CAPITAL REGION INDEPENDENT MEDIA $1.50 e eyes fix for duck difficulties

By Melanie Lekocevic Capital Region Independent Media

News:

RAVENA — Dozens of ducks can be seen at times parading down village streets and elected officials are looking to do something about it.

Some local residents have been feeding the waterfowl, drawing them to the area and creating problems for their neighbors, Mayor Bill Misuraca said at the village board's July 20 meeting.

"Certain people, maybe a group of people, think they are cute. I think little fuzzy ducks are cute, too, but they are not cute when they are defecating in your swimming pool and on your patio and creating a health hazard," Misuraca said. "Also, there is a noise factor, too.'

Misuraca has received multiple complaints from neighbors on Biechman Road, Cary Street and Woodlawn Drive. The issue has been a growing problem over the past year or so, he said.

"I have been talking to people who live in the affected areas and they are upset, understandably so," Misuraca said. "We have tried to reach out to the people that are feeding them, that are enabling these ducks and keeping them around. The more they feed them, the more fair to the animals and it's not fair to the people."

The ducks are a federally protected species so the village cannot trap them, Misuraca said. He proposed a local law that would prohibit the feeding of all wildlife, with the exception of birds, as long as the bird feeder is at least 4 feet off the ground, so it is not accessible to the ducks.

The wording of the local law is still in the works, but Misuraca proposed a fine of $300 for a first offense and $600 for a second offense. The goal is to discourage the activity rather than impose

We are really hoping that we don't have to have the police enforce this law and that people finally get the point to stop feeding the ducks," Misuraca said. "You are not helping them and you are hurting the neighbors."

Neighbors who have excessive numbers of ducks on their property have banged pots and pans together and used air horns and other methods to try to deter the ducks, he added.

"People are trying to scare these things off their property and they

The banners, posted in the village, hamlet and Coeymans Hollow, were put up around Memorial Day to honor the achievements of military service members. The banners are paid for by the family or loved ones, and some have the stars and stripes above them, but some do not. The Coeymans Town Council in June adopted a resolution authorizing Town Supervisor George McHugh to purchase enough flags to make sure every veteran's banner has an accompanying flag.

The resolution last month authorized McHugh to spend up to $2,000 for the flags.

"We were well under the cap you gave me and the flags arrived today," McHugh told the town council at its Thursday meeting. "Next week we will get the highway crew to work on getting those installed out in the Hollow. I am very hopeful that in the next week or two, we will have all the banners with a flag."

the rest of the funding coming through donations, McHugh said.

"Let's give a shout out — where did the $600 come from?" Town Councilman Daniel Baker asked.

Fundraisers by the Coeymans Hollow firehouse raised $800 for the initiative and local resident Mary Driscoll made a contribution as well, with Carver Companies donating an additional $1,200 for flags on Church Street, McHugh said.

Poles for the banners in the village have flags, but there are 26 in the hamlet that do not have a flag and all 25 in Coeymans Hollow, along Route 143, do not have a U.S. flag, McHugh said at the board's June meeting.

The flags are expected to be installed by the highway department over the next two weeks, with work beginning this

While the town council resolution authorized an expenditure of $2,000, the town spent $1,496.88 to purchase the flags, with

"There were a lot of donations and we picked up the difference, but it is worth it and it will look beautiful when it is done," McHugh said.

over crash prompts DWI charges

By Thomas Marra For Capital Region Indepen-dent Media

GLENMONT — A rollover crash in Glenmont that damaged a utility pole resulted in a DWI arrest on Thursday, July 15.

First responders were called to the area of 617 Route 9W in Glenmont around 1:10 a.m. for a report of a single vehicle rollover in the area with possible power lines down.

Bethlehem Police officers arrived on the scene and reported one car that was overturned off the roadway and a National Grid utility pole damaged.

The pole was snapped in half and the top half was still suspended in the air by the wires.

No wires were down in the roadway.

The Selkirk Fire Department closed Route 9W from Beacon Road to Wemple Road for the duration of the incident. "Upon investigation it was determined that the operator of a 2015 Chevrolet was traveling north on Route 9W when it left the roadway and struck the power pole and overturned," according to a statement from Bethlehem Police.

The driver of the car was the only occupant and was found to be uninjured in the crash following an evaluation from Delmar-Bethlehem EMS and Albany County Paramedics.

The driver was not identified at press time.

The vehicle was removed by Robert's Towing.

National Grid responded to handle the damaged pole.

Police say the driver was arrested at the scene and charged with driving while intoxicated and was issued a ticket for failure to keep right.

A rollover crash resulted in an arrest and DWI charges in Glenmont.

are spending half of their summer scrubbing and cleaning and making sure their grandchildren aren't stepping in it. It's a nightmare," he said. "One person actually put their house on the market because they can't live like this. It's not fair."

While people feeding the ducks may think they are helping them, that is not so, Misuraca said.

According to the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation, feeding waterfowl causes problems including poor nutrition for the animals, water pollution, delayed migration, overcrowding, spread of disease with birds in close proximity, unnatural behavior and other problems.

"It would seem that providing food for ducks and geese would make them healthier. However, this is not the case," accord-ing to the DEC. "Waterfowl at artificial feeding sites are often found to suffer from poor nutrition. In natural settings, waterfowl seek and feed on a variety of nutritious foods such as aquatic plants, natural grains and invertebrates. Many of also came up for discusthe items commonly used sion at the July 12 meetto feed waterfowl (bread, ing of the Coeymans corn, popcorn, etc.) are low in protein and are very poor substitutes for natural foods."

Village Trustee Mary Ellen Rosato said there are other problems creating by feeding waterfowl as well.

"There's another side to it. The little ones, they are being eaten by vultures," Rosato said. "So if you think you are being kind to the ducks, you are just feeding the vultures."

The village board scheduled a public hearing Aug. 17 at 6 p.m. at Village Hall, 15 Mountain Road, to discuss the issue. The specifics of the proposed local law are still being worked out, but once completed, it will be posted on the village website and Facebook page for the community to review, Village Trustee Nancy Warner said.

She encouraged the community to come and offer feedback.

"We want everybody to come, for or against," Warner said. "You don't even have to live in that neighborhood. Please come — now is your time to speak to us."

"They would come and capture the ducks safely and relocate the ducks someplace else. They won't come back as long as they aren't fed."

Coeymans Police Chief Douglas Keyer said police would first give out warnings to anyone found feeding the ducks before tickets are issued. The goal is to stop the feeding habits.

State absentee voting changes become law

By Kate Lisa

Courtesy of Columbia-Greene Media

ALBANY — A series of bills became law earlier this month to make casting a ballot in state or local elections easier and more accessible for all New Yorkers.

Gov. Andrew Cuomo recently signed a package of legislation passed in the Senate and Assembly at the end of session to allow residents to electronically request an absentee ballot and apply for a ballot without a signature, permit absentee ballots to be accepted if postmarked by Election Day and to require boards of elections to post changes to polling place locations, among others.

"During the past 16 months, numerous obstacles thrown up by the COVID-19 pandemic imperiled one of our most basic and vital rights the right to vote," Cuomo said in a prepared statement after signing the voting legislation. "This sweeping, comprehensive package of legislation will make it easier for voters, candidates and boards of elections to perform their critical functions and keep our democracy running. Elections have enormous consequences for New Yorkers across the state, and these reforms will bolster their ability to use their voices at the ballot box."

Other legislation was signed into law requiring boards of elections to deliver absentee ballots to voters residing in nursing homes, residential care facilities and other facilities under the state Office of Mental Health, and allowing New Yorkers requesting an absentee ballot by mail until 15 days before the day of the election. In-person absentee applications can be received until the day before the contest.

who lost a major prima- make sure we're investing ry literally had to die or move out of state in order to get off a minor party line on the ballot," said bill sponsor Sen. Rachel May, D-Syracuse, in a statement. "This led to confusion and to workarounds that were bad for democracy. Voters should be able to trust that the names on a ballot represent active candidates for election. I want to thank the governor for signing this important reform to our election laws."

The governor also signed measures into law that will conform state mailing deadlines for absentee ballots in line with the U.S. Postal Service for the timely delivery of mail and increase the number of permitted election district enrollment from 1,150 to 2,000 registrants.

The previous limit was set based on the limitations of old lever voting machines, which could only handle 1,000 votes per election. Optical scanners can read and hold up to approximately 4,000 ballots per election, according to the governor's office.

Republican lawmakers largely voted against the new voting rules this spring after concerns of accurate voting counts in the 2020 presidential election.

Top state Republican leaders continue to question the necessity for changing state election law, but speak with confidence about New York's election and voting security.

"We have an obsession in this state with tinkering with our election law, state Republican Committee Chair Nick Langworthy said recently outside the state Capitol in Albany. "I think we have pretty honest elections in New York of bipartisanship ensured within our boards of elections. ...I do think that we should really take our time with all of these changes and in the last several years."

in the interest of fair elections and taxpayers before we start tinkering it to meet what some liberal group tells you you need to have."

States with one-party rule or control in overseeing boards of elections and ballot counts gave some voters across the country concern about expanding early and absentee ballot access, Langworthy said.

Lawmakers debated for hours before the end of session June 10 to pass a bill that would mandate an increase in the number of early voting locations in every county. Each county's number of early voting sites is based on the number of registered voters, according to the state Board of Elections.

Each of New York's 62 counties is required to have at least one early-voting polling location. Counties with between 100,000 and 149,999 voters are required to have at least two early voting polling sites. Counties with between 150,000 and 199,999 voters are required to have three early voting sites, and so on.

"In reality, I think there's a disparity between big counties and small counties on this,' Langworthy said. "The one-size-fits-all approach makes it difficult.'

More populous urban areas, like in Erie County, which includes the city of Buffalo and the surrounding towns and villages, has more than 35 early voting sites. Smaller counties under a certain population may be challenged to meet minimum early voting site requirements, Langworthy said.

"I think it's created a burden for small counties to meet," he added. "I think you should get it right before you start making changes. We have election professionals in the state who have an intense amount of pressure with all the changes

HUDSON An anonymous donor gave a $310,000 donation to Columbia-Greene Community College for scholarships for Greene County students.

The gift will assist Greene County students seeking a career in the medical field, such as nursing or medical assisting. "A scholarship is helpful to any student," Columbia-Greene Community College President Carlee Drummer said. "We try to help as many students as we can and certainly support from the community is so important, now especially with the pandemic, because so many students lives have been disrupted by COVID, and they're really struggling in many cases and if we can help them pay their tuition, we're really happy to do that.'

"The endowment will enable Greene County students who struggle financially to confidently move forward in their education and future careers, said Joan Kow-the C-GCC Foundation. "The money will be able to help hundreds of students.

"The scholarships that they will receive from this donation will eliminate many of the financial obstacles that would otherwise prevent them from succeeding in their goals," Koweek said.

Students from Greene County will be able to fill out an application to apply for the scholarship, Koweek said. A scholarship committee comprised of board members from both sides of the county and faculty use a rubric and they rate the forms to determine which applications will be awarded. Koweek said names and other personal information are kept off of the forms the committee sees to keep the decision transparent.

"We are just so grateful to the donor for this," Koweek said. "They are going to impact the lives of people, this is going to help our students which truly is going to shape their future. Its going to help ensure that they fin-eek, executive director of ish their degree, and they have an employable situation where they can afford to stay in the counties and live the life that they choose."

"It's about their career choice, that they'll be able to be in a field that they want to thrive in," Koweek said.

Students will be able to use money from the donation starting in the upcoming fall semester.

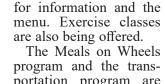

"The Columbia-Greene Community College Foundation was the right fit for this contribution," the anonymous donor said in a statement. "We have been witness to the good work the Foundation does for C-GCC students, and we know it will use this endowment in accordance with our wishes. # I am surrounded by shoes

Shoes, I'm surrounded by shoes.

There's a pair of plain flip flops to the left of me. A pair of flop flops with fancy beading on the strap and a pair of running shoes lie on the floor to the right. I can see three pairs lined up neatly near the kitchen door and a pair of sandals near the Queen's chair in the family room.

I have maybe a half dozen pairs of shoes. I wear one pair almost daily. They are comfortable and look fairly decent. They function well, keeping grass and other foreign objects from between my toes.

I call them sneakers, an outdated term, like icebox and sofa, that I cling to. In this day of specialization, they are really kayaking shoes. They dry out quickly when you walk on a dewy lawn and have little holes in the soles to let water drain out. They are light, comfortable and airy. They are my sneakers. The ladies of our house have a rather large shoe collection between them

They have shoes for comfort, shoes for sport, shoes for fashion, cool shoes, warm shoes, church shoes, work shoes, pretty shoes and fun shoes.

This shoe thing seems to be one more of the differences that separate the sexes. Kind of like underwear, if I had to face the number of choices that live in most women's underwear drawers, I probably wouldn't be dressed before noon. I just grab a fresh pair of jockeys and I'm good to go anywhere. Same thing with shoes — I slip on my sneakers and I'm ready for any occasion the day may throw at me.

I don't know if I could deal with all the decisions that face the average female daily. There was a time when I was young and single and attire mattered and I frittered away precious hours in front of the mirror. Mirrors ceased to be of interest several years ago and my life became a simpler thing.

I can think of only one area of concern about attire that still clings to me. The other day, I reached way back in my underwear drawer and pulled out an old pair of briefs that should have made it to the rag bag years ago. They had a rather large hole in the rear but they were clean and I was in a hurry so I slipped them on. Somehow I knew my mother knew what I was wearing and all morning I kept waiting to get hit by a bus or at least a large pick-up truck and have to be hauled off to the hospital where my underwear indiscretion would be discovered and revealed to the world. I went and changed.

I guess women like all the choices they have. We receive about a ton and a half of catalogues weekly full of dresses, blouses, shoes and underwear choices. It makes it hard to find my tool and car part catalogues, which are much more important and of much greater interest than the ones that focus on girlie stuff. Some of the catalogues are bisexual in nature and actually have a men's wear section. I have noticed that the men's section usually occupies a few pages whereas the women's section goes on forever.

I'm not complaining, the lady of our house always looks put together and pretty. There is just a difference at the genetic level between the sexes when it comes to the necessity for certain amount of clothing. For the average male, being pretty just isn't a priority.

gardens, landscape plantings and even roadside weeds are significantly larger and more vigorous than last year at this time, it is because they are!

The near record rainfall we have had this month has spurred growth on almost everything that grows in our region. This points out the not-so-obvious fact that rainfall is far more important than sunlight in terms of overall growth. It also explains why cloudy, rainy climates, such as much of Britain, have such marvelous horticulture! Moisture is far more often a limiting factor to growth than sunlight.

Of course, there may be a problem with too much moisture in some garden situations, where poor drainage is an issue, but for the most part, our native landscape loves the precipitation. The forests and fields are sucking up the rain happily. We will see the benefits of this rainfall next season, as well. I expect bumper, mast crops, in 2022 as a result and even this year's apple, pear and peach crops will produce much larger fruit.

This is a good time to evaluate your property to learn which areas are best utilized for trees and shrubs that can tolerate these conditions. The good news is that there are many lovely tree and shrubs that can tolerate "wet feet" for extended periods of time.

There is still plenty of time to plant annuals, perennials, trees and shrubs. Soil temperature and moisture levels are as optimal as we can expect at any time. Most years, I would be reminding you to make sure your newly planted trees and shrubs get

BOB BEYFUSS al flowers in baskets, boxes and beds need to be cut back hard for a fall bloom, or at least deadheaded. Window boxes and hanging baskets sometimes fill up with roots by now, so it is important to continue to monitor them. A few dry days will require you to get out the watering can once more and you may need to apply some fertilizer as well. Some annuals that have already gone to seed may have the seed pods scattered beneath them and may provide some "volunteers" for next season. Since most annuals are hybrids, don't expect their offspring to look exactly like the parents, but they will still look very good!

You can even plant some seeds of fast growing annuals that like cool weather for a fall display. Marigolds, snapdragons, calendula, pansies, dianthus can be seeded now and a few lovely, annual plants, like flowering kale and Swiss chard are also edible in addition to being pretty, as well as frost tolerant.

Flower containers of all sorts need to have drainage holes in the bottom. Adding a few inches of gravel to the bottom of large pots will also help to ensure good drainage. Since I like to grow several things in soil using a combination of peat moss, sand and some really inexpensive, bagged "topsoil."

I have no idea where the bagged "topsoil" came from, but it was pretty awful stuff. You can sweep up a parking lot and sell the sweepings as "topsoil" in New York state. This stuff appeared to be mostly modeling clay and rocks, with some sand mixed in. I tested the pH and it was about 7.8, which is much too high for optimal growth, but the added peat moss is acidic, so it was not a serious issue.

I have a very large tub that allowed me to mix all these ingredients together in roughly equal parts. I must say, the mixture turned out well, but it was a lot of work mixing all the ingredients together by hand! I got a pretty good arm and wrist workout!

I did not use any vermiculite or perlite in my mix as most commercial potting mixes usually do. Vermiculite is a silicate material that is brown or beige in color and has a soft, spongelike texture. It absorbs water. Perlite is harder, white in color, and is made out of mined volcanic rock. It also floats, which I don't like seeing in my garden when rains are heavy, like this year. Perlite is also high in fluoride, which is only an issue for some sensitive plants, like lilies.

My homemade potting soil weighed about four times as much as a commercial mix, such as Pro Mix, or BX mix that is sold in bales, since there was no perlite or vermiculite in it, which are as light as a feather. At least I don't have to look at floating white pieces of lava in my pots or garden and my arms probably benefitted from the exercise of mixing it! Reach Bob Beyfuss at rlb14@,cornell.edu.

The life of David in the Bible is one of the more popular stories in the Christian faith. Of all the individuals other than Christ, I would guess there have been Living on Purpose more messages about him than any other character within the word of God.

There is a huge difference between the way we observe and judge with our natural senses and the way God perceives everything through His perfect spiritual wisdom and the key to our success is learning to see as God sees.

We begin our story in I Samuel where Samuel is a powerful prophet and is told by the Lord to select a new king to replace Saul, who had disappointed God. There was a man named Jesse who had eight sons and God told Samuel that one of Jesse's sons would be the new king and to listen carefully to God's voice. When Samuel looked upon the oldest son

Eliab, he reasoned within himself that surely this is the one whom God would want. Eliab was physically strong and impressive, and the passage also mentions that he was very tall. However, the Lord warned Samuel against being emotionally persuaded by stature for God does not see as man sees. "For man looks on the outward appearance, but the Lord looks on the heart" I Samuel 16:7.

Jesse called seven of his sons and had each one stand before Samuel, but the Lord rejected them. Samuel asked if there were any other sons and Jesse said there was the youngest boy, and he was out herding the sheep. Samuel said that he needed to see him immediately.

When David stood before Samuel, he was just a teenager, and the Bible implies he had a beautiful countenance and was a very handsome young man. The Lord instructed Samuel to anoint David with oil, for he was the one. Even though David was not officially pronounced king until a couple of years later, we realize God was planning ahead and desired that Israel would have a leader who would love Him and obey His voice.

Notice that David was out taking care of the sheep and the isolation of being alone with God is where he developed a personal relationship with Him. Acts chapter 13 says that God found David to be a man after His own heart and who shall fulfill His will.

Being powerful in God's kingdom has everything to do with how passionate we are about doing what He says. We can look impressive in the world of religion, but this is not what God is looking for. Becoming more like Christ means we abandon our plans and ideas and surrender our will to Him.

We must develop our who were soldiers, and spiritual sensitivity to he heard Goliath make where we understand his fierce challenge as that God's true vessels of honor are not always the ones, we would consider giants in the faith.

Speaking of giants, let us continue to realize that things are not the way they seem. In chapter 17 we read where the armies of Israel and Philistine were camped on different mountains and were preparing for war. The Philistines had a champion warrior called Goliath who would step forward each day and dare any man of the opposing army to come and fight him. He stated that if he won the fight, Israel would have to bow down and serve the Philistines, but if they defeated him, the Philistines would surrender. The soldiers of Israel were terrified of this giant as the Bible declares he was nearly 10 feet tall and was amazingly strong.

One day David was bringing food and supplies to his older brothers who were soldiers, and he heard Goliath make his fierce challenge as he mocked and laughed. David was shocked to see how everyone was afraid and he spoke boldly saying that he would fight as this battle was the Lord's and He will surely deliver this giant into their hands.

The soldiers were looking at David as a kid who did not know what he was talking about and scolded him and told him to go home.

Our point continues that we must never judge a situation by what it looks like in the natural. As we all know, David finally convinced Saul to let him face the giant, and the rest is history.

Notice how Samuel looked to human stature, Saul and his army saw themselves defeated against Goliath, and Goliath underestimated David. Everyone in this story trusted their natural reasoning except David, who could discern through the eyes of God.

Felled tree embodies village spirit

By Melanie Lekocevic Courtesy of Columbia-Greene Media

COXSACKIE — Some could view what happened to a 200-year-old Coxsackie tree as fate, divine intervention or just plain old physics.

The tree on Mansion Street was torn out of the ground by its roots in a massive thunderstorm and microburst that pummeled the village of Coxsackie on July 7.

But as cleanup in the village continues, a weird quirk of fate — or science — uprighted the tree back where it came from.

"I had a worker out there with a chainsaw cutting down additional lengths of the tree because we were going to use heavy equipment to lift it," said Paul Seney, owner of W.C. Brady's Sons Funeral Home and the property where the tree is located. "The tree was still on the sidewalk and he was cutting length from the tree. When he got down from the tree, the tree uprighted itself back into the hole where it was ripped from, so it is standing back up,' Seney said.

The tree, thought to be more than two centuries old, stood about 100 feet tall on Mansion Street, with about 80 feet hollowed out inside the tree, Seney estimated.

The weight at the tree's roots — which included a substantial amount of earth that came up with the roots when the tree fell — was so bottom-heavy the tree popped back into the hole, Seney said.

The return of the tree to its original space might seem like divine intervention to some, but Seney attributes it to the laws of nature.

"It sounds miraculous, but physics defeats all miracles," Seney said.

Photos courtesy of Columbia-Greene Media Above, the tree in the aftermath of the storm, fallen to the ground on Mansion Street.

Right, Paul Seney, owner of of W.C. Brady's Sons Funeral Home, points to the 200-year-old tree that righted itself after crashing to the ground during the massive storm that tore through Coxsackie earlier this month.

Funeral assistant Jennifer McKeon, who works at Richards Funeral Home in Cairo, which Seney also owns, was there when it happened.

"When they cut one part of the top off, it stood back up into the hole. I was there," McKeon said. "It was odd to see — the top (of the tree) came off and the tree just popped back up."

The tree has stood as a local landmark in front of the funeral home since the business's founding in 1840, Seney said.

The tree's return sparked another idea for Seney to turn the remains of the tree into a massive monument to the residents and first responders who came to their neighbors' aid in the wake of the storm that felled the tree.

Seney, his sister Shannon Seney and McKeon are now leading an effort to raise about $10,000 to pay an artist to carve a large owl into the tree's remains, along with adding boulders, benches, flowers and other landscaping to create a pocket park commemorating the community's response to the storm.

"What compelled me to do this is the immediate response not only from the community members but from rescue and fire services, law enforcement, the county, other communities who came to help — everyone was on point and it was instant," Seney said. "So I thought, what a great monument for Coxsackie, honoring the loss of the tree and the community that responded, and as an everlasting monument for that event." Shannon Seney said

Shannon Seney said the monument would also commemorate the life of Richard Vigilo, the funeral home's former owner and a staple in the community, who died Jan. 10. "We had some discussion about creating a monument of sorts to commemorate Richard Vigilo, the former owner of the funeral home, and to commemorate the camaraderie of the community," Shannon Seney said. "Within five minutes of the storm being over, every department was on scene, neighbors were making sure others were OK — it was very heartwarming to see civilians along with the rescue companies and the fire departments and the sheriff's department — everyone was helping everyone else."

The monument would take the form of an owl because that is the official "symbol" of Coxsackie. The town's name is thought to have been derived from a Native American term that loosely translated means "hoot of the owl" and "place of owls," according to a history of the town penned by town historian Michael Rausch.

"We will carve the biggest Coxsackie owl that we can — if it ends up being 12 foot, so be it, but we will carve our community animal, which is the owl," Paul Seney said.

Shannon Seney said the grassroots group is looking to work with artists, landscaping companies, construction companies, gardeners and donors to get the whole community involved in the effort.

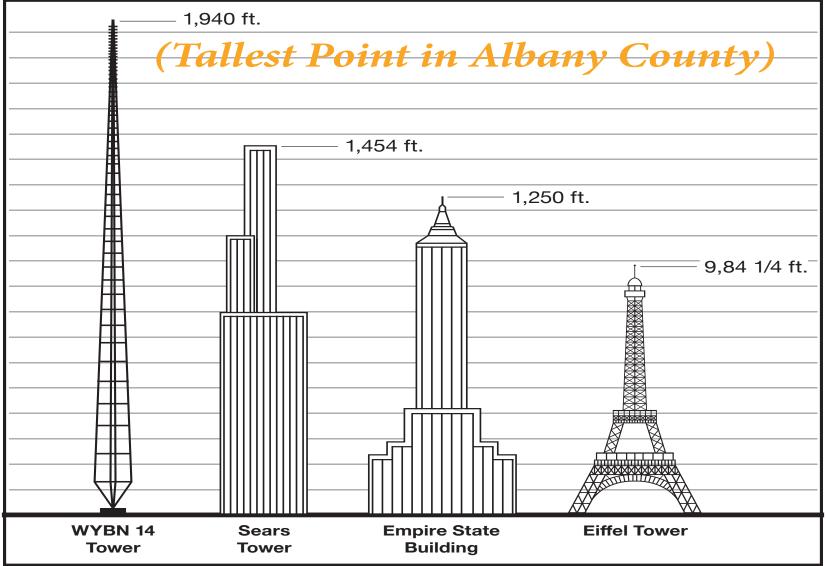

"The more people involved, the better," she said. "The more people feel involved with this monument, the more they can claim it as their own."

Creating a monument to the community spirit shown on the day of the storm, and in the days that followed, is fitting, Paul Seney said.

"The tree fell for a reason and it is standing again for a reason, so I think something special has to take place," he said. "I would like to see the entire community involved and plan an event to celebrate — an unveiling, so to speak."

Albany Med system applies artificial intelligence to enhance stroke care

ALBANY — New, cutting-edge software will allow the Albany Med Health System to streamline stroke care across its four hospitals.

The system will be the first in northeast New York to apply the Viz. ai computer-aided triage system, which is approved by the Food and Drug Administration, to help facilitate early access to the most advanced stroke care for patients at Albany Medical Center Hospital, Columbia Memorial Health (CMH), Glens Falls Hospital and Saratoga Hospital.

"Successful stroke treatment requires quick and decisive action, and each minute can make a difference in saving someone's life or ensuring continued quality of life," said Alan Bou-los, M.D., chair of the Department of Neurosurgery, Herman and Sunny Stall Chair of Endovascular Surgery, director of the neurovascular section and professor of neurosurgery and radiology at Alba-ny Medical College. "This technology will allow stroke specialists throughout the Albany Med Health System to securely communicate in order to synchronize care and determine the optimal treatment decision for the patient, potentially saving critical time in the triage, diagnosis and treatment of stroke, resulting in improved outcomes for our patients."

When a patient who is suspected of having

G L A S S a stroke arrives at the hospital, CT angiograms are typically performed to assess blood flow in the brain. When the Viz. ai artificial intelligence software detects a large vessel occlusion (LVO) — a type of stroke caused by blockage of one of the major arteries and having a greater risk of death or long-term disability - stroke specialists across the system are alerted immediately on their phones, allowing them to plan for appropriate treatment or transfer of care quicker than ever.

LVOs account for 20%of all strokes and require advanced treatment. As the region's comprehensive stroke center, Albany Medical Center Hospital is the only hospital in the region with an endovascular neurosurgery team able to perform mechanical thrombectomy — the "gold standard of stroke treatment" - to treat these strokes by removing clots and restoring blood flow to the brain, increasing the likeli-hood of a better quality of life after stroke. If the software detects a LVO stroke at any of the partner hospitals, the patient will be prepared for transfer to Albany Medical Center Hospital.

"This is an excellent example of why Saratoga Hospital made the strategic decision to join the Albany Med Health System," said Richard Falivena, M.D., vice president and chief medical and physician integration officer at Saratoga Hospital. "With our system partners, Saratoga Hospital can offer technology and expertise that otherwise would be unavailable to a community hospital—and that can be life-changing for our patients."

Clifford Belden, M.D., chief medical officer for CMH, said: "The acquisition of the Viz.ai system will help our award-winning care team remain on the cutting edge of stroke treatment by providing rapid alerts to stroke specialists across the Ålbany Med Health System who can quickly assist in the diagnosis and treatment of stroke patients. This will increase the likelihood for favorable outcomes. It's another great example of Columbia Memorial working with our Albany Med affiliates and the newest technology to benefit our local community."

The new technology will enable hospitals across the system to streamline care for patients experiencing a stroke.

"We are excited to collaborate with Albany Medical Center on this new technology to streamline and consolidate stroke care across our system," said Jonathan Braiman, M.D., chair of the Neurology Department at Glens Falls Hospital. "Though the best treatment for stroke is still prevention, this helps us identify candidates for acute stroke intervention more efficiently."

The state Department of Corrections and Community Supervision has rescinded a medical policy at the center of a lawsuit filed by a former prison doctor who treated New York's most chronically ill incarcerated patients for more than two decades.

The department updated its Health Services Policy Manual in December 2016 to include the Medications With Abuse Potential policy, which mandated doctors or medical specialists treating people imprisoned in the state get additional department approval to prescribe certain medica-

The department would not answer if the policv prevented medication abuse within state prisons while it was in effect.

Leading legislators on the Senate Crime Victims, Crime and Correction Committee and the Assembly Correction Committee referred to the department, or did not know when the policy was rescinded.

State departments can create and implement policies at their discretion without legislation nor approval from Gov. Andrew Cuomo and the Executive Chamber.

"They can do whatever they want," said attorney Carlo A. C. de Oliveira, with Albany-based firm Cooper Erving & Savage LLP — one of Salvana's attorneys. "It's their policy, they created it, and they can rescind it."

Salvana said his requests for a waiver for his patients were routinely denied by DOCCS regional medical director more than 145 miles away in Albany who did not have access to a patient's health record. The department was required to explain the reasons for the denial in the patient's Ambulatory Health Record.

controversial The Medications With Abuse Potential directive first went into effect in March 2017. Physicians could prescribe any medication in the DOCCS pharmacy Formulary Book without pre-approval before the policy existed.

Salvana alleges his First and 14th Amendment rights were violated when he was retaliated and discriminated against after speaking out against the policy, forcing him to resign April 28, 2020.

"I was locked out of the facility, blocked from making orders, had my orders rescinded by non-doctors who had no license to practice medicine," Salvana said in a phone interview.

Salvana, Walsh's former facility director, oversaw all medical staff including doctors, nurses, nurse practitioners, physical and occupational therapists, radiology technicians and the pharmacy supervisor.

The doctor, of Syracuse, has practiced medicine for more than four decades and worked as a clinical physician at the Walsh Regional Medical Unit in Rome, New York, from 2003 until 2011 and again from 2014 until his resignation.

The maximum-security medical facility is located within Mohawk Correctional, a medium-security prison in Oneida County. The medical unit has 152 beds in four-bed wards to house incarcerated New Yorkers for complex, long-term medical care.

'These are very sick people," Salvana said of Walsh patients. "These aren't people seeking to get high on drugs, and many of the drugs part of this policy have nothing to do with opioids. They're not opiates. The patients were denied it, and as a result, the patients suffered needlessly.

"There's no class action lawsuit saying 'I went to prison and became addicted to medication," the doctor added.

DOCCS is an accredited member of the National Commission on Correctional Health and is required to adhere by the commission and American Public Health Association treatment standards.

"The department provides the community standard of medical care for all incarcerated individuals," Mailey said in a statement. "All DOCCS facilities have medical staff on site and individuals have access to medical services on a daily basis through the facility's sick call procedure. For the chronic or terminally ill, DOCCS provides specialized Regional Medical Units (RMUs) in selected facilities across the state.

"When medically necessary, individuals may be transported to a community hospital for emergency treatment or other medical services. DOCCS has agreements with health care providers and specialists at major hospitals across the state, as well as agreements with several smaller hospitals in close proximity to its facilities to ensure the medical needs of incarcerated individuals are met. If more extensive care is necessary, the incarcerated individual may be moved to another hospital which can provide the additional services."

The department regularly collaborates with the state Health Department about medical care within the state's incarcerated population, according to Mailey, but the Health Department does not oversee or regulate New York prison hospitals, except for medical treatments relating to infectious diseases such as tuberculosis, hepatitis C, HIV/AIDS and COVID-19.

Glenmont roundabout construction begins

By Melanie Lekocevic Capital Region Independent Media

GLENMONT — Prework on the planned roundabout and sidewalk extension project in Glenmont is underway with the bulk of the construction beginning in August.

The goal of the project is to improve traffic flow and increase safety, according to the town website.

"To reduce traffic congestion and improve vehicle and pedestrian safety, the town of Bethlehem is moving forward with plans to build a roundabout at the Route 9W/Feura Bush/ Glenmont Road intersection and extend sidewalks along Route 9W and Glenmont Road," according to a statement on the town website.

Project layout and survey work took place in June. Preliminary project work is being handled by contractors Rifenburg Construction and Creighton Manning. At the beginning of July, gas lines were relo-

Access to businesses in the construction zone will not be interrupted, town officials said.

Now that underground gas lines have been installed and temporary traffic signals were put up earlier this month, the town will move ahead with the major components of construction in August, according to the town.

Construction on the long-planned project was originally slated to begin in 2020, but was delayed due to the COVID-19 pandemic and associated shutdowns.

The cost of the project is $4.9 million. The project is funded by a grant from the New York State Department of Transportation, according to the town website.

Construction on the roundabout is scheduled to be completed next spring, according to the town.

Erin Sheevers named chief technology officer

BETHLEHEM — At its July 6 meeting, the Bethlehem Central Board of Education is expected to appoint Erin Sheevers as the district's new chief technology officer.

Sheevers is an educator and experienced leader in K-12 technology, having served as technology director at two area school districts for the last 10 years, including her most recent position as technology director for the Troy City School District.

Sheevers will be a familiar face to many in the district's student help desk.

The department provides technology hardware, software and infraMaryland. Her transition from classroom teaching to instructional technology and leadership, she said, was an outgrowth of her interest in professional development while still a teacher.

While in Baltimore, she helped launch a then first-of-its-kind Virtual Learning Lab in partnership with Johns Hopkins University and Lockheed Martin. She wrote curriculum and supported instructional colleagues for the learning lab that in 2009 was the first public-private partnership to introduce the use of games and simulations to improve instruction for high school students. After returning to the Capital Region, Sheevers worked for a vear at BC as a technology integration specialist and technology consultant supporting the district's Special Education and Student Services (SESS) department. In that role, she coordinated iPad integration for special education students providing teachers and students with an adaptive tool to help promote learning and level the playing field for students with disabilities.

"Maintaining access to businesses and keeping lanes open for commuting are priorities during construction," accord-

Sheevers received her bachelor's degree from Le Moyne College in political science, history and education. She holds a graduate certificate in Leadership in Technology Integration from Johns Hopkins University. She also holds a master's degree in Instructional Technology and Curriculum Development as well as School Building Leader and School District Leader certificates from the University at Albany. In looking ahead, Sheevers said she will be focused on applying the lessons learned during COVID to improve instructional technology in the near and distant future.

integral to COVID learning but we need to know where we stand and what our technology needs are going to be moving forward," said Sheevers. "There are definitely things we will want to keep, things we hope to refine and things we never want to see or do again."

She also said COVID has accelerated changes in how we prepare students for college and work life.

"For so long we have been training students to go to work," said Sheevers. "Now, work is coming to them. The traditional work environment has changed and we need our students to be prepared for a future that suddenly looks very different. The technology we use in school and how we use it can make a huge difference for a student of the 2020s." Superintendent Jody Monroe said she is excited to welcome Sheevers to her administrative leadership team.

"Erin's background is the ideal combination of experienced educator and seasoned technology leader. She has proven she can navigate a large school district through one of the most technologically demanding times in history," said Monroe. "That experience and know-how will be incredibly valuable as we look to make post-COVID teaching and learning at BC the best that it can be."

Sheevers said she is looking forward to what the district. In 2011-12, she worked as a technology integration specialist in Bethlehem and she is also a 2003 graduate of BCHS.

In her role as BC's chief technology officer, Sheevers will oversee a professional staff of nine and a staff of more than a dozen student interns employed throughout the school year as part of structure, data systems, and instructional technology support to 4,300 students and more than 800 faculty and staff districtwide. She is replacing Raymond Nardelli, who announced his resignation in June.

Sheevers began her professional career as a high school social studies teacher in Baltimore,

"Technology has been

she calls a "full circle" return to Bethlehem.

"I know the community," said Sheevers. "I left, came back, bought a house here and am raising my children here. I love Bethlehem and am ready to make a difference in the community that is my home."

Sheevers is set to begin her new role at BC on Aug. 9.

5 steps to help you successfully navigate today's housing market

In many parts of the country, home prices have been soaring. According to the National Association of Realtors, the median existing-home price rose more than 17% in the one-year period ending in March 2021. This reflects just how competitive the market has become for homebuyers.

If you are among those looking to purchase a new home, you should have a solid strategy in place before entering the market. Assume that any house you are interested in has drawn the attention of other potential buyers. In this environment, it helps to be prepared. Here are five steps that can put you in a more competitive position in today's home buying market:

#1 – Get your financial house in order

A top priority is to have a good handle on your current financial situation. If you are already a homeowner, this means having a clear idea of the value your home will bring in today's market and how much equity you have available. Another question is how much money you have set aside to cover a down payment on a mortgage or other expenses related to moving into a new place. It makes sense to sit down with your financial advisor so you are aware of your current financial capabilities to participate in today's market.

#2 - Look to professionals for help

Seek out the guidance of a real estate professional. Finding an agent through a referral from somebody you trust is the best way to identify a qualified agent. Don't be afraid to interview more than one to find the right fit. Also talk to a lending institution to get pre-approved for a mortgage (if you require financing). This is especially important if you are a first-time homebuyer and want to reassure potential sellers of your creditworthiness. #3 – Consider all of your options

It is easy to get your heart set on a particular community or neighborhood as you search out homes. If the supply is limited in your targeted areas, you may need to expand your horizons. Start by drafting a list of the priorities that help might want to lower your right time. define your ideal home sights a bit to make sure and setting. That dan be helpful in reviewing choid dent Media The Capital District Sportsman Center (CDSC) held its first-ever open house June 27 and by all reports it was a resounding success.

Over 250 outdoor enthusiasts got a sneak peak of the CDSC and its future vision, all while enjoying great live music, food and drink, pony rides, interactive wildlife displays, plus much more.

The organization is the brainchild of consummate veteran New York State Environmental Conservation Officer Brian Canzeri. It sprung as an offshoot of the Capital District Sportsmen's page he created on Facebook nearly three years ago, combined with P.J. Hyde's long-running Hoosick Falls Outdoors Show. The two formed a 501c and leased the vacant old Grafton Elementary School, which is now the permanent home to the Capital District Sportsmen's Center.

The CDSC's stated

mission is "to provide outdoor, conservation and life skill education and training as it relates to nature to the New York State Capital Region area, with a focus on the region's urban, suburban and rural youth."

They strive to educate and connect local youth and adults to the many outdoor opportunities that exist in the Capital Region. Their leadership attempts to accomplish passing on the principle of "conservation through education with integrity."

Media Briana Pechacek wants all New York veteran families to be eligible for programs meant to help the loved ones of deceased or disabled service members - just like her father.

U.S. Army Sgt. Steve Pechacek, of Ghent, sustained serious, life-altering leg and spinal injuries during live-fire combat training in South Korea in the early 1980s.

Pechacek, 57, is a severely disabled veteran, but unless a bill becomes law, his children are ineligible for the Military Enhanced Recognition Incentive and Tribute, or MERIT, scholarship intended for the children, spouses or financial dependents of American servicemembers who died or became permanently disabled.

The Pechaceks were surprised earlier this year when Briana's application was denied. The award provides financial aid to the children, spouses and financial dependents of members of the U.S. military who died, became severely disabled or injured while performing military duties.

The benefit comes with an interesting cutoff: Loved ones of service members are eligible if the veteran died or was injured in duty after Aug. 2, 1990.

Steve served in the Army's infantry from 1981 to 1985.

"Seeing the date was kind of aggravating because there's so many people that don't meet the cutoff date, and no veteran or veteran family should have to worry about their kid having debt after school, especially after serving the country," Bri-ana said. "That's something that should be automatic."

Briana, 18, is a 2021 Chatham High School graduate.

The night of her graduation June 25, Briana received an email from HESC with a heading including Gov. Andrew Cuomo's name announcing her MERIT scholarship application was approved. She was not required to reapply.

"I got it, and I'm super thankful that I got it, but I don't just want it for me,' Briana said. "I want it for everybody else that's also affected by it.'

After his daughter's application was denied, Steve relentlessly called and emailed his local representatives to inquire about changing state law.

"This was wrong," Steve said of the service cutoff date. "The date would affect other veterans and their families. You're leaving out Panama, Iran, Beruit, Yemen... there's so many conflicts. Who knows how many families of veterans wanted to go to school."

Families and state lawmakers have wondered why Gov. Andrew Cuomo has not signed the bill, which unanimously passed in both houses of state Legislature before the end of session, to remove the cutoff date and expand the scholarship's eligibility.

"This is one of nearly 900 bills that passed both houses this session and it remains under review by Counsel's Office," Gov. Cuomo's senior adviser Rich Azzopardi said in a statement.

Representatives with the governor's office would not answer multiple requests for comment about why the bill has not been signed or why Higher Education Services Corporation specifically reviewed and approved Briana's case, but Cuomo has not signed the bill to expand eligibility for all New Yorkers.

"The MERIT Scholarship bill we introduced, which expands eligibility to include service prior to 1990 for severely and permanently disabled veterans and their dependents, dependents of those service members deemed MIA, and Gold Star Families, passed in both legislative houses last month, and now awaits the governor's signature," bill spon-Assemblymember sor Didi Barrett, D-Hudson, said in a statement. "We have urged the governor to sign this bill as soon as possible, and I encourage others to reach out to his office as well. These service members and their families have already paid an incredibly steep price, and have waited too long for these overdue changes to the MERIT Scholarship program. New York should proudly step up and support our veterans and military families and encourage them to follow their educational dreams."

Barrett has remained in touch with the Executive Chamber since session ended to urge the governor to sign the bill, but has not received a response.

"My father, a member of the Greatest Generation, always said the squeak wheel gets the grease," Steve said. "I'm doing something that wasn't only for me. It's going to help other people. "This has nothing to do with politics. It's our veterans.'

Steve entered basic training at Fort Benning, Georgia, at 17. Steve enlisted at age 16, inspired to serve by his father, a World War II veteran who was involved in the Normandy Invasion and the Battle of the Bulge.

"My weapon became a runaway," the Army sergeant recounted. "It was firing without my finger being on the trigger."

Steve fell off a cliff on the difficult terrain while attempting to bite his ammunition-laden belt off to prevent the firearm from continuing to fire.

"The next thing I know, I'm being medivaced by helicopter and I messed up my leg pretty bad," Steve said. "My spine is a mess."

Pechacek, the former captain of Chatham Rescue Sqaud, and his family have lived in the county for more than two decades.

Originally from Long Island, Steve worked in radiology technology at Stony Brook University for several years before relocating upstate in the late '90s. He worked as an MRI and application specialist for General Electric.

Steve had 15 surgeries while enlisted.

His last surgery, his 44th, was in 2012, after a difficult procedure. He retired from work afterward.

Briana's father's injuries and ongoing medical treatments inspired her to enter the field. The Chatham High School graduate plans to study nursing at the College of St. Rose in Albany starting this fall.

"I've always been interested in being able to help people," Briana said. "I've known ever since I was really young just seeing my parents go through a lot of medical stuff, I wanted to be able to help them, but I couldn't. But now, I know I could help."

Thursday, July 29, 2021 B3

Bill co-sponsor Sen. Dan Stec, R-Plattsburgh, said last week he is confident the governor will sign the unanimously supported bill into law.

"In fairness, he's got the rest of the year for these bills to come his way," Stec said. "I don't know the inner workings and mechanics of how the second floor and the Legislature decide what bill to send to the governor in what order, so your guess is as good as mine. But I will be absolutely shocked if the governor hasn't signed the bill. There's zero reason for him to not sign this bill."

The legislative fight to fix the issue dates back to 2006.

Should I claim Social Security at 62 or wait?

Dear Rusty:

I turn 62 next year, and I am getting different answers to my questions so I hope you can help me.

The amount I would collect is different at 67 and 72. If I start to collect Social Security at 62, when I turn 67 will it go up to that amount? And go up again when I turn 72?

One person I spoke to said yes it does. The next person I spoke to said no — you get the amount for the age that you start to collect and that's all you get for the rest of your life. Please help me to understand if I should start to collect at 62 or should I wait?

Signed: Confused About When to Claim

Dear Confused:

First of all, your Social Security benefit stops growing when you turn 70, so waiting beyond that to claim will only cause you to lose benefits you are entitled to. Essentially you have an 8-year window to claim your Social Security benefits, and the amount you get will be based on the age you claim, relative to your full retirement age (FRA).

Your personal FRA is 67, and if you claim at age 62, you'll get get at your FRA. That reduction is permanent except for Cost of Living Adjustments (COLA), which may occur annually.

Whenever you claim, that is the amount you'll get for the rest of your life — it doesn't go up at age 67, or any other later age. But the question of whether you should claim at age 62 or wait longer is more complicated.

If you are still working, you should be aware that claiming at any time before age 67 will mean Social Security's "earnings test" will apply. The earnings test sets a limit for how much you can earn from working before SS takes away some of your benefits. For 2021, the earnings limit is $18,960 (it changes annually) and if that is exceeded SS will take away benefits equal 70% of what you would to $1 for every $2 you wait beyond your FRA are over the limit (we to claim should consider don't yet know what the 2022 limit will be, but it will be slightly more than the 2021 limit).

The earnings limit applies until you reach your full retirement age, after which there is no longer a limit to how much you can earn. If you exceed the earnings limit by a substantial amount, you could even be disqualified from receiving any benefits.

Other factors to consider when deciding when to claim are your health and your life expectancy, the urgency of your need for the money, and your marital status. The longer you wait to claim, up to age 70, the more your benefit will be. In fact, if you wait until age 70 to claim, your benefit will be 24% more than it would be at your FRA. But whether to your life expectancy. If, for example, you wait until age 70 to maximize your benefit, you will need to live until at least 83 to break even (average longevity for someone your current age is about 84).

If you are married and have higher lifetime earnings than your spouse, you should be aware that your spouse's benefit as your survivor, should you die first, will be affected by your age when you claim. If you wait and claim at a later age, your spouse's survivor benefit will be more (assuming your spouse's own benefit is smaller). If you claim at an earlier age, your spouse's survivor benefit will be less.

So, as you can see, there's no one simple answer for when you claim your should

Social Security benefits. Everyone's personal circumstances are different and deciding when to claim benefits should consider your entire situation, as described above.

We look forward to working with her to grow and adapt the Food Bank and have full confidence she will successfully lead the organization into the future." said Suzanne Anslow Gunther, president of the board of directors.

Nicol began her career and worked 20 years for IBM. She then worked in tal District including Saint Gregory's School, Catholic Charities and Albany Medical Center. Most recently she served as the interim director for the Food Bank of the Hudson Valley and assisted the Regional Food Bank with operations and philanthropic efforts during the pandemic.

"Molly's knowledge of the food bank, her leadership skills and her strong community relationships will serve the food bank well," said Mark Quandt, "With all we learned from our response to COVID, we know there are many opportunities to expand and improve our services to those in need. Molly is the right person to lead the food bank at this important time in its history."

Nichol is looking to move the organization forward and dealing with the challenges left by the COVID-19 pandemic.

"I am looking forward to working with the board, staff, volunteers, agencies, donors and community leaders in our 23-county service region," Nichol said. "Our capable leadership and staff worked tirelessly to address the challenges resulting from the COVID pandemic. We are well prepared to continue to grow, adapt and collaborate to meet the emerging needs of our neighbors who are hungry. I am honored to follow in the footsteps of such a committed and accomplished leader, Mark Quandt, and am thrilled to have the opportunity to work alongside a strong, dedicated and kind group of people. I look forward to making great strides to alleviate hunger in the region."

Nicol holds a degree in mathematics from Washington College and a Master's degree in bioethics from Albany Medical College. She resides in Loudonville. She began her role June 16.

ShopRite to donate up to $1M to participating schools

KEASBEY, NJ — ShopRite encouraged customers to take part in its ShopRite For My School program, an education rewards program powered by Box Tops for Education.

This unique program provides incentives to designated schools from ShopRite customers who purchase select General Mills, Wholesome Pantry Organic, Bowl & Basket, Paperbird and Paperbird Premium products — no clipping required.

By using their registered ShopRite Price Plus Club Card at checkout or through ShopRite from Home, customers collect digital "Box Tops" that are automatically credited to a customer's school of choice.

Registered ShopRite For My Schools customers earn a 10-cent bonus Box Top per participating product pur-chased. ShopRite has also pledged to donate up to $1 million to schools taking part in the ShopRite For My School Program.

"ShopRite has a strong tradition of giving back to the communities where our stores operate and that includes helping schools," said Seth Nieman, director of marketing and sales planning for ShopRite. "ShopRite For My School offers a simple and effective way for customers to help teachers and students get the supplies they need by building the rewards right into their weekly

Creepy crawlers: Do you have parasites inside you?

Do you wake up every night between 1 a.m. and 3 a.m.? Do you suffer from skin problems, bloating, digestive issues, chronic fatigue, anemia or mental fog that won't go away?

If you have tried countless ways to relieve your problems without any success, a parasite could be the underlying cause for your unexplained and unresolved issues.

Now before you freak out, consider this: The average person is crawling with hundreds of different strains of bacteria and yeast causing real damage inside the body. Most people believe the myth that parasites only infect those living in unhygienic conditions or underdeveloped countries.

But that's false. As the rate of international travel increased so has the rate of parasitic infections in U.S.

And the shocking reality is that 85% of Americans have some sort of parasite living inside them, even healthy people. These creepy crawlers can range from microscopic amoebas to 10-foot-long tapeworms and can enter your body in a number of different ways.

Tiny parasitic eggs can be transmitted from person to person through improper hygiene practices, contact with animals (I never let an animal lick me), undercooked meat, pork products, shell fish and other forms of contaminated food plus ponds, lakes or creeks. And these tiny eggs can be on any surface — door handles, tables, money and even the handles of your grocery cart.

Once entered in the body, parasites and their eggs travel to various organs where they produce a ton of toxins and inflammation that affect your sleep. So these nasty creatures living in your gut or bloodstream are very active at night and could be the reason for sleep interruptions.

And that's not all they do. Because parasites come in many different shapes and sizes, they can cause other problems. Some feed off your red blood cells causing anemia and other lay eggs that can cause itching and irritability.

Parasites are tricky to eradicate because they have a long reproduction cycle and clever protection mechanisms. But luckily there are powerful herbs such as Mimosa Pudica that have remarkable ability to eradicate these worms. It's considered by many experts to be the best herbal treatment for worms and larger parasites.

One final thought. Parasites love sugar and so it is absolutely crucial to avoid sugar and limit your consumption of foods that are converted into sugar-like fruit.

Please consult your physician before taking any supplement, especially if you are pregnant or planning to be.

Parasites seem to be more active during a full moon. They may even display more aggressive host-seeking behavior during a full moon. If you are sure your drainage pathways have been addressed, you may want to up the dose of Mimosa Pudica. That way you can take advantage of them coming out of hiding during the full moon.

If you still feel it may be affecting your sleep, play around with taking one larger dose early in the day instead of a dose in the morning and a dose at night. Some people have success with that method.

Tonawanda, sent a letter last Tuesday on behalf of 20 Republican senators in the chamber's minority conference to request the state Office of Court Administration and state Division of Criminal Justice Services conduct a thorough study and analysis of the state's bail reform laws and potential links to the violent crime surge across the state since January 2020 and publicize the conclusions.

Republican leaders across the state continue to tie the state's controversial cashless bail changes included in the 2019-20 budget, which went into effect Jan. 1, 2020, in the spike in shootings, homicides and other violent crimes since early last year.

"The timing of the recent surge in shootings and violent crime directly correlates with the implementation of changes to the bail laws passed by the majorities in the Legislature," according to Ortt's letter. "...It is common sense that releasing more defendants pending trial will lead to an uptick in crime. ... many of these individuals become repeat offenders. Releasing these individuals back out onto the streets only increases the likelihood they will re-offend pending trial."

Shootings in state metropolitan areas outside New York City increased 74.5% in 2020 compared rise an additional 41.6% this year from 2020.

"We have just received the letter and will be giving the requests by the senator due consideration," state Office of Court Administration spokesman Lucian Chalfen said in a statement.

The office did not respond to queries about the potential reasons for the crime spike, or the number of criminal cases a New York judge set bail for in 2019 and 2020.

Representatives from the state Division of Criminal Justice Services did not respond to a request for comment as of press time.

"The recent surge in shootings and violent crime all across the state have confirmed our worst fears — so-called criminal justice 'reforms' passed under one-party rule are a danger to all New Yorkers," Ortt said in a statement Tuesday. "Shootings are up. Hate crimes are up. While the governor's recently declared state of emergency finally acknowledges what the Republican conference has stated all along, that violence in our cities is a serious problem [and] it ignores the very policies and rhetoric he has embraced in the past two years: Bail reform, discovery reform and a war on our police. It's time for the governor to acknowledge the consequences of his actions, ining his own state data - not ignoring or whitewashing it."

Representatives with Democrats in the Senate majority conference declined to comment.

Shootings in New York City skyrocketed 97% from 2019 to 2020, with shootings up another 53% from last year's levels, according to the initiative.

Shootings, homicides, burglaries and car thefts exponentially increased in most U.S. cities in 2020, while other crimes, like sex offenses, declined. Each of those violent crimes and felonies remain eligible for cash bail in New York.

Cuomo declared an executive order July 6 and seven-step plan to combat surging gun violence in New York City focused on increased funding for intervention programs to engage at-risk youth in job opportunities, support ongoing gun violence prevention services and mapping shooting incidents to targeting violent city hot spots.

Assembly Leader Will Barclay, R-Pulaski, Ortt, and other state Republican leaders, including leading 2022 gubernatorial nominee Congresssman Lee Zeldin, R-1; have repeatedly criticized Cuomo's administration and Democrats in saying the COVID-19 pandemic is the main factor for the state and national increases in violent crimes, and not considering bail reform as a factor.

Earlier this month, representatives with the gova Politifact article from August that debunked former President Donald Trump's claim that New York eliminating cash bail for certain criminal offenses last year led to the state's dramatic spike in crime in urban areas.

Experts say it's too soon to understand the factors driving state and national crime rates.

A reported 482 people arrested in New York City for robbery and burglary January and February 2020 were arrested for committing a combined additional 846 crimes, according to the New York Police Department's Citywide Crime Statistics included in the Senate GOP's letter. The initial coronavirus outbreak and hit the state that March.

About 39% of the 482 accused, or 299 people, were later arrested for murder, rape, robbery, felony assault, burglary, grand larceny or grand larceny auto. The perpetrators would have been eligible for bail prior to the changes to the bail law, which was scaled back in the 2020-21 budget in early April 2020, Ortt noted in his letter.

"This state is in the midst of a self-inflicted crime crisis," the Senate leader said. "In order to come up with solutions, we must fully understand the consequences of recent policies. I believe that by repealing these policies and increasing support and funding for law enforcement, we can reverse this sharp increase in violence."
