Residents clamoring for lower speed limits

Capital Region Independent Media

COEYMANS — The town has begun the process of requesting lower speed limits from the state following a spate of requests from local residents. "We have gotten a lot of phone calls about speed limit requests," Town Supervisor George McHugh said at the July 22 meeting of the Coeymans Town Council.

Local residents are calling for lower speed limits on town roads including Bushendorf, Biechman and Blossom Hill roads, where the speed limit is 40 mph, McHugh said.

There is a process the determine if there was town must undergo before any speed restrictions can be changed, he said.

"We cannot set our speed limits," McHugh said. "We have to get the state to allow us to do that. There is a process where the town clerk has to request in writing after the town board does a resolution requesting that the county highway superintendent request to the state DOT (Department of Transportation) to do some kind of a survey on our roads and to justify whether or not we can lower the speed limits."

McHugh spoke with Town Highway Superintendent Scott Searles to a reason why any town roads should have a speed limit over 30 mph.

"He couldn't think of any. I can't think of any," McHugh said.

He pointed out the distinction between town roads — roads that are under the jurisdiction of the town — and roads in the town, some of which are operated by the county or state. The request to the county highway superintendent only applies to roads operated by the Town Councilman Daniel Baker supported the move to lower the speed limit to 30 mph, pointing out that some state thoroughfares are at that speed limit in areas.

"When you come down (Route) 9W, it goes from 45 down to 30 (mph), (Route) 144 goes from 55 to 30, but we are getting pushback in getting these town roads from 40 to 30," Baker said. "To me, it doesn't make any sense.'

Town roads are smaller, don't have traffic lines and are largely residential, McHugh pointed out.

Larger towns do have the ability to change speed limits on town roads, but Coeymans does not meet the criteria, McHugh

Town officials are trying to get the speed limit reduced from 40 mph to 30 mph on all town-owned roads in Coeymans.

If you have vaccine questions, ask, doctors say

By Kate Lisa Courtesy of Columbia-Greene Media

New York doctors and health care workers want people with questions about the COVID vaccine to do one thing: Ask. No vaccine-related question is silly or unacceptable, infectious disease experts said last Tuesday, citing common concerns about the one- or two-dose vaccine to protect against coronavirus

COVID-19. "If you have questions, ask," said Dr. Anja Bottler, chief of infectious disease at Unity Hospital within Rochester Regional Health. "Don't just sit there and pout and get stuck in your thinking hole. Ask questions. Talk to other people. Get a feeling on what is the right thing for yourself to do."

Bottler also works at United Memorial Medical Center in Batavia, and regularly sees patients from all backgrounds.

About a quarter of New Yorkers eligible to receive the COVID vaccine, or about 3.5 million adults, have opted not to get the shot. More than 68.3% of state residents ages 18 and older are fully

Misinformation about the COVID-19 vaccines has discouraged some people from getting inoculated, vaccinated against the upper respiratory disease, which has killed more than 54,226 New Yorkers to date, according to the U.S. Centers For Disease Control and Prevention.

More than 74.9% of New York adults have at least one vaccine dose as of FDA & QUICK APPROVAL

"People are skittish about the vaccination because of the FDA approval," said Dr. Alan Sanders, chief of the Infectious Diseases Division at Albany Medical Center. "I'm not trying to be flip about this — I'm not sure a lot of these individuals have knowledge that the FDA has been involved with approval of vaccines for many, many decades."

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the state's vaccine Clinical Task Force separately approved Pfizer and Moderna's two-dose coronavirus vaccines in December under Emergency Use Authorization. Johnson & Johnson's one-shot vaccine was approved for emergency use in late February.

U.S. patients frequently use medications and treatments that are not FDA-approved, Sanders said. Physicians often prescribe off-label medications.

"Justice for Orphans is a local faith-based nonprofit and we educate, equip and inspire the faith community to step in and care for children and families in crisis through adoption, foster care and kinship care," founder Sandra Flach said. "One of our biggest programs is Care Portal, which is a technology platform that connects child welfare agencies with churches so churches can meet the needs of local kids in crisis."

Justice for Orphans is celebrating its 10th anniversary in November, but began working with Care Portal in 2018 in Schenectady County and in late 2019 added Albany County.

Care Portal is a national technology platform launched in March 2015 by The Global Orphan Project, headquartered in Kansas City, that brings faith and government entities together to meet the needs of children and families in crisis, according to the group's website. The group has helped 100,000 children nationwide so far.

explained.

"If you have 10,000 or more residents, you have a town first class — you have certain privileges and rights," he said. "If you are less than 10,000, which is the town of Coeymans, you are a town of the second class and you have other privileges. One of the privileges if you are a town of the first class, we could, on our own, set the speed limits on our town roads. Because we are not, we have to go through this process."

Councilman Town Zachary Collins read a resolution authorizing Town Clerk Cindy Rowzee to submit to the Albany County highway superintendent a request to reduce the speed limit on all roads operated by the town to 30 mph. Town Councilwoman Linda Bruno seconded the motion.

The resolution was adopted unanimously.

"This gets the ball rolling and we can get the superintendent of highways to start the process for us," McHugh said.

maybe be headed to foster care if things at home are not stabilized," Flach said. "Sometimes it is to help make a foster placement or kinship placement. A lot of what is asked for is beds bedding, cribs, car seats, things like that. It is always child centered."

In one case, a grandmother was willing to take in her grandchildren who were in crisis but didn't have beds for them. The children's case worker entered the request for beds into the system and a local church stepped up and provided bunkbeds, enabling the grandmother to care for the children.

It is up to the church to determine if they can and want to meet the needs of the family in question.

"In three years, our churches using Care Portal have served over 1,600 Capital Region kids in just those two counties,' Flach said.

The group is in the process of adding Greene County to the list, which would connect willing local churches to Care Portal and then social service case workers would enter requests for families in need, Flach said. Getting approved in Rensselaer County is also in the works.

"Our goal at Justice for Orphans is to bring Care Portal to all 11 Capital Region counties, one Flach's organization, which is run by volunteers and is financed by donations, provides the platform to the counties and trains volunteers, case workers and churches in using the platform, and provides support along the way.

The connection built between the volunteers and families can sometimes run deep, Flach said. A pair of church volunteers in Schenectady County helped a single mother with twin babies keep her children at home with her.

"These two volunteer moms from the church set up the crib, bounced the babies on their knees, so to speak, and really had a connection with this young woman," Flach said. "She had just gotten the apartment and they were stabilizing her situation so the babies didn't go into foster care, but they noticed her ground floor apartment had no curtains and the moms asked if she would like them to come back with curtains and help her hang them. Curtains are expensive to buy and it was really a need she had. The moms saw that and they built a relationship with her and became mentors to help her learn how to be a mom.

"Not every request ends in a connection like that, but that is the goal.' For the churches, it is reassuring to know the request for assistance is legitimate because it has been vetted and entered by a case worker, Flach added.

Most requests are preventative, with the goal of keeping families together, but sometimes the assistance helps make foster care possible. One family was willing to take in two neighborhood children whose mother was unavailable for a time it is unclear why, Flach said — but had an older home that didn't meet state requirements for a foster home.

"The family owned an older home and the bedroom windows didn't all open," Flach said. "The county comes and does a walk-through and the home didn't pass inspection because of the windows — they needed replacement windows. One of the churches stepped up and provided [a gift card] so the windows could be switched out right away and those kids went into that home.'

Several families in the Ravena, Delmar and Glenmont areas have benefited from the program, Flach said.

She expects Greene County will join the initiative later this fall, and then work will begin in bringing Rensselaer County in as well, she

"Every community has children and families in crisis," Flach said.

Tire disposal fees going up in New Baltimore

Capital Region Independent

NEW BALTIMORE — The cost to dispose of tires is increasing in New Baltimore.

The town council voted unanimously last Monday to raise the fee for tire disposal to better reflect what it costs the town to get rid of them.

Town Supervisor Jeff Ruso said it was brought to his attention that the town charges less than what it costs the municipality to dispose of the tires brought to the recycling facility. "Our disposal of tires - people bring tires to us — and we charge them for the tires. We, in turn, take those tires and bring them to another recycling center, which charges us money," Ruso said.

Those costs don't match up, putting the town at a slight loss. "We charge $2 for a tire up to 16 inches and we are charged $3. Those with a rim, we charge $3, but we, in turn, are charged $4," Ruso said. "Anything larger than 16 inches with rims, we are charged $15 and we charge $7.50 for people to drop them off." "Lately, we have been getting a lot of tires county might get a disdropped off and no wonder — we are the best deal in town," Ruso added.

The town supervisor introduced a motion to raise tire disposal fees to $4 for tires up to 16 inches without rims and $5 for those with a rim. For tires larger than 16 inches, residents would be charged

The town also incurs costs when people illegally dump tires on the roadside and the town has to pick up the tab to dispose of them.

"That gives us a slight increase in what is called a premium, but some of the problem is that it still costs the town money because of the tires that are dumped on roads here and there and are picked up by the highway department," Ruso said.

Greene County Legislator Patrick Linger, R-New Baltimore, said the county's Solid Waste Department also accepts tires for disposal at its facilities.

"It is $3 for tires up to 16 inches without rims, $4 for tires up to 16 inches with rims, and over 16 inches without rims is $7.50," Linger said.

Town Councilwoman Shelly VanEtten said the count for disposing of a larger number of tires.

Town Councilman Bill Boehlke asked why the town accepts tires in the first place when residents could drive to a local tire recycling company or the county transfer station in Coxsackie. "It's a nice service," Town Councilwoman Kelly Downs said. "You know what it's like Saturday morning — you go and dump your garbage, but you don't want to go to 15 different places so you are willing to pay a little extra to have the convenience just to drop them off."

The town would also not want to discourage people from disposing of unwanted tires illegally, Ruso said.

"The concern is that if we don't have an outlet for people to drop off their tires, we will find more along the road," Ruso

The board voted unanimously to raise the fee to $4 for 16-inch tires without rims, $5 for those with rims, and $15 for tires larger than 16 inches. The change goes into effect immediately.

The local supermarket has it all

When I was a younger man, my leisure time was filled to capacity with things like white-water rafting, car racing, competing in a variety of sports, hiking, visiting museums and journeying to new places.

Most of my limited free time now seems to be spent in the supermarket. It is a necessary part of life and not as stressful as some of my previous activities.

I usually start my day by finishing my coffee and planning my morning trip to the market. This involves choosing an outfit, clean socks and such. I then prowl the kitchen and make a list of our needs and wants. I have a mental list that I run down - milk, bread, coffee, dog food, cat food, toilet tissue, fruit, veggies and meat. I write down any that need restocking and thus armed, head off for the day.

I look at the market as a daily adventure, which is sad. It doesn't take a large amount of gas to get there. It's a clean, welllit place that's air conditioned. There's no admission fee. It's not hard to find a parking place within an easy day's hike of the door. The door even opens by itself, welcoming you in.

Once inside, I spend some time at the cart corral where they park the grocery carts. This is time well spent. I check the cart's tires in particular are they round and do the wheels turn? Does it have the little plastic piece that folds up to block off the leg holes for little kids? These are things that the mature shopper notices, having pushed carts with flopping wheels, wheels with flat spots or wheels that would not turn and having had cans and pieces of fruit escape through the leg holes and have to be pursued down the aisle. Retrieving those objects on the floor can put you at risk — never bend over in the market because you take the risk of being run over by some large lady with a full cart.

It has happened to me on more than one occadown to the business of the day, visiting with all the folks you run into that you know. The market is a social center for seniors, we wouldn't get to see each other if it weren't for our frequent trips to the market. The folks who run the market, being good businesspeople, recognize this. That's why there are bathrooms at the market. I have gone into the market for a loaf of bread and on a good day, spent as much as three hours before I was back in the parking

Make sure that you bring your reading glasses. I spend a lot of time reading labels and nutritional information blocks. In fact, I do more reading there than in the library.

You can learn a lot about geography, too, by trying to figure out where something came from. The nutritional information will teach you a lot about chemistry, too. I've discovered several food items that have no food at all in them, being made entirely of chemicals and preservatives.

Entertainment, education, social interaction, nourishment, free samples, air conditioning and bathrooms — who needs more than that for excitement? An added plus is if you go often enough you get to know the cashiers and can have a pleasant time chatting while you're cashing out.

Roadside plants week's column, I would like to give a big "Thank you" to the highway department workers from the towns of Conesville in Schoharie County and Rensselaerville in Albany County.

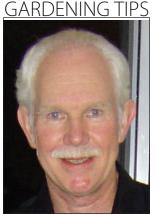

The July monsoons from a week ago that dumped 6 inches of rain on the hillside I happen to live on, pretty much washed away much of my gravel/dirt road. Half of this mile-long road is in Schoharie County and half in Albany County.

I got up Monday morning, July 19, to see that it was completely impassable in several spots in both counties and I could not even get down it with my ATV. My first guess was that I was not going anywhere, for at least a week, maybe longer, such was the damage. Well, within a day the road was passable for a four-wheel drive car and by Tuesday, at least six or seven pieces of heavy equipment had appeared to begin work.

In less than a week, 90% of the road has been restored! Both town highway departments worked hard and quickly to do an amazing job.

This is a great segue to this week's topic of roadside plants. Most people really don't pay much attention to the plants growing along the highway, as we zoom by at 50 or 60 mph. Back roads, especially dirt or gravel roads, slow us down considerably, but it is still hard to recognize plants at 25 or 30 mph. If you are fortunate to live on a really rural road, as I do, you can take the time to check it out much more carefully.

Some of the very first wildflowers of spring we see in our region are called Coltsfoot and they sometimes bloom as early as March along back roads. The yellow flowers are identical to dandelions, which most people assume is what they are seeing. On closer observation, you would notice that these flowers appear as much as a week or two before the leaves come

When the flowers fade the somewhat horse hoof shaped leaves appear. They are shiny green on top, with a whitish "bloom" of fuzz on the underside. In August I collect the leaves from a safer location (not a good idea to eat roadside plants in general) and make a cough medicine from them that is really quite effective. The dried leaves can also be crumpled up and used as a mild salt substitute.

As the season progresses the sequence of roadside bloom continues uninterrupted. Right now, my road has a good crop of white and yellow sweet clover. These tall plants do not resemble the common red and white clover we see in lawns, but when it gets mowed, the fragrance is beautifully sweet and lingers for days.

There are several roadside plants in the carrot family that bloom all summer long, including Oueen Anne's lace, hemlock parsley and the toxic, yellow-flowered wild parsnip. Yellow flowers seem to be the dominant color on my road now as goldenrod is coming into bloom along with St. John's Wort, whorled loosestrife, birdsfoot trefoil and yellow hawkweed.

If you take the time to walk slowly and look down, you may see the tiny, red-flowered scarlet pimpernel. These pretty wild flowers are no more than a quarter inch broad and grow flat on the ground. Blue "forget me nots" have already come and gone.

Any back road that is rural enough to allow horseback riders will most likely have some burdock present, as well as some nasty thistles that can grow 6 feet tall or more. Another blue, daisy-like flower is called chicory and the flowers open only in full sunlight. Chicory root has been used as a coffee substitute when roasted and ground into a powder.

Unfortunately, along with the pretty wildflowers come the weeds. Plants like poison ivy, Asiatic bittersweet, garlic mustard, Japanese knotweed, (aka bamboo), purple loosestrife, tree of heaven and multiflora rose, often invade fields and woodlands from roadsides, where they are often unintentionally transplanted by highway equipment or floods.

Of course, none of these plants are completely without any merit, but in general they are not desirable species to allow to proliferate. Perhaps the best way to prevent these invasive plants from becoming established is to get rid of them as soon as they appear along the roadside. For the past 20 years I have managed to keep much of my property free of poison ivy by systematically spraying it with glyphosate in September, along the road before it migrates into my woods. I also will stop and pluck out purple loosestrife if I see a lone specimen growing near my property.

I think it would be very helpful if the average rural resident took the time to identify roadside plants near their homes and remove the worst offenders before they become fully established.

impossible to learn humility without relationships. The most amazing thing about humility is that it spawns growth and cooperation in nearly every area of our lives.

In the Old Testament, an overwhelmed King Portals to heaven

Robert J. LaCosta

Solomon humbly sought the services of a neighboring monarch for the construction of his famed temple:

"Now therefore command that cedars of Lebanon be cut for me. And my servants will join your servants, and I will pay you for your servants such wages as you set, for you know that there is no one among us who knows how to cut timber like the Sidonians." (1 Kings 5:6 ESV)

Known for wisdom, Solomon recognized that he and his countrymen couldn't do the job alone. But he took the next step: he admitted it in writing and asked for

In my junior year at college I faced a daunting project that was beyond my abilities. As the radio station manager, I was tasked to raise a significant amount of money for the March of Dimes at our annual Radiothon.

The goal of $5,000 $50,000 (probably today) seemed insurmountable as we had no budget and an all-volunteer staff who were constantly trying to keep up their grades while helping out. We certainly were a rag-tag organization.

What changed everything was the discovery that relationships that had already been formed amongst college group leaders and myself would open the door for an unprecedented amount of cooperation.

For example, I had become a good friend with the two college newspaper editors. They began to launch a lot of pre-Radiothon publicity. That, in turn, spawned a lot of interest in all the preparations, prizes and general momentum leading into the fund- height of the populariraiser.

Perhaps even a greater surprise was the support we began to receive from the college itself. Previously, the school's administration and the student media were at odds. This was the 1970s, which had incubated a cultural "hangover" from the militant 1960s. Nevertheless, the college president and other departments jumped on board with full support toward our efforts to help the March of Dimes.

The ripple effect exponentially worked its way into the greater community as banks, restaurants, gift shops and a host of other commercial establishments generously donated pricey giveaways and auction items that ultimately contributed to our suc-

Another thing about momentum is that it's like a stairway of confidence. We began to recruit notable celebrities from New York City and Philadelphia who agreed to come speak or perform at no charge. During the ty of the first "Rocky" movie, "Valentine," Sylvester Stallone's brother's group, raised big bucks with their "kissa-thon" when dozens of girls lined up to smooth each a cappella member.

As the Radiothon was publicized with the help of our station's disc jockeys, my print media buddies, and the local newspapers and television stations, a great deal of anticipation was triggered far beyond the college campus.

When it was all over, I was deeply "humbled" when the $5,000 sign lit up and some of my staff poured a bottle of champagne over my shoulder-length 1970s hair.

It wasn't solely the phenomenal cooperation that helped us achieve a seemingly impossible goal. Every step involved a tremendous amount of commitment by everyone involved — especially me. My GPA suffered that semester and I got behind on my credits.

Hard work aside, it was the networking brought about by trusting relationships that took our annual Radiothon to a historic level. That camaraderie amongst the student media remained well after I graduated. Moreover, a deep sense of respect was earned from professors and departments. Previously, they had no idea what an integral part a college radio station could play in the overall campus culture.

Over four decades later, the lesson of relationship building, trust and humility amongst formerly "rivaling" entities remains with me.

Forgive me for my naivete, but I see how that same principal could work here in the village of Ravena, the town of Coeymans and in this nation.

A lot has been said about how Jesus changed the world with a bunch of common people. But not enough has been said about how he changed the disciples' pride into humility.

Martin Luther King and the struggle for Black voting rights

The League of Women Voters and Greater Capital Region Teacher Center are hosting an online program on Martin Luther King Jr.'s struggle for black voting rights on Aug. 12, at 7

Educators and community members are invited to join a thought-provoking analysis and discussion of the challenges King faced in making the controversial and consequential decisions that shaped the Civil Rights Era.

Facilitated by teachers Sean Fitzsimons of Albany High School and Matthew Pinchinat of Guilderland High School, the program is based on the highly successful experience of Harvard Business School in using casebased teaching.

The case study method can strengthen school and community teaching, making a more relevant and effective experience for students, teachers and participants of all com/MLKCivilRightsages and across a range of subjects. It presents a unique opportunity to help reverse the broad decline in civic engagement and civic education in the United States.

Fitzsimons and Pinchinat's brief video introduction to the program can be viewed at tinyurl. Discussion.

they wouldn't think twice about it," Sanders said. "I don't think anyone was looking for FDA approval for the polio vaccination. It's been many months now since December, we have eight months of a track record of great safety and great efficacy."

Each vaccine was tested in tens of thousands of patients before the FDA granted its emergency-use approval.

Other patients express hesitancy to get the vaccine because of the speed it was developed.

The novel coronavirus was first discovered in Wuhan, China, in December 2019. Pfizer-BioNTech's two-dose COVID-19 vaccine was approved for emergency-use authorization one year later on Dec. 11.

The COVID-19 vaccine was developed based on years of research on mRNA vaccinations, and previous epidemics caused by coronaviruses, such as the SARS virus in 2002 and MERS in 2012. "This is the first mRNA vaccine rolled out, but the technology is not new," Sanders said.

The H1N1 flu epidemic in 2009 led to the rapid development of a vaccine against the virus that year.

"I don't recall any marked vaccine hesitancy at the time," he added. "Nurses and doctors took that vaccine like it was magic. ... That vaccine was manufactured very rapidly using existing technology and it was very efficacious.

"We have studies around the world. These vaccines work."

The prevalence of the COVID delta variant, which originated in India, has caused coronavirus infections and hospitalizations to largely increase in unvaccinated people over the last month.

New York's daily positivity rate was 2.46% Friday, and averaged that rate for most of the week. The state's coronavirus infection rate was one of the nation's lowest about a month ago, or 0.34% June 23.

SAFETY AND SIDE EFFECTS

Johnson & Johnson's coronavirus vaccine was discovered this spring to be linked to rare instances of blood clots — especially in young women. The FDA in April added a warning label on the vaccine about the rare side effect.

The issue and addition of the label were widely publicized throughout the world and nation.

The side effect has emerged in dozens of patients, opposed to 1.08 billion fully vaccinated around the world as of Tuesday, according to ourworldindata.org.

"Look at the number of vaccines that are distributed — then all of a sudden, that severe side effect is not that common," Bottler said. "If we find side effects like that, we want to know about it so we can adjust and make recommendations."

Some people worry about common side effects caused by the coronavirus vaccine, including pain, redness or a swollen arm where the shot was administered, and headaches, fatigue, muscle pain, chills, fever and nausea for up to a day or two afterward.

"It could be that you don't feel great after the second shot, but you feel a whole lot better than getting COVID," Bottler said.

A sore arm or fever are typical vaccine side effects for several routine vaccinations, including measles, mumps, rubella; DTaP for tetanus; hepatitis A or B; rabies; Zoster vaccine for shingles; and yellow fever, according to CDC.gov.

People in rural, low-income and minority communities who often lack access to health care are quickest to question the vaccine's safety and effi-

"We are not living in a vacuum, we are living in a community," Bottler said. "It's not all right to expose other people to the virus if there's something you can do that is very safe and everyone can do one little step to protect the other people around them."

Vaccines are the only way to stop a virus from mutating and to nearly eradicate an illness, as seen with polio and smallpox, which stopped naturally occurring in the world because of inoculations.

"If we all get the vaccine, everyone will benefit," Bottler said. "We can travel, participate in sports, we can go to restaurants ... the economy will be better."

Bottler often recommends people visit cdc. gov and see the correlation between each state's COVID infection and vaccination rates when they question the vaccine's efficacy.

Employees in New York are mandated to receive four hours of paid time off, per dose, to get the COVID vaccine. Any necessary recovery period from receiving the vaccine or its side effects is covered under the state's Paid Sick Leave law.

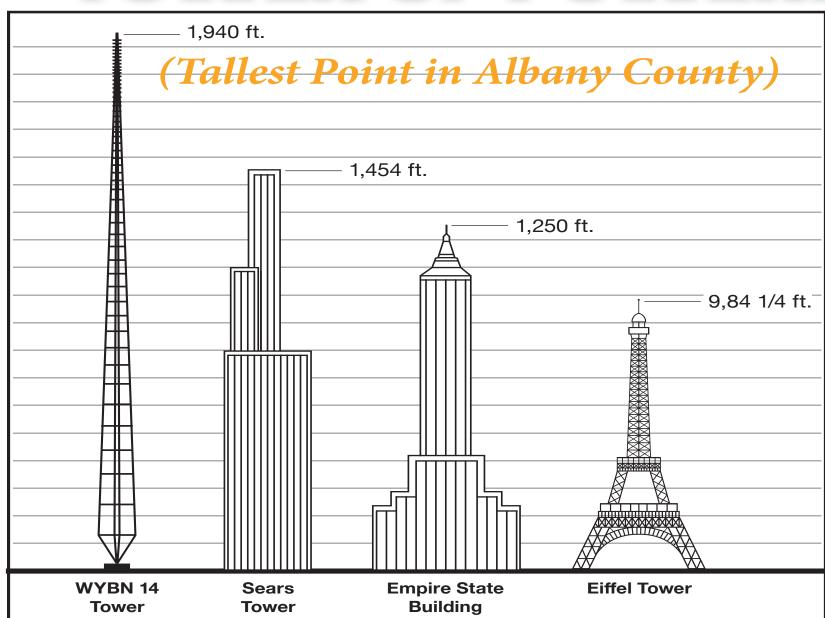

"New York state continues to fight COVID-19 statewide by getting shots in arms and to date, over 22 million doses of vaccine have been administered statewide — meaning over 74% of New York adults have received at least one vaccine dose, and 68.1% are fully vaccinated," state Health Department spokeswoman Abigail Barker said in a statement. "All COVID-19 vaccines authorized for emergency use in the United States have proven extremely effective at preventing serious illness, hospitalization and death from COVID-19, and remain strong against newer strains, including against variants of concern such as the delta variant."

The state Health Department promotes fact-based graphics about the vaccine on social media and other advertising across the state to bust misinformation about the vaccine. Graphics are framed in sensitive Q&A formats to promote vaccine education.

"Those who are unvaccinated have the greatest risk of becoming seriously ill, which is why the New York state Department of Health continues to do everything possible to make the vaccine accessible and available in every community - and we urge all eligible New Yorkers to get vaccinated as soon as possible," Barker said.

Merger creates new $8B credit union and CAP COM leaders have been exploring a potential merger of the two federal credit unions headquartered in New York's Capital Region. Throughout the discussions, they have found a consistent mission, common purpose and shared vision that prioritizes employees, members and communities, according to representatives from the two organizations.

To that end, the CAP COM and SEFCU Boards of Directors unanimously voted July 28, to approve a "merger of equals," creating a Capital Region headquartered financial and community powerhouse that will become fully integrated next year.

The newly combined entity will be renamed to reflect the respective histories and common values of both organizations, which are rooted in the credit union philosophy of "People helping People" for all stakeholders.

This merger is subject to the standard due diligence review commensurate with a transaction of this size and complexity. Employees were informed of this development by the president and CEOs of each organization.

Merging SEFCU and CAP COM is supported on three critical criteria: dedication to employees and their careers; value to members and the ability to succeed in a marketplace that is expected to see significant change and the consolidation of like-minded credit unions.

"We are excited to explore this potential opportunity to become stronger together. As like-minded, mission-driven credit unions who share a commitment to our employees, members, and community — this represents an exciting possibility to continue to expand our award-winning service to members across New York state, while continuing to invest in technology that makes banking more convenient," said CAP COM President and CEO Chris McKenna. "We look forward to continuing the process, with the intent to merge in 2022."

When CAP COM and SEFCU join, there will not be any layoffs related to the unification, according to a statement from the companies. The creation of a new, $8 billion financial institution is aimed at providing the scale necessary to create greater opportunities for existing employees, the need for additional team members, and significant advancements in products, services and support for members and community partners, according to the statement.

This effort will cretheir communities; and ate the largest financial institution in the Capital Region based on local deposits, and one of the top five credit unions in the state. The unified financial institution will also become one of the top 30 credit unions in the nation.

"Along with growing in size, this alignment will allow us to expand our reach and positive impact on our members and the communities we serve. CAP COM and SEFCU share similar values, culture, and commitment to community. We plan to apply the 'best of both worlds' principle in everything we do as we integrate our approach to supporting employees, members and the community," said SEFCU President and CEO Michael Castellana. "We are also excited about advancing our purpose-driven mission in new and exciting ways from expanding and enhancing our products, services, and support for our members, to offering deeper, more meaningful financial and volunteer contributions to nonprofit organizations."

The due diligence process and regulatory approval of both the National Credit Union Administration and the New York State Department of Financial Services, and the membership vote, will likely require an effective date of the transaction in 2022.

The U.S. Food & Drug Administration has approved the Pfizer-BioNTech and Moderna's two-shot COVID vaccine and Johnson & Johnson's one-dose injection under Emergency Use Authorization.

The vaccine cannot be legally mandated in schools without final approval from the FDA.

The COVID vaccine mandate will apply to legislative employees, including state assemblymembers and senators.

"In light of the recent spike in COVID-19 cases, the Senate will be following all recommended protocols for vaccinations and testing as laid out by the CDC, the federal and state government," Senate Majority Leader Andrea Stewart-Cousins, D-Yonkers, said in a statement. Coxsackie-Athens' Caringi earns All-American status

COXSACKIE — Coxsackie-Athens junior Schyler Caringi's recent trip to the 2021 USMC USA Wrestling National Championships in Fargo, North Dakota, proved to be a great success.

Caringi qualified for Fargo a second time, this time attending as a Northeast regional and state champion at her weight class. She placed sixth in the United States at her weight, earning the title "All-American."

In her 2019 campaign, Schyler reached the "Blood Rounds" (the round before guaranteeing an All-American Place on the podium). Between 2019 and now, Schyler continued bettering her craft by training full-time at Curby 3-Style Wrestling, and at Coxsackie-Athens with the Coxsackie-Athens wrestling team.

She is the first All-American in the C-A wrestling program's history.

Caringi's coach at Coxsackie-Athens, Ryan Palmer, couldn't be more proud.

"Just a 'wowing' moment and one filled with extreme pride," Palmer said. "Congratulations to Schyler. Her hard work, tenacity and commitment to success is incredibly inspiring for all of our athletes here at C-A."

After taking over for J.P. Hulslander as the C-A wrestling coach, it didn't take long for Palmer to realize he had a special talent to work with in Caringi.

"J.P. (Hulslander) told me that she was a special one," Palmer said. "Schyler is one of the most driven and hard-working athletes I have ever seen, let alone coached. She often heads to the gym before school, performs well in the classroom, and hits the practice room hard after school.

"In the off-season, she frequents her local club, Curby 3-Style Wrestling, in Troy. While my admiration for Schyler's work ethic is extremely high, I think Schyler would agree that a lot of praise must go to her club coach Joe Uccellini," Palmer said.

He continued, "Joe is the owner and founder of Curby, and will do anything and everything to help his athletes succeed. I have had the privilege to learn from Joe over the course of my coaching career. His knowledge and commitment to the sport is incredible, and his commitment to his athletes is beyond admirable. Joe's proof is in the pudding. In the past week alone, three of his local girls All-American'd at the USA Wrestling National Championships in Fargo.

Athletes coached by Uccellini who made the list include Caringi, Coxsackie-Athens, sixth place; Ragan Retell, Tamarac, third place; and Emily Frost, Tamarac, sixth place.

"If that wasn't enough, Angie Dill, of Salem/Cambridge Wrestling, placed third at the Cadet Worlds Tournament, representing the United States in Budapest, Hungary," Palmer said. "Four local girls getting it done on the national and international stage is simply incredible, and one thing that they all have in common is Joe Uccellini and Curby 3-Style Wrestling Club. As a coach, I am beyond thankful for the partnership we have with local clubs and organizations.'

Caringi's success should prove to encourage other young people to pursue their interests, Palmer said.

"I could not be more proud of Schyler and all of these wrestlers for accomplishing such extraordinary accolades," he said. "I hope that this is truly inspiring for young boys and girls to put everything they have into whatever it is that interests them. Most importantly, I hope that NYSPHSAA will finally sanction Girl's Wrestling so that these hardworking girls can have a platform to perform in front of their local communities."

Horst joins prestigious Maine Warden Service

OUTDOORS

By Larry DiDonato For Capital Region Indepen-dent Media

I'm happy to announce Julia Horst, 27, of Chatham, is now a proud member of the Maine Warden Service.

Julia officially joined the prestigious ranks as a Maine game warden upon her graduation from the state's 39th Basic Law Enforcement Training Program (BLETP) on July 16. She was even bestowed the honor of singing the national anthem to initiate the ceremony.

Julia and three other Maine game wardens ioined 63 other police officers including state troopers, deputy sheriffs, county and municipal police officers, comprising the largest graduating class ever in the program's history.

Julia now begins an exciting journey into her chosen career as a Maine game warden with a fivemonth field training program with an experienced warden training officer (WTO). Upon completion of the WTO program, she will undergo further job-specific training on topics including fish and wildlife enforcement, snowmobile, ATV and boat operation, recreational vehicle enforcement, swift water survival, and search and rescue operations.

The Maine Warden Service is a division of the Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife (MDIFW), whose mission is to preserve, protect and enhance the inland fisheries and wildlife resources of the state. Established in 1880 to protect big-game populations, MDIFW has since evolved in scope to include protection and management of fish, nongame wildlife and habitats, as well as restoration of endangered species like the bald eagle.

Main game wardens are also responsible for promoting the safe enjoyment of Maine's outdoors from whitewater rafting to boating, snowmobiling, hunting, fishing and wildlife observation, in addition to their traditional role to combat poaching.

You may have seen Maine game wardens in action and on patrol in the television series "North Woods Law," which put a spotlight on their fight against fish and wildlife poachers.

Julia's passion for the past 10 years was to work in conservation law enforcement. Landing the coveted position as a Maine game warden has now fulfilled that dream.

If Julia Horst's name sounds familiar, it is. You may remember her from her time as press information officer, then vice president of the Columbia County Sportsmen's Federation.

Prior to that, Julia served as treasurer and federation representative for the Canaan Conservation Club.

Please join me in congratulating Julia on her outstanding achievement as she now embarks on the adventure of a lifetime, with all the limitless, exciting opportunities the future has in store for her and her family.

Happy hunting, fishing and trapping until next time.

Our blueprint, compass and instruction manua

By Dr. Billy Holland For Capital Region Independent Media

When it comes to finding our place in this world, let's consider two categories.

The first one let's call, floating down the river. Imagine someone napping in a small boat without a compass or a paddle and not caring about where they are going. Having a spectator mentality, they have no map or intentional direction, but rather are just hoping for the best.

It's also common for these individuals to throw pity parties from time to time, as their lifehappy-go-lucky style includes serious disappointments. Often haunted with thoughts of being left behind, they are caught in a vicious cycle of confusion and discouragement.

As a Christian counselor, I've had conversations with those who are stuck in this drifting mindset and certainly have compassion for them, but we all have to do our share of searching and praying. No doubt it's extremely difficult to know our calling, but it does not help the situation by living in denial and blaming everyone else for our problems.

It's always scary to move out of our comfort zone and face reality because sometimes life can seem like a huge mountain that's impossible to climb. If you've ever tried to help someone find their destiny, you understand when I say we cannot force anyone to do anything, and neither can we help those who are not willing to help themselves.

In every area of life, those who desire a healthy state of being must see the truth about their circumstances and be willing to do something about it. Since God's character and nature are based on divine order, we can agree there are no mandates or divine commissions for drifting aimlessly through life. The good news is that God is patiently waiting to help us whenever our passion to change becomes stronger than our excuses.

The second category includes those who realize that life is to be lived with a specific purpose. I believe that having Jesus Christ as the commander of our life is the meaning

State invests $15M to lift COVID vaccinations

By Kate Lisa Courtesy of Columbia-Greene Media

NEW YORK state will invest $15 million to encourage the last quarter of New York adults to get vaccinated against COVID-19 as new cases increase in communities with low vaccination rates, officials said.

The state has 117 ZIP codes with new daily COVID infections per capita above the 1.88% average statewide positivity and vaccination rate. About 74.6% of New Yorkers ages 18 and older have received at least one vaccine dose and about 68% have completed the vaccine series, according to U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention at press time.

About 25% of New York adults have not been vaccinated against the novel coronavirus.

"I am telling you as I sit here today, if we do not make progress on vaccinating that unvaccinated population, 25%, with the Delta variant, you're going to see the numbers go up," Gov. Andrew Cuomo said during a COVID-19 briefing at Yankees Stadium. "That is a large number and we're going to lose lives and it will be disruptive and we cannot let that happen."

New coronavirus infections and hospitalizations have increased in the state over the last month.

About 61% of the 117 targeted areas are in the Bronx, Brooklyn and Staten Island, and tends to be minority neighborhoods or communities with less access to health care.

About 21% of the ZIP codes are scattered across the state, and include Selkirk in Albany County, and Earlton, Greenville and Medusa in Greene

"It's in the mid-Hudson, it's all over the state, but we know exactly where it is by ZIP code, and it is Capital Region and Central New York," Cuomo said. "It is the Mohawk Valley. It is the North Country, It is the Southern Tier. It's everywhere, but it's targeted and it's focused."

The state will allocate $15 million from the state budget to promote the coronavirus vaccine in poor, minority communities in the 117 targeted ZIP codes through strengthening communication, expanding public education and enhancing ongoing outreach efforts. The state will award $5.5 million to the Hispanic Federation, $5.5 million to Federation of Protestant Welfare Agencies, $1 million to New York Immigration Coalition, $1 million to Asian American Federation, $1 million to Charles B. Wang Community Center and $1 million to APICHA Community

Health Center. "We see the COVID numbers and we see the reality and we know what we have to do," Cuomo said. "Yes the numbers are going up, so let's do something about it," Cuomo said. "That's what makes us different as New Yorkers, because we act. We're not passive, we're not going to sit there and let it happen to us. We see the problem coming, we see the cloud on the horizon. Let's get to work together as New Yorkers and recognize our individual responsibility and let's get this job done."

Should I claim family benefits?

Dear Rusty:

I was born in 1956 and my wife in 1961. I've got 45 years of SSA earnings, and I will have income in 2021. We have four minor children, the youngest born in 2012. When is the best time for us to apply for benefits? Are we eligible for family benefits? My statement infers that we are.

Signed: Older Dad

Dear Older Dad:

Born in 1956, your full retirement age (FRA) for Social Security purposes is 66 years and 4 months. If you claim your SS benefit at any time before your FRA, it will be permanently reduced.

If, for example, you claimed your SS benefits now, the amount would be permanently cut by about 14%. Your wife's FRA is 67 and, similarly, she will receive a reduced SS retirement or SS spousal benefit if SOCIAL SECURITY MATTERS taken any time before her FRA.

Your wife isn't normally eligible for benefits until she is 62 years old, but if she is providing full-time childcare to your minor children, she is eligible for spouse benefits sooner. Childin-care spouse benefits are available at any age for your wife if she is providing care for at least one of your minor children under the age of 16. You must be collecting your own SS benefit for your wife to be eligible for this.

Once you start collecting your Social Security, your minor children will also become eligible for benefits. Minor child benefits are available to any child under the age of 18, or 19 if still in high school. All your children who qualify under that definition would be eligible for benefits based upon your Social Security earnings record. But, because of Social Security's Family Maximum, the amount each child receives would be less than half of your FRA benefit amount.

The Family Maximum amount is different for everyone because it is computed using each person's Primary Insurance Amount, or "PIA," which is the amount you are entitled to at your FRA. The Family Maximum normally computes to somewhere between 150% and 180% of the primary beneficiary's a permanent reduction PIA, and that amount is shared by all those collecting.

So, in your family's case, your PIA amount is first deducted from your Family Maximum amount and the remaining 50% to 80% is equally apportioned among all those collecting benefits on your record (including your wife if she receives childin-care benefits). If all four of your children are minors, and your wife is collecting child-incare benefits, those five individuals would each receive an equal portion of the remaining family maximum amount after your PIA is deducted.

It's probable that your family would get the entire family maximum amount, for as long as your wife and minor children are eligible for benefits. But remember that claiming your own benefit before your full retirement age results in to the benefit you will receive for the rest of vour life.

So, you should evaluate which option is financially better considering your life expectancy - claiming now and getting the full Family Maximum amount in these earlier years or waiting longer (even up to age 70) to receive a higher personal benefit for the rest of your life. You should also consider that if you die first, your wife's survivor benefit will be based upon the amount you are receiving at your death, so the age at which you claim also affects your wife's benefit as your widow.

Finally, if you claim before you have reached your full retirement age, Social Security's earnings limit will apply until you reach your FRA. If you work and exceed the limit ($18,960 for 2021), Social Security may withhold your benefits for several months, and your dependents won't receive their benefits while yours are withheld. Note too that your earnings limit will go up by about 2.5 times during the year you attain FRA.

Dake family celebrates a century of ice cream

SARATOGA SPRINGS — The very first Stewart's Shop was purchased in 1945, but the Dake family was making ice cream long before that. The year 2021 marks their 100year anniversary of ice cream production.

In 1921, dairy farmers Percy and Charles Dake were busy making milk and butter, but the changing economy created an opportunity for ice cream production. They sold 4,000 cream plant was relocatgallons of ice cream in the first year! This was the beginning of Dake's Delicious Ice Cream.

They purchased a bright red Model-T delivery truck and painted "Dake's Delicious Ice Cream" on the side of it. They made deliveries of bulk ice cream to Saratoga, Troy, Schenectady and Albany for $5 per 5-gallon can.

With the help of Robert McMullen, the ice ed to a new state-of-theart building on Route 9N at a cost of $150,000. In the same year, McMullen built the biggest, most modern cow barn in the country, which was 20 years ahead of its time.

Despite all of its fine features, there was never a cow in the barn due to McMullen going broke with the stock market crash.

That building eventually became the Stewart's Shops' ice cream plant in 1950. True entrepreneurs, the Dakes sought other outlets for their talents, eventually becoming retailers. In 1945, the Dake brothers purchased a small dairy and ice cream business from Don Stewart's, this became the very first Stewart's Shop on Church Avenue in Ballston Spa, a Stewart's Shop exists today in that very location.

Today there are 348 Stewart's Shops in 31 counties across New York and southern Vermont. Stewart's was founded as a dairy business and to this day, Stewart's drivers pick up fresh and local milk from 20 local dairy farms every day; this award-winning milk is the base for all of their delicious ice cream. Customers can choose between dozens of flavors in half gallons and pints in the freezer and cones, milkshakes, or sundaes at the cone counter.

In honor of a "Century of Ice Cream!" an exhibit celebrating the centennial will be featured at the Saratoga County History Center/ Brookside Museum on 6 Charlton St., Ballston Spa. Summer hours are 1-6 p.m. Thursdays and 1-5 p.m. Friday through Sunday.

State warns of text message phishing scam

ALBANY — The New York State Division of Consumer Protection and the Department of Motor Vehicles is warning New Yorkers of a text message phishing scheme.

Phishing texts are fraudulent messages designed to obtain data or sensitive personal information to be used to commit identity theft or trick the recipient into installing malicious software onto a computer or mobile device.

The illegitimate text messages reference the Secretary of State New York Driver's License Facility and tells recipients they are required to update their data for their current driver's license. Anyone who received such a text message should delete it right away.

To help protect against phishing or smishing (SMS phishing) scams, the New York State Office of Information Technology Services (ITS) and the Division of Consumer Protection recommend the following precautions:

DO exercise caution with all communications you receive, including those that appear to be from a trusted entity. Inspect the sender's information to confirm the message was generated from a legitimate source.

DO keep an eye out for telltale signs of phishing — poor spelling or grammar, the use of threats, the URL does not match that of the legitimate site. If the message does not feel right, chances are it is not.

DON'T click on links embedded in an unsolicited message from an unverified source.

DON'T your personal information via text. Legitimate businesses will not ask users to send sensitive personal information through text message.

DON'T post sensitive information online. The less information you post, the less data you make available to a cybercriminal for use in developing a potential attack or scams.

For more information on phishing scams, as well as steps to mitigate a phishing attempt, visit the NYS Office of Information Technology Services Phishing Awareness resources page at https:// its.ny.gov/resources or the Division of Consumer Protection Phishing Scam Prevention Tips page at https://dos.ny.gov/ identity-theft-prevention-and-mitigation-program.

The life-extending benefits of watermelon

Did you know Aug. 3 was National Watermelon Month? I can't think of a better way to pay homage to summer's favorite melon by learning a little more about this fruit/vegetable (it's in the same family as the cucumber) and highlighting its awesome health benefits.

The watermelon first appeared in South Africa some 5,000 years ago and today it is grown in warm places like Florida, Georgia, Guatemala CONCEPTS IN FITNESS and Egypt, making it available year-round!

Mark Twain (a big fan of the watermelon) once proclaimed that to taste a watermelon is to know "what angels eat."

However, the angels would have gagged if they had eaten the watermelon's ancestor — a bitter fruit with hard pale green

But generations of selective breeding have produced the sweet red fruit that 75% of Americans love to eat. So if you're one of those peo-

a measure that would

ple that loves watermelon, then you're going to love it even more when you find out about its incredible benefits.

Watermelon boosts your immune system by increasing your body's levels of arginine.

A study published in the Journal of Nutrition found that watermelon increases levels of arginine, "an important amino acid that is used for the synthesis of nitric acid," writes Dr. Josh Axe. This helps dilate blood vessels and keeps blood flowing, which reduces the risk of high blood pressure.

Watermelons are high in vitamin C, which is famous for its ability to prevent hardening of the arteries by increasing the elasticity of the blood vessels and decreasing inflammation, all of which can help prevent high blood pressure and heart dis-

High in vitamin B1, watermelon ensures a healthy nervous system. Also known as a thiamine deficiency, a lack of vitamin B1 can result in confusion and memory loss.

Alcohol can also lead to thiamine depletion. which makes watermelon a great breakfast food after a night of indulgence.

The health benefits of watermelon are extensive and you can't beat the refreshing taste of a nice, juicy watermelon, so dig in and enjoy!

Proposed House bill to expand food stamps for college students

By Kate Lisa Courtesy of Columbia-Greene Media Gil-

Kirsten

librand, D-N.Y., and Congressional lawmakers are pushing to pass expand Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, or food stamp, benefits for college students after increasing reports of students going hungry on campuses across the nation. The Enhance Access to SNAP Act, or EATS Act, would permanently expand SNAP eligibility to students who attend two- and four-year universities at least part time and some graduate students who meet traditional SNAP income and other eligibility requirements.

Under the proposed bicameral legislation, SNAP would no longer require eligible students to work 20 hours per week or participate in a federal or state work study to receive assistance for food purchas-

"Food insecurity has been a serious problem on college campuses across New York and across the nation since well before the pandemic," Gillibrand said Wednesday during a virtual press conference about the bill. "We know you can't focus, learn or thrive if you're hungry."

About 45% of U.S. college students reported struggles to afford or access food before the COVID-19 pandemic, impeding their learning, health and stability.

Food insecurity impacts 39% of students at two-year colleges and universities and 29% of students at four-year institutions nationwide.

"No student should be forced to make the impossible choice between food and education, but that is sadly the choice students face on campuses across New York every single day," Gillibrand said. "Students who commute have to decide if they're going to pay for a meal or for gas or for bus fare to get to class." Low-income students who are parents often prioritize feeding their children before them-

Roughly 36% of surveyed SUNY students in fall 2019 reported suffering from hunger within the past 30 days. About 55% of SUNY's community college and 41% of four-year college students reported experiencing hunger while in school, according to the same 2019 survey.

"That means young people, many of whom grew up in families who relied on SNAP and are now newly financially independent are expected to balance a part-time job on top of their full-time academic career just so they don't go hungry — that has to change," Gillibrand said. "The SNAP work for food requirement is creating a vicious cycle that makes it harder for low-income students to succeed.

About 290,000 New York students would become eligible for SNAP assistance if the EATS Act becomes law, bringing the total to 470,000 qualified students in the state.

"Struggling against hunger hurts college students' chances to complete their education now and undermines their financial success in the long-term," Food Research & Action Center President Luis Guardia said in a prepared statement.

First-generation students, students of color, those who are low-income and students at community colleges are most likely to experience food insecurity. About 75% of Indigenous, 70% of Black, and 70% of American Indian or Alaska Native students reported experiencing hunger, housing insecurity or homeless-

"Breaking down barriers to higher education extends far beyond making college affordable, especially for first-generation students and students of color," said U.S. Rep. Jimmy Gomez, D-Calif., who introduced the bill in the House of Representatives earlier this year. "If we ignore the hunger crisis on campuses nationwide, we are setting this generation of students up for failure. The EATS Act is a necessary step to provide an equitable, healthy learning environment for all of our country's bright young minds."

Gomez leads the House legislation with U.S. Reps. Josh Harder and Jimmy Panetta, both D-CA.

"Although SNAP is our nation's most effective tool for fighting hunger, many food-insecure college students are excluded from its benefits," said Andres Vives, Interim Executive Director of Hunger Solutions New York. "By permanently expanding SNAP access to struggling college students, this bill takes a huge step forward in addressing the growing hunger crisis in higher education "

The bill has support in the House and is gaining momentum in the Senate.

U.S. Sens. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt.; Cory Booker, D-N.J.; and Tina Smith, D-Minn.; have also joined sponsoring the bill. Gillibrand plans to contact Sen. Lisa Murkowski, R-Alaska.

"We have the beginning of a good coalition," Gillibrand said.

In December, Congress passed the Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2021, which temporarily extended SNAP assistance students eligible for federal or state work studies and students with an Expected Family Contribution of $0 or students eligible for the maximum Pell Grant.

The EATS Act would make the expanded access permanent. Otherwise, the temporary eligibility changes remain in effect until 30 days after federal officials declare the COVID-19 public health emergency concludes.
