s true physical needs for fuel and nourishment — will help you naturally reach the healthiest weight for your one-of-a-kind body.

Weaver's Guild hosts 43rd annual show and sale

NORTH GREENBUSH — The Hudson-Mohawk Weavers' Guild 43rd Annual Show & Sale will be held 2-8:30 p.m. Nov. 12; 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Nov. 13; and 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Nov. 14.

Big changes are in store for this year's event, as the Show & Sale moves to Pat's Barn, 110 Deforest Drive in the Rensselaer Tech Park in North Greenbush.

After going virtual for the 2020 Show & Sale, the Guild is thrilled to be back in person at a new, larger venue. After outgrowing its previous home, the event moves to an equally historic, new location of Pat's Barn, which offers better accessibility (including an elevator), more space, and ample free parking.

More than 40 handweavers will exhibit and sell their work at the Show & Sale, making it the largest display of handweaving in the Northeast. Guild members work all year to prepare more than 2,500 items for sale.

Pat's Barn, a 200-year-old landmark, serves as the new home of the event, with two full floors of exhibits.

The Show & Sale will include housewares such as rugs and table linens, garments including scarves, shawls and jackets, as well as holiday gifts such as cards and ornaments.

The event features a wide range of gift options suitable for everyone's holiday shopping list.

More than 500 people are expected to attend this year's event.

The show draws attendees from a wide radius, with visitors coming from Connecticut, Massachusetts, Vermont and even Ohio. Admission and off-street parking are free.

The Show & Sale is staffed exclusively by Guild members, giving the public a chance to meet the makers and learn more about this craft.

Daily fashion shows give visitors the opportunity to see how these unique handwoven items can be styled and feature both men's and women's fashions.

Guild members will also continuously demonstrate both handweaving and spinning using a range of equipment types.

"We missed interacting with the public during the pandemic, and we are eager to reconnect with our local audience, which has been so supportive over the years," said Weavers' Guild President Jan Rowell. "Guild members have gotten through the pandemic by focusing on their craft, so we will have even more variety to choose from this year! The Show & Sale is also a great opportunity for newcomers to get involved in the guild and this craft. We will have information on local teachers and resources at the event."

For a preview of the event, check out the Hudson-Mohawk Weavers' Guild Youtube channel, which includes interviews, demonstrations and other content produced for the 2020 virtual Show & Sale.

Festive Holiday Gifts for Pets

FAMILY FEATURES
Spreading holiday cheer with loving gifts is a tradition for many people, and families often include their pets in the fun to make those happy moments even brighter. Festive apparel, toys, treats and more can help pet parents show appreciation to their animal friends throughout the season.

From dogs and cats to reptiles, guinea pigs and other lovable pets, a retailer like PetSmart has gift ideas that can delight pets of all shapes and sizes. Plus, with the option to “buy now, pay later” through Afterpay, pet parents have more flexible payment options when shopping online or in stores.

Consider some of this season’s top holiday gifts for pets, and find even more gift ideas and stocking stuffers at PetSmart.com or in stores.

A Festive Fit for Reptiles
Comfy pajama sets don’t just have to be for friends and family. Fun, seasonal attire can also help make reptilian pets a part of the festivities. Options like this Merry & Bright Lumberjack Reptile Costume provide your bearded dragon with a warm, comfortable and adorable outfit you can easily slip on and off.

Aquarium Ready Swimming Santa
Deck the halls of your underwater world with this Merry & Bright Scuba Santa Aquarium Ornament. It’s an easy way to decorate for your fish friends with this fun and colorful underwater Santa. This ornament can add seasonal cheer to your aquatic decor and your home.

Pamper Your Pup with New Shampoo
Freshen your pet’s coat before guests arrive with a 2-in-1 shampoo and conditioner. Despite the hustle and bustle of the season, the Burt’s Bees 2-in-1 Tearless Puppy Shampoo & Conditioner can keep your pet’s coat clean and shiny all season long. Made with nourishing buttermilk to soothe skin and soften fur, the shampoo allows you to groom your pet with gentle, natural ingredients.

A Kitty Countdown Advent Calendar
If your cat made the nice list this year, you can include him or her in the countdown with the Merry & Bright Holiday Advent Calendar for cats featuring a 25-day countdown with one toy for each day. With daily surprises including glittering ball and bell toys or catnip, the calendar provides plenty of opportunities for your kitty to hunt, stalk, swat and pounce all season long.

Celebrate Smaller Pets with Costumes
While it’s easy to include cats and dogs in the action with toys and treats, don’t forget the smaller furry family members. You can keep your guinea pig on the gift list this holiday season with this Merry & Bright Christmas Tree Small Pet Holiday Costume. It slips on and off easily for a comfortable fit to provide even more fun.
