

MIGUEL DE CERVANTES SAAVEDRA

Don Quixote

IN TWO VOLUMES • VOLUME TWO

INTRODUCTION BY

L. B. WALTON, M.A., B.LITT.

Forbes Reader in Spanish, and Head of Department of Hispanic Studies, University of Edinburgh

DENT: LONDON

EVERYMAN'S LIBRARY

DUTTON: NEW YORK

9214 ✓

CONTENTS

PART II

CHAP.		PAGE
	The Author's Preface	I
I.	What passed between the Curate, the Barber, and Don Quixote, concerning his Indisposition	5
II.	Of the memorable Quarrel between Sancho Pança, and Don Quixote's Niece and Housekeeper; with other pleasant passages	15
III.	The pleasant Discourse between Don Quixote, Sancho Pança, and the Bachelor Carrasco	19
IV.	Sancho Pança satisfies the Bachelor Samson Carrasco in his doubts and queries: with other passages fit to be known and related	27
V.	The wise and pleasant Dialogue between Sancho Pança, and Teresa Pança his Wife: together with other passages worthy of happy memory	31
VI.	What passed between Don Quixote, his Niece, and the Housekeeper: being one of the most important chapters in the whole History	38
VII.	An account of Don Quixote's Conference with his Squire, and other most famous passages	43
VIII.	Don Quixote's success in his Journey to visit the Lady Dulcinea del Toboso	49
IX.	Which gives an account of things which you will know when you read it	55
X.	How Sancho cunningly found out a way to enchant the Lady Dulcinea; with other passages no less certain than ridiculous	58
XI.	Of the stupendous Adventure that befell the valorous Don Quixote, with the Chariot or Cart of the Court or Parliament of Death	66
XII.	The valorous Don Quixote's strange Adventure with the bold Knight of the Mirrors	72
XIII.	The Adventure with the Knight of the Wood continued; with the wise and pleasant Discourse that passed between the two Squires	77
XIV.	A continuation of the Adventure of the Knight of the Wood	82
XV.	Giving an account who the Knight of the Mirrors and his Squire were	91
XVI.	What happened to Don Quixote, with a sober Gentleman of La Mancha	93
XVII.	Where you will find set forth the highest and utmost proof that the great Don Quixote ever gave, or could give of his incredible courage, with the successful issue of the Adventure of the Lions	101

CHAP.		PAGE
XVIII.	How Don Quixote was entertained at the Castle or House of the Knight of the Green Coat, with other extravagant passages	110
XIX.	The Adventure of the amorous Shepherd, and other comical passages	118
XX.	An account of rich Camacho's Wedding, and what befell poor Basil	124
XXI.	The progress of Camacho's Wedding, with other delightful accidents	132
XXII.	An account of the great Adventure of Montesinos' Cave, situated in the heart of La Mancha, which the valorous Don Quixote successfully achieved	137
XXIII.	Of the wonderful things which the unparalleled Don Quixote declared he had seen in the deep Cave of Montesinos, the greatness and impossibility of which makes this Adventure pass for apocryphal	144
XXIV.	Which gives an account of a thousand flimflams and stories, as impertinent as necessary to the right understanding of this grand History	152
XXV.	Where you find the grounds of the Braying Adventures, that of the Puppet-Player, and the memorable divining of the fortune-telling Ape	158
XXVI.	A pleasant account of the Puppet-Play, with other very good things truly	166
XXVII.	Wherein is discovered who Master Peter was, and his Ape; as also Don Quixote's ill success in the Braying Adventure, which did not end so happily as he desired and expected	173
XXVIII.	Of some things which Benengeli tells us he that reads shall know, if he reads them with attention	180
XXIX.	The famous Adventure of the Enchanted Bark	185
XXX.	What happened to Don Quixote with the fair Huntress	190
XXXI.	Which treats of many and great matters	195
XXXII.	Don Quixote's answer to his Reprover, with other grave and merry accidents	203
XXXIII.	The relishing Conference which the Duchess and her women held with Sancho Pança, worth your reading and observation	215
XXXIV.	Containing ways and means for disenchanting the peerless Dulcinea del Toboso, being one of the most famous Adventures in the whole book	222
XXXV.	Wherein is contained the Information given to Don Quixote how to disenchant Dulcinea, with other wonderful passages	229
XXXVI.	The strange and never-thought-of Adventure of the disconsolate Matron, alias the Countess Trifaldi, with Sancho Pança's Letter to his wife Teresa Pança	235
XXXVII.	The famous Adventure of the disconsolate Matron continued	240
XXXVIII.	The account which the disconsolate Matron gives of her Misfortune	242
XXXIX.	Where Trifaldi continues her stupendous and memorable Story	248

XL.	Of some things that relate to the Adventure, and appertain to this memorable History	251
XLI.	Of Clavileno's ( alias Wooden Peg's) arrival, with the conclusion of this tedious Adventure	256
XLII.	The instructions which Don Quixote gave Sancho Pança, before he went to the Government of his Island, with other matters of moment	265
XLIII.	The second part of Don Quixote's advice to Sancho Pança	270
XLIV.	How Sancho Pança was carried to his Government, and of the strange Adventures that befell Don Quixote in the Castle	276
XLV.	How the great Sancho Pança took possession of his Island, and in what manner he began to govern	285
XLVI.	Of the dreadful alarms given to Don Quixote by the Bells and Cats, during the course of Altisidora's amours	292
XLVII.	A further account of Sancho Pança's behaviour in his Government	296
XLVIII.	What happened to Don Quixote with Donna Rodriguez the Duchess's woman; as also other passages worthy to be recorded, and had in eternal remembrance	304
XLIX.	What happened to Sancho Pança, as he went the rounds in his Island	311
L.	Who the Enchanters and Executioners were that whipped the Duenna, and pinched and scratched Don Quixote; with the success of the Page that carried Sancho's letter to his wife Teresa Pança	321
LI.	A continuation of Sancho Pança's Government, with other passages, such as they are	330
LII.	A relation of the Adventures of the second disconsolate or distressed Matron, otherwise called Donna Rodriguez	33
LIII.	The toilsome end and conclusion of Sancho Pança's Government	3
LIV.	Which treats of matters that relate to this History, and no other	3
LV.	What happened to Sancho by the way, with other matters, which you will have no more to do than to see	3
LVI.	Of the extraordinary and unaccountable Combat between Don Quixote de la Mancha, and the Lacquey, Tosilos, in vindication of the Matron Donna Rodriguez's daughter	3
LVII.	How Don Quixote took his leave of the Duke, and what passed between him and the witty wanton Altisidora, the Duchess's damsel	3
LVIII.	How Adventures crowded so thick and threefold on Don Quixote, that they trod upon one another's heels	3
LIX.	Of an extraordinary accident that happened to Don Quixote, which may well pass for an Adventure	3
LX.	What happened to Don Quixote going to Barcelona	3

CHAP.
LXI.	Don Quixote's entry into Barcelona, with other Accidents that have less ingenuity than truth in them		399
LXII.	The Adventure of the Enchanted Head, with other impertinences not to be omitted		401
LXIII.	Of Sancho's Misfortune on board the Gallies, with other strange Adventures of the beautiful Morisca (Moorish lady)		407
LXIV.	Of an unlucky Adventure, which Don Quixote laid most to heart of any that had yet befallen him		411
LXV.	An account of the Knight of the White Moon, most Gregorio's enlargement, and other Passages		422
LXVI.	Which treats of that which shall be seen by him that reads it, and heard by him that listens when it is read		426
LXVII.	How Don Quixote resolved to turn Shepherd, and lead a rural life, for the year's time he was obliged not to bear arms; with other passages truly good and diverting		430
LXVIII.	The Adventure of the Hogs		433
LXIX.	Of the most singular and strange Adventure that befell Don Quixote in the whole course of this famous History		439
LXX.	Which comes after the sixty-ninth, and contains several particulars necessary for the illustration of this History		444
LXXI.	What happened to Don Quixote, and his Squire, in their way home		449
LXXII.	How Don Quixote and Sancho got home		456
LXXIII.	Of the ominous Accidents that crossed Don Quixote as he entered his village, with other Transactions that illustrate and adorn this memorable History		461
LXXIV.	How Don Quixote fell sick, made his last will, and died		466
	Additional Notes		471
			479