Town: Should cannabis dispensaries be permitted?

By Melanie Lekocevic Capital Region Independent Media

COEYMANS Should cannabis dispensaries be permitted in the town now that they have been legalized in New York state? That is the question the Coeymans Town Council posed to residents June 24 during an informational public hearing at town hall.

"The state of New York has passed recreational marijuana consumption throughout the state," Town Supervisor George McHugh said to open the hearing. "At this point in time, towns, cities and villages can opt out of allowing retail dispensaries and/or onsite consumption via local law, subject to permissive referendum."

The town has until Dec. 31 to decide to opt out of permitting cannabis dispensaries within the town's jurisdiction, which would not include the village, McHugh said. The village can decide the issue for itself within the village's boundaries.

If the town were to adopt a local law opting out of the state law, which would ban cannabis dispensaries in the town, the decision would be subject to a permissive referendum so if enough voters signed a petition opposing the local law, the issue would be put to a vote.

The board is in the information-gathering stage at this point, McHugh said.

"I have not made up my mind as to either the pros or cons of opting out or not opting out, and that is the reason for this public hearing," McHugh said. "I don't think anyone on this board has — we have not made up our minds. There are certainly some pros to allowing retail dispensaries. That would be in the form of taxes. However, the taxes to the locality are certainly far less than the taxes, or the tax rate, that will go to the state."

"It's not a lot of tax," Baker said.

The town will hold a series of public hearings to gather community input on the issue of permitting cannabis dispensaries in the town.

Cannabis sales would be taxed at a 13% tax rate.

"It's a 9% tax on retail sales that goes to the state and an additional 4% tax that goes to the localities where the dispensary is located," McHugh said. "One percent is retained by the county, 3% goes to the town, city or village. The county is responsible for distributing the remaining 3% to cities, towns and villages based on the proportional share of sales of the dispensaries in each jurisdiction. This will occur on a quarterly basis."

The town is trying to gauge what the community thinks about the issue, McHugh said. Resident Barbara Tanner opposed permitting dispensaries in the town.

Class of 2021 graduates look to the future

By Melanie Lekocevic

Capital Region Independent Media

RAVENA-COEYMANS-SELKIRK - The 127 graduates in the Class of 2021 at Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk High School received their diplomas Saturday afternoon during an in-person commencement at the Times Union Center in Albany.

After the graduates filed in, Principal Dr. Lisa Patierne opened the program saying district families had raised "an amazing group of students."

"The Class of 2021 will always have a special place in my heart as they were freshmen the year that I came to RCS High School," Patierne said. "As I made my way around the classrooms, hallways, performances and games, saying hello and watching them grow, their kindness, warmth and respect have always inspired me. They made beautiful music, put on large theatrical productions, competed on our fields, helped those in need and worked hard to achieve their goals."

The students' perseverance, particularly over the past 15 months of the global coronavirus pandemic, proved particularly inspirational, Patierne said.

"These graduates who have surmounted the most difficult 16 months in the history of education will go out and do great things," Patierne said. "Together, they have overcome obstacles, they have relied on each other and they have done so with the utmost of grace.'

The top 10 graduates in the class received medals for their achievements. They included valedictorian Ashley Cross, salutatorian Grace Engel, Claire Pike, George White, Diya Mathai, Jared Lamson, Kyle Kerrigan, Amy Lin, Meaghan Houk and Lindsey Powell.

Engel thanked the faculty, staff, family and friends for helping the students achieve their dreams.

Valedictorian Ashley Cross recalled the memories of high school and saluted her fellow graduates.

AWB 3rd grader wins countywide design contest

By Melanie Lekocevic Capital Region Independent Media

SELKIRK — Third grader Kylie McGuiness has a message for all of us — "love, protect and reuse," when it comes to the environment.

Kylie, a student at A.W. Becker Elementary School, was the winner of Albany County's Reusable Bag Art Design Contest.

"I made an Earth that is a heart and then I put all of the things that we have to protect in it," Kylie said during a pizza party Albany County Executive Daniel McCoy threw for her class June 23.

Kylie's design features a heart-shaped Earth with oceans, wildlife, people, homes and trees, with the words "love," "protect" and "reuse" encircling the Earth. The bag also features Kylie's name, grade, school and the RCS School District beneath her design.

"We launched this program about using bags over and over again to make it fun so people would want to use the same bag with a theme on there that would show about recycling, that would show why it is important to care about the environment and how you can do your part," McCoy said during a press conference at the elementary school.

The goal of the contest is to reduce reliance on disposable paper bags to protect the environment, McCoy said in a statement.

"Students in grades three through five from throughout the county submitted their own design illustrations with corresponding slogans to raise awareness about the issue and Kylie's design was chosen during Earth Week," McCoy said. "Bags are free and will be distributed throughout the county."

Coeymans Town Supervisor

George McHugh attended the pizza party at the school and praised Kylie's artwork.

"A great cause and wonderful artistic talent from this young lady!" McHugh said in a statement.

Over a hundred designs were submitted, according to the RCS school district.

Also attending the June 23 pizza party were RCS Deputy District Superintendent C. Fred Engelhardt and Albany County Legislator Matt Miller, D-36.

Teaching young people about the environment is critical, McCoy said.

"One of the best things we can do to protect our environment is educate our young people about the importance of limiting waste sent to landfills and recycling as much as possible," McCoy said.

"It's such a cool bag. People are going to love it," he added.

Calendar......A10 State......

Kylie was also recognized by the Coeymans Town Council last week for creating her winning design. She was presented with a plaque honoring her achievement and a bouquet of flowers. "The town of Coeymans commends you for your beautiful artwork celebrating such a noble cause," McHugh told Kylie at the board's June 24 meeting. The artist's mother, Jennifer McGuiness, thanked the board for acknowledging Kylie's achievement and said the bags were also shared at A.W. Beck-

"We were able to send home a bag with every student and every staff member in our school," she said.

The reusable bags featuring Kylie's design will be handed out at Coeymans Town Hall, 18 Russell Ave.

TOWN from A1

"I am against it," Tanner said. "No amount of money should be gained through this. First of all, now we will be driving down the road with somebody who is high on marijuana, plus alcohol? No. I am not for it. It has been proven that marijuana interrupts brain development in teenagers — I really don't think we need this. We can make money some other way.'

Resident Jessica Roy, who said she has a background in criminal justice research and analysis, supports allowing dispensaries in the town.

"I think this would be a great opportunity to put the area on the map for something other than heavy industry," Roy said. "There have been peer-reviewed studies in scientific journals that have shown there is not really an effect on crime rates as far as cannabis dispensaries go. Some studies have even shown decreases in crime in the immediate area of the dispensaries."

Marlene McTigue, who works with the RCS Community Business Association and other area economic development initiatives, supported the measure and said it could prove profitable for the town.

"According to the Tax Foundation, which is the nation's leading independent tax policy nonprofit, they said that their estimates suggest New York state can raise around $180 million in the first full year of implementation, which would grow to over $400 million after three to four years," said McTigue, who is a former employee of the Ravena News-Herald.

People who use marijuana will do so whether they purchase it in Coeymans or elsewhere, she added.

"I believe in prosperity and growth for our community and this is an excellent opportunity," she said. "People are going to buy it — it would be a shame to see that revenue go to another community. For a long time, we have been seeing development to the north and to the south of us. This is an opportunity for us to gain some tax revenue on some programs that we need here in the community.'

Adam Roy, whose wife Jessica Roy spoke earlier in the meeting, said some concerns about cannabis are unfounded.

"I just want to put some fears to rest — studies have shown that the use of cannabis while driving is going to be prohibited just like every other state. It's illegal — just like drinking and driving," Adam Roy said. "The people that are going to be buying it, they are already using it so why not get the tax revenue? I think it's a super good opportunity for the town to really get a lot of good revenue and maybe even open up the doors for more employment."

Resident Matt McCormick said he supports permitting cannabis dispensaries as a business owner.

"I'm here as a businessman, not a user. A lot of people think that just because you are open to cannabis dispensaries or facilities you are a user," McCormick said. "I am not — I am here strictly as a business proposition, as a business opportunity. I look at it as a fantastic opportunity."

Town board members Brandon Lefevre and Zachary Collins both said they have not made up their minds about the issue and want to see what local residents think.

More hearings on the issue are expected in the coming months, McHugh noted. The town has until Dec. 31 to adopt a local law prohibiting dispensaries. If the town does not take action, it will automatically opt in to the state law.

of online school," Cross joked. "We have students who got into their dream colleges and others who already have work experience in their dream fields. No matter where we are going after today, I think we all have pretty good odds of getting everything we could ever want out of life."

She urged the graduates to take advantage of opportunities where they can find them.

"Over the next few years, our lives will change so much and we will grow in a way that is only possible through new surroundings," Cross said. "We will meet new friends, learn how to live independently and finally get to choose how to spend

John Barr of TCI NY talks about the lasting legacy of Gaby Newmark, co-founder of the Coeymans-based company

Gaby Newmark passed away at the age of 88. The company honored his life last August with a dedication ceremony at the opening of their new expansion facility in Coeymans.

"Gaby lived an extraordinary life," said Mr. Barr. "Along with his brotherin-law Sol Lefkovits the two holocaust survivors built up a company from a small business with five employees that dismantled electric motors into the G&S family of companies with 600 employees now an essential business supporting the power companies and utilities across America. It is a true American success story."

Gaby and Sol's story is one of perseverance, hard work and dedication to family. One that benefits many lives and protects the environment. The company takes transformers from the power companies, some that can weigh as much as a million pounds, to recycle, repurpose and refurbish them. 99% of the material is salvaged versus going into landfills.

"Our father's success in business was a direct result of their staunch values. They treated people the way they wanted to be treated. With respect and dignity," said George Newmark who is Gaby's son. George now runs the day-to-day operations along with Sol's son Jeffrey Lefkovits.

President, talks about the principals that guide the company. "I'm living proof of how Gaby and Sol ran the company. I started out on a road crew that went out to dismantle transformers at power promoting from within and giving incentives to those who run the other facilities. They rewarded hard work. This shows employees they have an opportunity to move up."

Mr. Barr adds, "Three years ago, we hired a young man by the name of Brett Margiasso to work on the production line. Today he runs an important section at the plant off-loading the trucks that deliver transformers. This is a huge responsibility separating out what can be salvaged and what is scrapped. Brett says, "If you genuinely pay attention and want to grow and build with this company, there is no reason you can't."

"The other day we had RCS students here who are the recipients of our annual college scholarships. Gaby and Sol loved giving back to the communities that gave so much to them," said Mr. Barr. "So many people will continue to benefit from what they built. It is their lasting legacy."

A community that deserves the name 'home'

To the Editor:

My husband and I moved to New York from the west coast in 2015 and have attempted to find a community that deserves the name "Home." Since settling in Ravena in early 2019, we believe we have found a home here.

Since coming to the community, I find our new neighbors positive and friendly. There are a number of organizations that support the needs of people in difficult situations and provide services that help people thrive.

On the other hand, driving down Main Street is terribly difficult. What should be a thriving downtown is full of burned and abandoned buildings. At the Landing, homes that should be fought over in bidding wars are rundown, abandoned and soot covered. The prize property, a brick and wood home from the early 1800s right above the river, is a multi-family that is in distress and stands empty. It seems the current government's main solution to such blight is the bull-dozer and the expansion of heavy industry. What I do not see are safe spaces for kids, or real efforts to draw in restaurants, boutiques, thrift shops, art galleries, and other businesses, through investments in beautification. I also see a disregard for human life on the state routes around the town like near the Sycamore Golf Club and Joralemon Park; places people are walking, bicycling and taking part in recreation while the posted speed limit is 55 - 45 and people actually drive 51 on average and sometimes up to 60 miles an hour.

I see that heavy industry has had its way here.

We live under the smog of a massive pollution creator that has been fined for damaging our local ecosystems and for emitting particulate dust that can cause serious respiratory disease. This is a human rights issue, and it seems our first line of defense against such abuse, the town government, has been asleep at the switch, singing the praises of these polluters instead of standing up for our town by holding them to account.

In other communities in the region, arts and small business have begun having a resurgence. We are within driving distance to Albany and to Hudson, and we have lower property values and lower taxes. We have so much to offer. The only thing we lack is the right leadership.

After George Langdon, our former county legislator who ran with Supervisor McHugh as part of the "Comeback Team" two years ago, spoke at Camp Pinnacle, saying people like me should be removed to an island and allowed to die off, I decided I could no longer watch from the sidelines. I reached out to the A-Team. Getting to know Cindy, Sara, Yvonne, and Sherle through meetings on social media and through private conversations has been very encouraging. These are the kinds of candidates that Coeymans needs in order to pull itself out of 1984 and reboot itself

Cindy Rowzee is as sensible and grounded as they come, and her administrative and regulatory expertise, combined with an intimate awareness of the Town's current situation, makes her promotion from no-nonsense for the 2020s.

Town Clerk to upstanding Town Supervisor an absolute homerun.

Sara Pruiksma, a successful artist, has run national and local art projects (including right here at PBC Elementary School), started a gallery, and manages her own studio. Her vision for how to breathe life into Ravena and Coeymans is exciting and crucial.

Yvonne Shackelton, an analyst whose deep knowledge of regulation and business climate is rivalled only by her strong family connections to our community, brings the capacity to see the big picture and plan accordingly for the long-term health and well-being of Coey-

Sherle Slingerland, a lifelong resident with a knack for accounting and years of experience in the banking industry, has been instrumental to the success of multiple community programs, and is ready to take the next step into public service.

I know these women are devoted to this place that we all call home, and that they have the drive to get the job done for their neighbors, friends, and families. Their professional experience aside, they are personable and approachable, intelligent, educated, and deeply committed to their community, the Town of Coeymans. Candidates don't get better than this! I am excited to work with them, and I encourage all my neighbors to give this slate — The Coeymans A Team — a very strong look. They are the leaders we need to make our town deserving of the name "Home."

imaginary world

I was sitting in my recliner the other day doing my exercises. I'm into surfing, mostly the educa-tional-type channels. Sure, it's tiring and sometimes my thumb cramps up, but I usually fight through the pain and get right back to my usual three to five channel changes a minute.

I came upon a real blast from the past when Bert and Ernie appeared on the screen. It's been years since I had seen my old pals. They brought back fond memories of The Princess curled up on my lap. I watched for a while hoping to see my personal favorite put in an appearance, but Cookie Monster was nowhere to be seen. Elmo did something with that big yellow chicken and the Count counted. All was right with the

I wondered how many of our old favorites were still to be seen. I know Babar is still around, I stumbled onto him a few weeks back. I suppose and hope Mister Rogers still lives somewhere in the back of my television set. I know that to the youth of today he's kind of hokie and old fash-ioned, but I trusted him with my children and he never let me down. In these days of computer graphics and special effects, his sock puppets don't have the dazzle that kids have come to ex-pect, but the last time I saw young ones watching one of his reruns, they were watching with their mouths open as the Trolley took them to The Land of Make Believe. You never got reality confused with the imaginary with Mr. Rogers. The Trolley separated the real world from the im-agined in a clear and tangible way and for a small child, there was comfort in that.

I never really got into Barney. An overweight dancing purple dinosaur with a weird voice just didn't turn me on. I don't think it was Barney so much as the plastic kids he hung out with that irritated me. A bigger bunch of goodie-goodie two-shoes has never been assembled in the same place in the history of entertainment. They all had impeccable manners, sang and danced on cue and were always smiling about something. As a teacher, they made me nervous. They probably will grow up to become serial killers or politicians.

I got thinking about some of the kids' shows that I grew up listening to — no pictures, just words. We gathered around the radio and listened to Sky King, The Lone Ranger, Roy Rogers and my favorite, Bobby Benson and the B-Bar-B.

I wonder whatever happened to Bobby. The other three made the jump to television and I was able to follow their adventures but Bobby Benson just sort of disappeared. He

I can still name all the major characters that appeared on the Howdy Doody Show. He was the first real truly television kids' show character that I can remember. He looked a lot like my broth-er Bud, who used to do an amazing impersonation of Howdy. He even got a Howdy Doody puppet for Christmas. It was hard to tell them apart, although the puppet did have more freckles, a better personality and a higher IQ.

Comfort in the | Toxic plants: Poison lvy

It is now officially GARDENING TIPS summer and most of us have all of our gardens planted, finally, and our biggest concern right now is keeping the crops weeded as they grow.

Most vegetable garden plants can tolerate a few weeds without suffering a major loss in yields, but any weeds in an ornamental garden are too many. It is a question of economics versus aesthetics.

Of course, some weeds are worse than others in our gardens, but some of the worst weeds will be found far away from the garden. One weed I have worked hard to eliminate from my immediate yard, roadside and nearby forest, is poison ivy.

Poison ivy is a native North American vine or shrub that is in the cashew family, which also includes pistachio, poison sumac, poison oak and mango. The sap of mango plants as well as the rind of the fruit contain urushiol, which is the toxin in poison ivy. Exposure to just 50 micrograms of urushiol, equivalent to less than a grain of table salt, causes a rash in 80% to 90% of adults, according to the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. It is a potent poison indeed. Anyone who peels mangos should wear gloves.

It grows much too plentifully in most of the United States and southern Canada to suit me. It can be found in all but one of the continental United States. Oddly, that one state is California, but poison oak grows there quite abundantly.

Poison ivy grows particularly well in disturbed sites. It seems like the more human activity that is occurring on a site, the more likely poison ivy will be found there. Parking areas along roadsides, creek sides, swimming holes, hiking trails or picnic sites are often the most heavily colonized by this aggressive weed.

Poison ivy usually grows as a vine climbing up on tree trunks, or just as commonly, straggling over the ground in sun or shade. It is pretty easy to recognize growing on the trunk of a tree or some other structure by the characteristic hair-like holdfasts that hold the vine against the trunk.

Sometimes poison ivy vines can get quite thick. I have seen poison ivy vines that were as thick as my neck growing 50 feet or higher up the trunk. But the plant may also form an upright bush if it has no support to climb upon and it may even look like a scraggly shrub.

The leaves of poison ivy are shiny green and may be irregular, with some egg shaped and others lobed; each of the three leaflets is usually no more than 2 inches long. Some look very much like oak tree leaves, but they always occur in threes, with two leaflets directly opposite each other and one leaflet above the pair. In the fall it has a pretty yellow or red color and larger plants produce hanging white berries that are relished by wildlife.

Poison ivy is sometimes confused with Virginia creeper, but Virginia creeper has leaves that are five lobed.

Poison sumac only grows in swampy areas and it is not a vine at all. I have never seen poison sumac in this area. The common sumac we see along roadsides with fuzzy stems and red berries is staghorn sumac, which is harmless.

The tissues of all these plants contain urushiol, which is somewhat like carbolic acid. Merely touching or brushing against the vine or leaves usually will not produce a rash. The plant must be bruised or damaged somehow to "leak" the toxic sap. Hand weeding it without gloves is a surefire way to contract it. Some people have contracted the rash on their hands merely by taking off their shoes after walking through a thick patch of poison ivy. People can get poisoned from contact if the oil remains on their skin, boots, gloves, etc. The toxin can remain potent for a year or more.

Once the rash begins, the itchy, pus filled eruptions themselves are not a source of infection. The poison ivy toxin lasts for at least a year and even dead vines on firewood may still infect someone. Pets that roll on it may infect their owners, too, when they return home.

The best way to deal with poison ivy is to learn to recognize the vine in all seasons and avoid it. Spraying it with weed killer at this time of year may simply stunt the current growth and it will return with even more vigor. Late fall (October) applications of glyphosate are pretty effective.

There is no way I will ever eradicate poison ivy from my property, but at least I can keep it far enough away from my house to not worry about a visitor's child or dog getting into it. Reach Bob Beyfuss at

I'm still here!

I'm sitting here surrounded by love. Noah is on my left and Caleb on my right, sitting on the sofa. The doorbell just rang and Noah leaps to his feet ... pizza!

If circumstances were different, it would be a typical Friday night, but tonight everyone is feeling a bit subdued. Last week I shared with you my health news. The outpouring of love has been overwhelming. I will not possibly be able to respond to all the email and social media messages. Just know I'm grateful for each and every one.

I'm not a fatalist. Yes, I'm in hospice, and yes,

Positively Speaking

Gary W. Moore

I'm told that I'm dying, but I struggle to believe that it's the final word. I'm fighting to stay alive. I will forever be a "prisoner of hope," and I'll never stop hoping for life here on earth, and my ultimate hope is in the promise of Heav-

So many of you ask, "How do you cope with knowing you are going to die?"

A dear old friend, Roger Roussell sent me this quote ...

"Nothing in life is to be feared. It is only to be understood."

Marie Curie

I understand the cold, hard truth that we are all going to die. Some sooner than others, and I suppose I'm on that sooner list.

I cope because I know I can rely on God's promises. If not, I'm sure I'd be a mess. I can cope because I've known this day was coming for over a year and I'm ready. I'd rather not go, but cancer is a killer and we've exhausted all our possibilities that we are aware of today. Tomorrow may be a different story. I have hope that before I die, there will be a breakthrough that gives me more time. If not, that's OK too. I've lived a big happy life. I have a beautiful and independent family that will carry on.

Last night a tornado passed my daughter's home within a few blocks and cut a devastating path, leaving 34,000 without power.

The damage and death toll are still not known. The difficult reality with this life is that it's never if hardship or tragedy will come, but when. These moments are never easy, and these moments bring about grief, pain, trauma and heartache. When these moments come, we all reach a crossroad how will we respond?

To be hope-filled, positive and optimistic is not to ignore the hardship, but to face it head on. It's a decision to take the bull by the horns (or the cancer!) and give the best fight we've got, all the while choosing to cling to hope and embrace the everyday joys of life.

It isn't if... but when hardship comes. How will you respond?

Since it truly is a choice we make. Why would we choose otherwise?

Today I choose hope, joy and gratitude.

OBITUARIES

Louise M. Van Tassel

Louise M. Van Tassel, age 92 of Saratoga Springs, NY, passed away peacefully at home on Saturday, June 19, 2021. Born June 26, 1928, in Greycourt, NY, she was the daughter of the late Harry F. Decker and Margaret A. Muir. She was predeceased by her beloved husband, Raymond D. Van Tassel.

Louise held a deep and abiding love for "her Catskill Mountain." She was an avid reader with a particular interest in history, and a prolific writer of poems, which she enjoyed sharing with her family. She devoted many years to her favorite pastime as an amateur genealogist and was a major contributor to the Van Tassel family genealogy book.

She is survived by her daughters, Roberta Buff (Bernard), Shirley Valestin (Robert), and Lillian Van Tassel; grandchildren, Roberta Ferraioli (Andrew), Bernard Buff Jr. (Cathleen), Marianne Pierro (Steven), Raymond, Matthew, and Mark Buff, and Jennifer Archambault (Michael); great-grandchildren, Justin Ferraioli (Anita), Maeve, Anika and Celeste Buff, Michael and Thomas Pierro, Alexis Keegan (Gerald), Elizabeth, Julianne, Carolyn, Zachary, Jeanette, and Nicholas Archambault; great-great-granddaughter, Lena Ferraioli; and many nieces and nephews. She was predeceased by her brothers and sisters, Francis, Chester, James, Corcelia, and Roberta.

All services will be private. She will then be interred at the Potter Hollow Cemetery. For those who wish, memorial contributions may be made to either the Community Hospice, Gift Processing Center, 319 S. Manning Blvd., Albany, NY 12208 or Orange County Genealogical Society, 101 Main St., Goshen, NY 10924. Arrangements by A.J. Cunningham Funeral Home, Greenville. Condolences can be posted at ajcunninghamfh.com.

Celebration of Life: Ronald W. Thayer

A Service of Celebration of the Life of Ronald W. Thayer will be held July 10th at 11:00am at the First Reformed Church of Bethlehem, 38 Church Road, Selkirk, NY. Burial will take place at Elmwood Cemetery following the service, and a light repast will be held at the church following the burial.

Ronald W. Thayer, 75, of Plainfield, NJ passed away on December 5, 2019. Born in Albany, NY, he was predeceased by parents, Richard James Thayer and Margaret (Heath) Thayer, and nephew, Richard J. B. Thayer. He is survived by his sister, Marcia Thayer Way (Sanford), brothers Richard L. Thayer (Dawn), James L. Thayer (Michelle), many nieces and nephews, and dear friend & musical partner,

RONALD W. THAYER

Edwin Lopez. Ron was a pianist, organist, voice teacher and choral conductor. He performed in two-piano and 4-hand-piano-duet recitals with pianist Edwin Lopez, including a concert in France sponsored by the French national cancer society. Ron received his Bachelor's and Master's degrees in performance from Westminster Choir College in Princeton, NJ. He served in the United States Air Force during the Vietnam War, stationed in Seoul, South Korea. There he still pursued his love of music, forming and leading the Seoul Collegium Chorale. Ron devoted a number of years of his life to pipe organ building and maintenance, and was instrumental in helping to design and install the 5,124-pipe Gilbert F. Adams organ at Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church, in Plainfield, New Jersey. To say that music was Ron's passion is an understatement; it was his life! He lived life with great enthusiasm and spirituality, dreamed beyond the possibilities, and demonstrated profound generosity that touched many, many

G L A S S I wanted to thank everyone within the Ravena / Coeymans / Selkirk communities for their continued support over the last year. It has been difficult at times but we have managed to get through it and provide a helpful community service. We are back to regular business hours Mon - Fri 10am - 5pm / Sat 10am - 3pm / Closed on Sundays

Currently, with the volume of bottles and cans we are only taking drop offs-bring in your empties, place them in a designated area, we take your name and then give you the earliest time frame to come back or any time thereafter to collect your money. Since opening in July 2018, we have helped raise approximately $52,500, which is almost 924,000 bottles/cans for 50 different organizations which anyone can donate to.

We look forward to servicing the community in the future. If you have any questions regarding operation, donations or fundraisers please reach out....

Tempers flare on the track

By Mark Kane

For Capital Region Indepen-dent Media

There are times in this sport of racing when you have to just sit back and shake your head and wonder where the sport is going.

There are some teams that have a ton of money to throw at their cars no matter what division and others on a limited budget. Being involved in a crash can take them out for the season. For some it is a hobby and others it is much more, they thrive on winning and it seems as if that drive to win has overtaken their ability to RACE. RACE being the key word in that sentence.

I understand winning is the ultimate goal for each and every driver on the track or beating the guy ahead of you, but at what expense?

So far in 2021 it seems many are taking the easy way out and have decided it is easier to drive right through someone rather than race them clean and use their talent and time in the shop to win races and not the front bumper. With the speed teams are carrying, things can happen fast and go bad even faster without the help of someone plain out dumping another driver or putting a car into a hole that is not big enough for a VW, let alone a race car. I myself have never raced. Well, that is not quite true — I turned many laps behind the wheel of the 900 Modified of Karl Haussel in his garage as a young race fan with elbows up and a helmet that covered my eyes, as you can imagine it was way too big, but that did not matter — I was living the dream of a young race fan.

I hear it over and over: "He was a lap car and was in the way." They need to remember those lap cars are also paying their way into the pits and are putting fans in the stands and without them we are going to see some pretty small fields of race cars in the pits on a weekly basis. Even today's champions were being lapped when first starting out or even missing the setup.

For the most part drivers obey the move-over flag, but when you are in the top 15 and racing nerf bar to nerf bar clean with someone you don't expect to be taken out by the leader, or running wheel to wheel with someone you just passed clean, you hope he don't take you out as well as 4 of the top 5 cars. Maybe it is me, or the RACE fan in me, but that is what I am there to see, racing, not a demolition derby as someone pounds their way to the front or dumps someone for the win. To me a win should be earned with talent and hard work in the shop, not with the front bumper.

For some, I guess, it is all about the win at all

cost no matter what the cost or losing the respect of fans and more than that the other drivers. To some, it just does not matter.

ALBANY SARATOGA

For the second week in a row Albany Saratoga had to deal with Mother Nature but for the second week in a row she would not win. Fresh off back-to-back wins Kenny Tremont was looking for his third win and if he was to pull it off he would have to come from deep in the powerful Modified staring field and that is something that is tough to do even for the crafty veteran.

For the second time this season the "Great Race Place" would add a new name to the distinguished list of winners. After earlier in the year when three-time Sportsman champion Jeremy Pitts picked up his first Modified win, this time it was the "Ginga Ninja" Jack Lehner picking up the impressive win. The very likable and talented Lehner, who picked up a win at the Fonda Speedway earlier in the year, also his first at Fonda Speedway worked his way from the eighth starting spot to claim the win.

At the drop of the green it was Elmo Reckner with the early lead before one of the true veterans of Albany Saratoga Speedway Don Ronca grabbed the lead on lap 10 as the second-generation driver, who has paid his dues over the years, was fast. When the first caution came out it was Reckner, Ronca and Kris Vernold holding down the top 3 with Lehner already to fourth with young Derrick McGrew holding his own in the top 5 as Matt DeLorenzo was on the move to sixth.

Once back to green it was Lehner working his way to third as DeLorenzo was now fifth. With Ronca out front, Lehner was closing and closing fast as the Ronca 7 was starting to get loose in the turns. Behind the leaders it was a dog fight as Jessey Mueller and former champion Peter Britten were just outside the top 5 and behind them 2020 champion Mike Mahaney, Anthony Perrego and Tremont were looking for racing room inside the top 10. The caution again flew this time for CG Morey in turn 4.

Once back to racing things started to heat up as Lehner started to put pressure on the Ronca machine and was all over the rear deck of the leader with DeLorenzo a close third as they raced clean and hard as Britten, Mahaney and Perrego were now in the hunt.

Lap 26 Found Ronca slip high in turn 2 and go over the bank as Lehner would be the new leader and would have to hold off a determined DeLorenzo and that he did as he picked up his first ever Albany Saratoga win with DeLorenzo a close second with Mahaney, Perrego and Britten rounding out the top 5. The points battle is tight as Anthony Perrego with his consistency leads the way without a win with 392, Mike Mahaney and Marc Johnson are now tied for second with 376, Ken Tremont Jr. with back-to-back wins has 344 points, with Lehner and DeLorenzo also tied with 336. The top 10 are only separated by 90 points, one bad week and things can change quickly.

IN OTHER ACTION

In other action Tim Hartman picked up his 31st Sportsman win and is now just two wins away from becoming the all-time Sportsman win leader over Mike Ballestero.

Starting 23rd on the field, Hartman worked his way steadily through the field as veteran Ron Proctor and Jim Nagle were battling out front with Nagle getting the lead on lap 15. The first caution tightened up the field on lap 22, a caution that Nagle was not looking for. Once back to green Hartman was now second and would make the pass and go on to pick up the win as Nagle, Joey Scarborough, Proctor and Andrew Buff rounded out the top 5.

The Pro Stock feature found Chad Jeseo pick up the win that found many cars with heavy damage and Jay Casey on his roof on the front straight and other than the leader the top 5 either went to the pits or the back after heavy contact between turns 3-4.

The limited Sportsman found Tyler Rapp picking up the win with Al Relyea picked up the Street Stock win and Justin Phillips was the USAC Midget winner.

FONDA SPEEDWAY

It was a special night at the "Track of Champions," Fonda Speedway, with the annual Bill Ag Memorial Match race, which has grown over the years to become very lucrative for the driver who can win the event.

For the third time in its history, it was Ronnie Johnson picking up the money as he went out and defeated Craig Hanson, current point leader Josh Hohenforst, Mike Mahaney and Rocky Warner, who later in the night would claim the SUNO-CO Modified 30 lap feature. For his efforts RJ, Ronnie Johnson, picked up a cool $5,600 from the family, friends and other supporters of the event for just 10 laps of racing turning back the challenge of each driver one at a time.

Just as the SUNOCO Modifieds came to the Speedway on their parade lap rain began to fall, sending the drivers back to the pits for a short delay in the start. Once the rain had cleared it was race time with JaMike Sowle grabbing the early lead with Steve Akers behind the wheel of his NOLEN Propane 27A, working hard to hold off the challenges of Adam McAuliffe and Ronnie Johnson, who was looking to add to what he had already pocketed.

By lap 5 the top 5 consisted of Sowle, McAuliffe, Johnson, Warner and Jack Lehner fresh off his Friday night win. On the move was Stewart Friesen, who was working his way to the front on the high side of a very fast smooth race track as the leaders were quickly catching the back of the

By lap 7 Sowle, who was setting a blistering pace, was into lap traffic as McAuliffe was closing and was all over the Palmer Service 76 machine and made the move to be the new leader as Sowle

Can God heal us? Of course! We do not need to speculate or wonder about His ability to provide miracles and bring restoration even in the most difficult situations.

Jeremiah 17:14 says, "Heal me, O Lord, and I shall be healed. Save me, and I shall be saved: for Thou art my praise."

Whatever the case, we can believe and know without a doubt that our heavenly Father desires to help us in our time of need whatever it might be, and yet, we look around and notice that many have not received their answer.

When we begin to investigate the truth about healing and miracles, it does not take long to discover this is a complicated subject that includes conditions that must be taken into consideration. I realize some people do not believe in the blood covenant of Christ or the gifts of the Spirit found in I Corinthians chapter 12 or that Jesus is still providing miracles today, but what are we to do with verses like Mark 16:17-18, and James 5:14-15 just to name a few? Old and New Testament scriptures such as these are relevant today the same as every command and promise of God.

God's word is a light unto our path and a lamp unto our feet. Jesus wants us to follow Him without stress and anxiety and to trust that He is in control.

Our existence is not an accident or the result of a random chance, but rather a deliberate act of intensive planning and divine order by the one who created us. God has

Philippians declares, "And I am certain that God, who began the good work within you, will continue his work until it is finally finished on the day when Christ Jesus returns."

Yes, we do have responsibilities and there are certain conditions, but as we listen, trust, and obey, He will reveal to us His perfect will. To the children of Israel, it was the mighty Egyptians in bondage, to David it was an intimidating giant

Registration open for 43rd Registration

ALBANY — Online registration for the 43rd Freihofer's Run for Women, which is set for Saturday, Sept. 25 at 9 a.m., is now open at freihofersrun.com.

All registrants receive a high-performance womcommemorative en's T-shirt, Freihofer's products, chip timing, live results, printable finisher certificates, and post-race refreshments courtesy of Price Chopper Supermarkets. The registration fee is $30 through Aug. 30.

Runners of all abilities looking to get in shape for the region's premier all-women 5K can also sign up now for the Freihofer's Training Challenge, which begins Monday, July 12, at 17 sites in Albany, Rensselaer, Saratoga and Dutchess counties. The 11-week program, which costs $55, follows a beginner's 5K training plan and features weekly, small group training sessions led by mentors. Participants also receive emails with each day's workout schedule, a tech shirt and clinics on strength training, nutrition, run form and injury prevention.

A virtual program is also offered for those concerned about being around others or who plan to be away during the summer. For a $40 registration fee, participants receive weekly workout emails, a tech shirt and the program's educational resources sent electron-

"The Training Challenge typically begins in March when there's snow on the ground," said FRW Event Director Kristen Hislop. "This year, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, our Training Challenge is starting later in the year and the weather will be much nicer. We're hoping more women will give their motivation a boost, improve their health and make some new friends by signing up."

The Training Challenge's beginner's program is for women who are new to running or are coming back after a break. The program starts with walking and jogging and progresses as the race date approaches.

"The intermediate program is for those who have completed a 5K or want more challenging workouts, while our advanced program is for those athletes ready for focused speed and distance workouts," Hislop added. "These women should already be able to run five or more miles at a time.

"Both the in-person or virtual Training Challenge are designed to prepare you for the 43rd Freihofer's Run for Women," Hislop continued. "When registering for the 5K, choose the in-person or virtual option (same cost) and the virtual Training Challenge on the main screen. To register for the in-person Training Challenge, you'll need to continue through the registration process to add on the Training Challenge and then select a site of your choice for your in-person workout sessions."

now had Johnson and Warner to contend with as both Johnson and Warner quickly worked their way past Sowle and set their sights on the leader. Josh Hohenforst was working his way into the top 5. With McAuliffe out front the duo of Johnson and Warner started to close on the leader and were racing hard as Warner worked his way into second past Johnson. With 15 down and 15 to go, McAuliffe now had to contend with Warner, Johnson, Lehner and Hohenforst all sitting in the top 5 in points. Behind the leaders Friesen was working his way through the field, as was Mike Mahaney. Quickly things started to heat up as the leaders were racing close in heavy lap traffic that were also racing for position and not off the pace, contact was made between the front bumper of Warner and the rear bumper of Robert Bublak, the final tap, if you want to call it that, sent Bublak spinning collecting the 44 of Friesen to bring out the yellow.

During the caution Friesen made his way to the hot pit and would return and start behind the cars that were on the lead lap in 12th. Once back to green the fine ride for McAuliffe ended with mechanical woes as the yellow was once again out, handing the lead to Warner for a single file restart.

Now it was Mahaney making his presence felt quickly moving to fourth. Once again Friesen started a charge to the front and was coming to the front quickly, working his way into the top 5 as Mahaney worked his way around Lehner. With Warner out front, Friesen was not done yet, working his way around both Lehner and then Mahaney for third.

At the checkers it was Warner, Johnson, Friesen, Lehner and Mahaney rounding out the top 5 with current point leader Josh Hohenforst sixth. Having a great run was outsider Alex Yankowski with a fine seventh at the finish and Steve Akers holding on for his best finish of eighth with a broken rear shock after a busy week in the shop changing the car completely.

While being interviewed during the postrace interview the fans were showing their displeasure loud and clear with Warner and his involvement that brought out the yellow on lap 21.

Another Saturday night and another great race in the Pro Stocks that has become the norm. At the drop of the green it was Gary Silky, who is calling Fonda Speedway home in 2021 after several seasons at Lebanon Valley, as the early leader before Jim Normoyle powered his way to the front to lead lap 3 and held on for the popular win, holding off Nick Stone and Kenny Gates at the checker with Ivan Joslin and Chuck Dumblewski rounding out the top 5 and Silky hanging on for sixth. Lap 12 saw the red flag for Steve Cosselman, who made heavy contact with the wall between turns 3-4 and flipped. Cosselman walked away from his damaged car.

MY VIEW

Supporting local means supporting local newspapers

By Dean Ridings

CEO, America's Newspapers As we continue to emerge from the pandemic, there's a sense of relief and optimism that things will return to normal. Long-awaited family gatherings, birthday parties and graduation ceremonies are finally happening in person. Sporting events have fans in the stands, airports are busy, and we all are in the process of reclaiming those elements of life we've missed the past year.

However, with that optimism is the reality of the impact the pandemic had on local communities. Local businesses that struggled through the past year, if they were able to stay in business at all, are still trying to recover and regain lost revenues. These locally owned restaurants, shops and services are vital to our economy and provide valuable jobs and important resources. Whenever you can, please Shop

Local and Eat Local. You can add your local newspapers to the businesses that need your support. During the pandemic, newspapers provided the critical information needed to protect the health and safety of their readers. And, that level of commitment has continued with the most relevant information about vaccines and plans for schools to return to normal in the fall.

The importance of local newspapers reaches well beyond the pandemic. Local newspapers cover the issues most important to their communities. From crime to local schools to local government, readers can rely on their newspaper to provide the latest news that will impact them directly. Without vibrant newspapers, cities and towns across the country would surely suffer.

Newspapers were hit hard during the pandemic, just like other businesses. Advertising revenue, which was already in decline, dropped significantly. While more readers turned to newspapers and their websites for information than ever before, that didn't generate enough additional revenue to bridge the gap. The result is that newspapers need your support now, more than ever.

Fortunately, the importance of newspapers is being recognized in Washington. Legislation has been introduced to help protect newspapers from the business tactics of Big Tech companies that often use newspapers' content without compensation. On June 16, the Local Journalism Sustainability Act was introduced as a bipartisan effort to recognize and protect local newspapers and the journalists who deliver valuable content.

The LJSA is unlike other bills in that it delivers benefits to readers and advertisers for supporting newspapers. Subscribers will be able to get a tax credit for their subscription, local businesses can get tax credits for advertising in newspapers and other local media, and newspapers would receive tax credits for their newsroom employees.

These legislative efforts deserve your support and the support of your government representatives. Contact your congressional representative and asked them to co-sponsor and support the Local Journalism Sustainability Act that ensures newspapers continue to serve their readers and advertisers.

And, while you Shop Local and Eat Local, we encourage you to continue to Read Local and subscribe to your local newspaper. Supporting your newspaper is one of the best things that you can do to directly strengthen vour community.

On behalf of its approximately 1,500 newspaper and associate member companies, America's Newspapers is committed to explaining, defending and advancing the vital role of newspapers in democracy and civil life. We put an emphasis on educating the public on all the ways newspapers contribute to building a community identity and the success of local busi-

A confusing question on benefits

Dear Rusty:

When my father passed away and we went to update my mother's Social Security benefits, a question arose that I was confused by. We were asked, "Do you want to claim just your father's benefit (which was larger) or claim my mother's benefit and the difference between the two?" Either way it would come to the same amount.

Is there a reason to claim one way over the other? Perhaps a caveat that we are unaware of? Is there a loophole that we are missing that may potentially benefit the survivor? We are soon to face this question again as my father-in-law is very ill.

SOCIAL SECURITY MATTERS

GLOOR Signed: Curious

Dear Curious:

Well, they are basically the same amount but there is a nuance in the rules that many survivors aren't aware of.

Here's why Social Security asked that claimed, the higher per-question: It is possible for a surviving spouse to claim only the survivor benefit and defer claiming their own SS benefit until a later age if their personal benefit would be more than the survivor benefit would be. A survivor benefit reaches maximum at the survivor's full retirement age, but their personal SS benefit can grow until they are 70 years old. Thus, claiming the survivor benefit (only) first, and allowing their personal benefit to grow up to age 70 is often a wise move.

Doing so allows someone to collect survivor benefits upon becoming a widow(er), while still maximizing their personal benefit. When later sonal benefit will replace the smaller survivor benefit. Of course, this option only makes sense if one's personal benefit would later be more than their survivor benefit.

Social Security is required to ask this question because the person may be eligible for a higher benefit on their own if they wait until a later age to claim it, but the "survivor bene-fit only" option is useful only if the survivor has not yet reached 70 years of age. After age 70 they would always take whichever benefit is higher.

In most cases SS pays the person's own benefit first and then a "boost" to bring the payment up to the higher amount due as a survivor. But the choice to claim the survivor benefit only is an option if the survivor has not yet reached 70 and if their own benefit could later be more than their survivor benefit.

So, the question is which option did your mother choose? And is your mother-in-law under age 70? If your mother's own benefit at age 70 would not have been higher than her survivor benefit from your father, then it doesn't matter which way it was recorded. And if your mother-in-law is over age 70, it doesn't matter either. But if not and either personal benefit at age 70 would be more than their earlier survivor benefit, then opting for the survivor benefit only and waiting to claim their own later would be (or have been) a better choice.

Hearing set for proposed animal abuse registry

By Melanie Lekocevic

Courtesy of Columbia-Greene Media CATSKILL — A public hearing has been scheduled to consider legislation creating an animal abuse registry for Greene County.

The Greene County Legislature will hold a public hearing July 21 at 6:20 p.m. at the county building, 411 Main St. The hearing will be available both in person and virtually.

Local Law No. 2 of 2021 would establish an online registry of individuals convicted of crimes against animals.

"Animal abusers have a high rate of recidivism and is often associated with violence towards humans," according to the legislation. "It is the intent of this law to restrict those persons who have committed serious animal welfare crimes to be banned from owning or living with an animal for a period of 15 years and to be listed on the sheriff's website in order to restrict their ability to obtain an ani-

There are animal abuse registries in 20 counties in New York state: Albany, Bronx, Broome, Cattaraugus, Chau tauqua, Dutchess, Kings, Nassau, New York, Niagara, Onondaga, Orange, Putnam, Queens, Richmond, Rockland, Suffolk, Sullivan, Ulster and Westchester.

The issue was first raised by Jamie Mitchell, founder of Hyer Ground Rescue in Catskill, who presented the proposal to the Legislature at its June 2 meeting.

But the registry has been in the works for more than a

"We had the request over a year ago from Hyer Ground Rescue," Linger said. "[Mitchell] has been working with the sheriff's department for the last year amidst COVID, so it just took some time to get it going."

The goal is to ensure individuals convicted of crimes against animals are unable to adopt or purchase an animal.

The proposed law defines "animal" as "any living mammal, bird, reptile, amphibian or fish."

Animal abuse crimes, as defined under the proposed legislation, are included under the New York State Agriculture and Markets Law Article 26 and under New York State Penal Law.

State law prohibits animal fighting; torturing or injuring animals; failing to provide proper sustenance; aggravated cruelty to animals; failing to provide appropriate shelter for dogs left outdoors; electroistries include the name, cution of fur-bearing animals; confinement of companion animals in vehicles in extreme temperatures; poisoning animals; declawing cats; and other crimes against animals.

"We hope [the registry] will prevent future cases of animal abuse and also that it leads to action at the state level, where it would be easily searchable statewide," Linger said. "Right now it's not easily searchable — you have to go to each county that has one."

While there are animal abuse registries in 20 counties in New York, there is no statewide registry.

"It really should be taken care of at the state level, but counties are doing it on their own because of a lack of action at the state level," Linger said.

Local animal advocacy groups welcome the establishment of an online registry.

"Finally — we were hoping this would happen," said Katrin Hecker, founder of AnimalKind in Hudson. "I am very happy. We were waiting for this for many years and I hope Columbia County will do this as well. It is something that is very much needed and will make our work much easier."

Hecker and Mitchell have been outspoken about their support for a registry and hope to present it to Columbia County once the Greene County registry is up and running, Hecker said.

Susan Kayne, founder of

"Registries are a wonderful public benefit for the protection of animals," Kayne said.

State law would ban racehorse slaughter slaughter is awaiting a decision from the

Courtesy of Columbia-Greene Media State legislation banning the sale of racing and breeding stock horses for governor's office. The Senate bill, S1442-B, and the accompanying Assembly legislation, A4154B, would amend New York State Agriculture & Markets law to forbid the slaughter of these animals for commercial purposes, including human and animal consumption.

"The purpose of this legislation is to ensure the prohibition of inhumane slaughter of retired racehorses and breeding stock," according to the Senate bill. "The legislation also increases access to funding for appropriate care of retired racehorses." The bill also provides for a process enabling individuals and corporations to make voluntary contributions through tax returns to fund aftercare programs for horses. The law would also require the animals to be fitted with microchipped.

The legislation was passed unanimously June 1 in the state Senate and June 9 in the Assembly.

"Our neighbors to the north still practice the barbaric act of slaughtering horses for human consumption," bill sponsor Assemblyman Gary Pretlow, D-Mount Vernon, said Wednesday. "It has been outlawed in the U.S. for years, but Canada and Mexico still do it. When horses outlive their 'useful lives' they are sold off to kill pens in Canada where they are brutally slaughtered and chopped up and sold to Europe and Asia for human consumption. I don't think horses should be treated that way."

State legislation that would ban the slaughter for retired racehorses and breeding stock is awaiting a decision from the governor.

Horse slaughter and euthanasia are not the same thing, according to the New York State Humane Association.

"Euthanasia means a painless death. Horse slaughter involves striking a horse several times with a 'captive bolt," according to the organization's website. "Despite being struck by the captive bolt, sometimes the horses are not properly stunned, but rather remain conscious, requiring several blows before they are rendered unconscious."

Horses sold for slaughter frequently face other forms of inhumane treatment including abuse during shipment to slaughter houses, according to the group. The legislation also provides for tracking what happens to racehorses when their racing careers are over.

"These horses, especially the thoroughbreds, who have a short racing career, if they are not fit for stud, there is not much use for them," Pretlow said. "This legislation provides for retraining for these horses for other careers — we are requiring the owners of the horses to be responsible for the horses and we follow what happens to them."

The Unbridled Thoroughbred Foundation, based in Coxsackie, applauded the state legislation and urges Gov. Andrew Cuomo to sign the bill.

The group has advocated for equine protection legislation since it was founded in 2004, said Susan Kayne, president of Unbridled.

"I have spent much time lending language to legislative initiatives to reveal the reality of Thoroughbred slaughter, and most importantly in this bill, to include protection for breeding stock," Kayne said.

If adopted, the law would prohibit race and breeding horses from being knowingly sold or transported for slaughter for human or animal consumption. The prohibition does not apply to other types of horses because it met with resistance from farming advocacy groups, Pretlow

Horse meat is banned in the U.S. for human consumption, but animals are sold and shipped to Canada for slaughter.

"New York's own Northway has long served as a main artery to transport thousands of Thoroughbreds to a brutal death in Canadian slaughter plants," Kayne said.

She urged the governor to sign the legislation, but said action needs to be taken at the federal level as well.

"Until horses are federally protected from transit to slaughter, they all remain in grave danger," Kayne said. Unbridled volunteer and animal advocate Maureen Gannon said the legislation is a step in the right direction.

"I just look at the horses we have here and there are many, many more, and to see what these animals face if they are caught up in the whole kill-pen/slaughter pipeline, this is a blessing," Gannon

She hopes the bill will also help to educate people about the treatment of horses.

"I didn't know about this when I became a volunteer. I just wanted to be around horses," Gannon said. "I had no idea what their plight was, but once you know it, you can't unknow it. To realize that these beautiful beings that I love being with and that I consider friends at this point - to think about them being in that situation is horrifying to me.'

Greene County launches broadband survey

By Melanie Lekocevic Courtesy of Columbia-Greene Media

CATSKILL — Greene County has launched a survey to identify where broadband service is available and where it isn't.

The Greene County New York Broadband Availability and Adoption Initiative is aimed at mapping the county and collecting data on where high-speed internet service is available.

Grants have been awarded to local internet providers in the past to beef up coverage in the county, and the survey seeks to fill in gaps where broadband is not yet available.

"The Greene County Legislature previously partnered with local internet providers who received over $18 million in state grant funding through the three-year New York State Broadband Program with a total investment of $25 million," Greene County Legislature Chairman Patrick Linger, R-New Baltimore, said.

providers Internet in the county received $18,193,864 in grants through the New NY Broadband Program to expand high-speed internet access across the county, for a total investment of $25,277,155, which includes private sector matching funds and federal funds, according to the state's Broadband Program Office website. Funds were awarded to Hughes Network Systems, Mid-Hudson Data Corp, MTC Cable and State Telephone Company, according to the web-

The survey launched this week by the county seeks to identify where gaps remain. Only respondents without internet can take the survey only, while respondents with internet can take the survey and a speed test to determine how fast their existing internet service "This effort is another push to eliminate coverage gaps across the county, and the support of the Legislature will put Greene County in the best position to access federal and state funding available as part of pandemic recovery legislation,"

Linger said.
Federal COVID-19

will be distributed to municipalities and one of the approved uses is to expand broadband access.

Residents and businesses are asked to respond to the survey, which is tailored to respondents both with and without broadband access, and questions are dependent on their answers.

The survey asks about access to high-speed internet, how the respondent utilizes the internet — or how they would like to use it — and takes about seven minutes to complete, according to the county website.

Broadband access has long been a concern in rural areas, with limited or no availability in many areas.

"We know we have gaps, a lack of options and not enough competition in the market, and fixing this is essential to our economic recovery," Greene County Administrator Shaun Groden said. "With the results from this survey, Greene County government will have the tools we need to combat the broadband shortage in our community. will be used to partner with our service providers to assist in expanding service through matching grants resulting from federal recovery funds."

The coronavirus outbreak and associated shutdowns shined a light on the need for broadband access as many students and workers began learning and working from home.

"With more day-to-day functions moving online, whether it's for business, education or personal use, we must do all we can to ensure coverage across our rural communities," Deputy County Administrator Warren Hart said. "High-speed broadband has become as essential as water and electricity for a good quality of life."

Once data on broadband availability is collected through survey responses, the county can proceed with expanding access, Hart said.

"We can then use this data to come up with a plan to move forward and improve our broadband countywide," he said.

The survey can be accessed by visiting Greene Broadband.com. Residents without internet access are advised to use a computer at a public library or other location or respond to the survey via a mobile device. Paper surveys can also be obtained by calling 518-719-3270 or emailing planning@discovergreene.com.

The survey will be available through Aug.

Tossing in the towel

I love my garden! And while I find it to be a therapeutic and mindful task, it's also lots of work! So when I'm done there's nothing I like better than that clean fresh feeling I get after a hot shower. However, after reading an article in one of my favorite magazines, I realized that my favorite bath towel might may be hiding some dirty little secrets.

Did you know that dead skin cells make up the top 20 layers of your skin? And while some of these dead cells come off in the shower, many of them end up on your bath towel and other germs.

That's because most towels are often damp, making them the perfect environment for variety of microbes and other microorganisms to grow. According to dermatologist Alok Vij, "The longer the towel stays damp, the longer the yeasts, bacteria, mold and viruses remain alive and stay active."

A study conducted by Charles Gerba, a microbiologist at the University of Arizona, found that nearly 90% of bathroom towels were contaminated with coliform bacteria and about 14% carried E.coli.

"After about two days, if you dry your face on a hand towel you're probably getting more E.coli on your face than if you stuck your head in a toilet and flushed it," Gerba

"While towels will never be completely germ-free, the amount of bacteria can be limited by washing them every two days, especially if you have young children," Gerba said.

He also advises using a detergent with activated oxygen bleach to get them as clean as possible.

"Washing your laundry in hot water (140 degrees), along with an activated bleach detergent such as Oxi Clean or Clorox 2, can sanitize your clothes," Gerba said.

Without hot water have poor hand hygiene!

and bleach, bacteria can spread to other items in your wash, too. So while you're putting that clean laundry into the dryer, the bacteria on your hands could spread to other fabrics, increasing your risk of infection by spreading the bacteria to everything you touch.

As a general rule you can share towels with your spouse or partner as long as neither of you has a skin condition like eczema. However, if you have children, it's best to give them their own towels as children typically

As for washcloths, Dr. Vii advises not to share those.

"You might not get sick after using a towel for two weeks, but that's not the point," said Phillip Tierno, Ph.D., a clinical professor of pathology and microbiology at NYU School of Medicine. "Would you put on dirty underwear after vou've taken a clean bath?"

Just like you need pampering after a long hard day, your towels need pampering, too.

So show your towels how much you care by washing them at least twice a week.

awmakers: Leaders fail to fund mental health, addiction help

By Kate Lisa Courtesy of Columbia-Greene Media

ALBANY — Members of the Assembly accused legislative leaders last Monday of failing to prioritize New York's available mental health and addiction services in the mittees held a hearing for state budget as the primary reason inefficiencies and inequities persist in the system, they said.

The Assembly Alcoholism and Drug Abuse and Mental Health comseveral hours to examine how the state Office of Addiction Services and Supports and Office of Mental Health work to integrate services for New Yorkers who need treatment or programs from both agencies.

About 1.4 million New Yorkers have co-occurring mental health and substance abuse disorders, with higher rates of homelessness, suicide, incarceration or early them to be funded in the budget," Marquesano said. "Having two separate systems treat individuals with (co-occurring disorders) is not practical from a clinical or financial perspective. ... Individuals are being forced to access service in two places."

Disparities with the two systems working together to get New Yorkers the help they need exist for a myriad of reasons, but inadequate funding is the main factor inadequacies and redundancies persist, said Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Committee unair Assemblyman Phil Steck, D-Colonie.

"I certainly could think of things I could take it from to fund this particular area and would be happy to do so, but unfortunately, that is not the majority's viewpoint and it is, quite frankly, not the view of the governor," Steck said in response to frustrated witnesses that improving integrated services will likely need to be done with existing resources.

"The issue of funding is problematic unless the governor would be willing to give up some of his pet programs, which I don't see happening," Steck added. "The governor is the biggest player at the budget table."

Gov. Andrew Cuomo budgeted $4.5 billion in his executive 2021-22 budget proposal for the Office of Mental Health, an increase of $50 million, or 1.1%. Assemblywoman Aileen Gunther, who chairs the Mental Health Committee, argued Assembly Speaker Carl Heastie, D-Bronx, and Senate Majority Leader Andrea Stewart-Cousins, D-Yonkers, also do not prioritize addressing mental health and addiction programs with lawmakers until after most of the budget is spoken for.

That leaves lawmakers rushing to fight to get funding for their specific issues, making it impossible for programs to meet the increased need for mental health and addiction services, said Gunther, D-Forestburgh.

"You have to see it as it is: There's control from Andrea and Carl Heastie," Gunther said. "A leader is a leader is a leader, and you know what? Supposedly, you're representing the entire state of New York whether you're in the Assembly or the Senate, and the important thing is when (legislative leaders) begin the process, not the staff.

"We get it when it's almost like the die is cast," she added, "and they say to us, 'There's X amount of money left over."

Legislative leaders have most of the state budget, which deadlines April 1 each year, planned by late fall, Gunther said. Negotiations and funding continue to change until the spending plan is passed, usually within a week of the deadline.

"Every year, we're in a panic at the end," the assemblywoman said. "The fact is, it should be worked on all summer. If it were my world, it would be different."

Witnesses requested lawmakers focus on increasing funding to develop integrated care for youth and in rural upstate communities.

Representatives with Stewart-Cousins and the Senate Minority Conference last week declined to comment on Gunther's statements, the leader's position on increasing funding for services or how senators' budget requests are considered.

Representatives with the Assembly Speaker's Office in the majority conference did not respond to requests for comment Monday.

New Yorkers in poor, minority, rural or small communities struggle to find transportation to access state services. Lack of treatment also leads to higher-cost medical care and increased state disability rates.

Child psychiatrists, or in-patient and detox care are often minimal in counties outside New York City. But people who lack money or transportation will not complete addiction programs or other needed services.

John Barr, Operations Manager (standing by the dedication plaque to Gaby Newmark, TCI's co-founder) "We can teach skills, but if you come with the work ethic that is the key. At TCI we are not only teaching work skills but life skills."

Hunter Pike, Production line intern, Class of 2021, Started October last year

"I started as an Intern working half the day. Learned a lot. Responsibility. Showing up on time. Now I'm full time. There are a lot of things you can do here. Hours are good and I'm making good pay."

Brett Margiasso, Truck Unloading Supervisor, Class

"My senior year, BOCES brought me down for a tour. I was fascinated and started my internship. It was the best decision ever. I moved into a full-time job and have been lovin' it ever since. I learn something new every day."

Kameron Gonzalez, Production line intern, Class of

"My paid internship couldn't be better. I'm deconstructing transformers. It's fun because of the variety of things I'm doing. I put the money into my savings account. Pay for gas. Occasionally go out

Megan Keir, Administrative Assistant Intern, Class of 2021

"I'm training in the transportation and oil departments. I like the variety, multiple responsibilities, learning new tasks and just like the environment. I will be working here full time after graduation."

Roberto Gonzalez, Jr. Production line intern, Class of 2022

"I started 3 months ago and do a little bit of everything. I got certified and can drive the forklift. I will work at TCI full time this summer, but I want to join the union for electrical through the BOCES program to be an electrician."

Caleb Foronda, Truck Unloading Specialist, Class of 2021, Started January 2020

"I like the people. Everyone is nice and friendly. The hours are flexible. Sometimes I come in at 5 am and sometimes at 7 am. What they care about is getting

Nate Cary, Paid intern in phase 3 (pad mount section). Class of 2021

"I'm taking the transformers apart and I like what I'm doing now. There are also opportunities to grow. I hope to get certified in forklift. After graduation I'm looking to go to work full time here."

RCS STUDENTS DEMONSTRATE STRONG WORK ETHIC TCI's paid internships lead to promising careers

"We believe people are our most important asset. We are a family-owned business committed to our employees and our community. We provide a positive work environment, good jobs with benefits, worked based learning opportunities for students, and the opportunity for people to advance.'

Brian Hemlock, President, TCI of NY

When you talk with the graduates and current students from RCS who are working at TCI there is a common theme that runs through them. These young men and women get it. It's a strong work ethic. They understand hard work and discipline. The importance of family. The value of money. They are intelligent and respectful.

"I just bought an engine for my car from the money saved by working at TCI," said Megan Keir. "In July, I'm taking my mom to Florida for a week. She has done so much for me. This definitely is a place to be if you want to get far. When I came here, I really didn't have much and now I'm working towards a lot so if that's something someone wants to achieve, I'd definitely apply here.'

Brett Margiasso started three years ago at TCI. He was TCI's first paid intern. "This place gives you the option to have benefits at a young age. I learned about the 401k plan. At first, I was like 'what you want to take my money from me' but I researched it and talked to people. Saw what they're matching. I started saving for retirement."

Brett now supervises the offloading of trucks.

"When I started, I was taking apart the transformers and working inside the big green pad mounts you see at places like the mall. It was very physical," said Brett. "My section now is offloading the trucks. We need to write up every piece of equipment that comes in, record the gallons of oil and weight. Note the manufacturer. My writing has improved. It requires good judgement. What needs to be instantly scrapped or put aside to be refurbished and put up for sale. It's a lot. It's more mental now than physical."

John Barr says, "It is a lot of responsibility. Making decisions where this equipment goes. He runs the section at 20 years old. One thing we preach here is we promote from within. I see great things for Brett."

TCI employs a reverse manufacturing process that prepares mill ready materials that are refined according to stringent specifications from the mills. The materials need to be at the same high standards as other manufacturing suppliers to the mills that are producing mate-

Caleb Foronda started out as an intern on the assembly line showing up for work at 5 am until heading off to school. Then Covid hit and he was unable to continue his internship. Then around July 2020 he came back and was able to take his online courses at TCI. He now works full time in surplus operating a 5-ton crane that takes the transformers off trucks and puts them on the assembly line.

"I'm proud that this material is either re-purposed or recycled," he says. "I'm not planning to go to college and see opportunities for advancement here. Brett already runs his own section at 20 years old. The pay and benefits are great. I'm working on getting a new car. Going on vacation. Before I had a cell phone and couldn't pay the bill. Now I can."

John Barr, "Caleb was the first intern to take his online classes at TCI. He would come in at 5 am to work and then do his classes. He graduated 6 months early."

TCI goes to the utilities with specialized trailers to pick up transformers and then off loads them at the plant where they go onto the highly modernized production line to separate the materials and prepare them to be mill ready.

Brett goes on to say, "If you genuinely pay attention and want to grow and build with this company, there is no reason you can't. It is truly a great place to work. I wake up every day and enjoy coming to work. I've learned a lot with engines and maintenance. It's cool there are opportunities for growth and advancement here. I was one of the youngest to be certified on the forklift. Sometimes, I'll stick around and hang out with the truck drivers. I learn a lot from them. Who knows maybe I'll get my CDL license some day and drive a truck "

Kameron Gonzalez adds, "I enjoy working with the people here. It is a fun environment. Every job here is important. Constantly learning how to problem solve. The transformers are all different. I would like to drive the bigger machines someday and believe there is the opportunity to grow. I plan on coming here full time.'

All materials from the transformers are separated according to different categories based on what is reusable or scrap. The reusable parts are prepared according to specifications for sale to the mills. Materials are transported throughout the plant on forklifts operated by trained and certified employees. Truck operators are certified commercial.

Roberto Gonzalez, Jr. says, "We take apart the transformer starting with the top. Then drain all the oil out of it. Dry it up and bring it out to disassemble and crush. I am super glad to be able to have this paid internship that has allowed me to help my mom and help pay for my truck that always has problems."

Lisa Patierne, Principal at RCS, said, "Not every student will go onto college. TCI provides students with paid worked based learning opportunities that can lead to a promising career. I'm comfortable with sending students to TCI because they really are a family organization with a positive culture. The students that work there love

Brett says, "I definitely would recommend this place for people with a good work ethic. It is hard work and you really do need to work. But every year we are working to make it safer and more efficient. Finding ways to protect the guys. I've seen the investment into making it safer."

"I'm studying welding at BOCES," says Nate Cary. "I go to the Albany campus every other day. TCI is a good place to start. They offer flexible hours to work around my schedule. I'm happy with the pay. Everybody is cool. Work keeps me busy. I like it. I'm putting some money away to buy a new car"

Megan says, "You have to know what you are doing. Weighing trucks in, doing paperwork, sending paperwork to buyers, running paperwork out to drivers. It's a busy department. I like bigger responsibilities and can take on a

Not all the interns will go to work at TCI after graduation. Hunter Pike says, "Overall, it's just fun, but I do want to go to college and looking at Hudson Valley, but for now, I'm happy working here. I'm going on vacation in two weeks with my family and the money I make here is going to pay for it."

"This private-public partnership between TCI and RCS is a perfect example of career exploration and readiness that is paramount to developing a skilled workforce" states Brian Williams, Executive Director of the Capital Region Workforce Development Board. "Exposing youth to different careers allows them to develop the workforce skills they need to be successful." Brian Hemlock says, "This is a great group of young folks who are doing a great job. The partnership with RSC has been outstanding. We couldn't be happier with the work they are doing."

TCI's first plant in Coeyman's was built in 2014. Last August TCI opened their new expansion facility a 35,000 square foot, state of the art addition that added new capability to the existing plant. This expanded services to their customers the power companies and utilities throughout the Northeast. New jobs were created. Jobs that used to go out of state were brought to Coeymans.

TCI of NY is one of eight members of the G&S Family of Companies with 600 employees across America, all devoted to the environmentally safe processing, recycling and repair of transformers and other oil-filled electrical equipment, and the safe processing and re-use of electrical oils. The company recycles and repurposes 99 percent of the material in the transformers received, providing a great environmental benefit as just a few decades ago, this material was put into landfills.

COVID state of emergency ends in NYS

By Kate Lisa Courtesy of Columbia-Greene

NEW YORK — New York's state of emergency related to the COVID-19 pandemic ended last week after remaining in effect for more than 15 months.

New Yorkers endured stricter capacity, social distancing, disinfection and additional health requirescreening ments in businesses and social settings since the COVID-19 pandemic

Gov. Andrew Cuomo signed an executive order March 7, 2020.

The state of emergency expired Thursday.

'It will not be renewed, it will punctuate the expiration of the emergency we have been in," Cuomo said last Wednesday during a briefing in Manhattan.

Most of the state's pandemic-related restrictions were lifted June 15 after 70% of state adults officially began when received at least one dose of a COVID-19 vaccine, but the state of emergency remained intact.

Masks or facial coverings continue to be required for unvaccinated New Yorkers, or people on public transportation, in health care, correctional facilities, nursing homes or congregate settings and homeless shelters.

The state will continue to follow the U.S. Center Disease Control and Prevention's COVID guidelines, which recommend children in schools and at summer camps wear face masks indoors.

The end of the state of emergency terminates all pandemic-era executive orders, including alcohol-to-go, or the temporary privilege that allowed New Yorkers to order alcoholic beverages from establishments to go or be delivered.

Alcohol-to-go were scheduled to end after Friday, according to a tweet from the state Liquor Authority.

Melissa Fleischut, president and CEO of the state's Restaurant Association, criticized the sudden ending of to-go alcoholic beverages in a statement last Wednesday. Lawmakers floated legislation this session to permanently legalize the temporary executive mandate, but did not vote to pass the measure.

"A permanent extension of alcohol-to-go is supported by 78% of New Yorkers, but the Legislature failed to extend it and now the executive order has ended," Fleischut said.

Fun, On-the-Go Health Hacks

Make every bite count with whole-grain popcorn snacks

s many people start getting back into normal routines, they're returning to familiar on-the-go lifestyles by heading back to work, traveling to new destinations and enjoying time with loved ones.

While you get out to explore and gather with family and friends again, remember you'll need fuel for your adventures. According to a National Health and Nutrition Examination Survey, most Americans fail to get enough whole grains each day, opting instead for mostly refined grains.

Foods like tasty whole-grain popcorn offer an easy health hack so you can make every bite count. Try getting in the habit of popping 9 cups of popcorn in the morning and dividing it into two containers. Season one container with salt and herbs, the other with a pinch of sugar and cinnamon so you can alternate between sweet and salty throughout the day. Bringing delicious options like these while on the go can help satisfy hunger pangs while adding the fiber your

Because mouthwatering whole-grain popcorn is versatile and 3 cups is equal to one serving of whole grains, it's a simple yet flavorful option for meeting dietary recommendations. It can be a breeze to add it to snacks like Blueberry and Pomegranate Power Bars, Crunchy Popcorn Trail Mix or Sweet and Savory Curried Popcorn. You can even satisfy kids' cravings with Grab and Go Pizza Popcorn, a six-ingredient recipe made in a matter of minutes.
