

FEATURES PRINCIPLES AND TECHNIQUE OF INDIAN MUSIC

STRANGWAYS. A. H.

Contents

| | Page |
|---|--------------|
| Preface ... | v |
| List of Illustrations ... | xi |
| Introduction ... | 1-16 |
| The understanding of music as affected by national characteristics, by an antiquated system, by the absence of harmony, by difference of content, Causes of the particular form taken by Indian music due to the conservatism of India, to its size, to its climate, A concert, The future of Indian music. | |
| Chapter | |
| I A Musical Diary ... | 17-49 |
| Conditions under which these songs were collected and caution with which they should be received, Chanties and labour songs, Occupation songs, Nagpur, Central Provinces, West coast, Travancore, Maratha bards, Conclusions. | |
| II A Musical Diary (continued) ... | 50-72 |
| Garhwālis, Gurkhas, Punjābis, Cuttack dance, Bhavnagar, Lullabies, Children's songs, Conclusions. | |

- III Legend, History and the Present Day ... 73-99
 Absence of the historical Sense, Legend, History, The present day, Subbanna and Seshanna of Mysore, Ramachandra of Trivandrum, Sourendro Banerji of Calcutta, Chandra Prabhu of Bhavnagar, Rabindranath Tagore.
- IV The Scale ... 100-133
 The facts of folk-song and folk-instruments, List of Sanskrit authorities, Technical terms, The grāmas, Bharata, Date of his system, His twenty-two śrutis, South India, Transilient scales, The śruti in practical music, and in European music.
- V Mode ... 134-150
 Scale and mode, Indian conception of mode, The Greek parallel, Mode in actual practice, Appoggiatura, Absolute pitch, Grāma and Rāg, Ancient and modern mode.
- VI Rāga ... 151-180
 The table of Rāgs, Appropriate times and seasons, Sources of Rāga, Tessitura, A Rāg is not a tune, but is conforms to law, Conjunct motion, Harmony and harmonization, Instances of Rāg, Re-entrant Rāgs, The drone, Comparison with European melody, and with the ecclesiastical modes, Imitation, The intervals chosen in melody have no basis in harmony.
- VII Grace ... 181-190
 Grace is inherent in the note, not an appendage to it, Two main kinds of grace, Comparison with Scotch graces, and Hungarian, Grace in the Sanskrit theory, The Mohammedan Tappa, Grace may be traced to Sanskrit pronunciation.

VIII Tāla ... 191-224

Stress and quantity, Sanskrit metres, The transition from poetical to musical metre, Metre in music, The Carnatic system of Time, The Hindostani system, Comparison with the European system.

IX Drumming ... 225-245

Indian and European drumming, Drums, Drum-words, drum-phrases, and drum-variants, Instances, Augmentation and diminution, and 'convergence' and 'cumulation', The drum used ornamentally not structurally.

X The Sāman Chant ... 246-279

The R̥gveda accent, The Sāmaveda, Its 'form', its rhythm, its scale, its original nucleus, Consonance, The Gāndhāra grāma, The Sāman, scale as transilient, The musical hand, The early Greek scale, Instances of Sāman chant, Notation, Some technical terms, A vocal scale.

XI Form ... 280-319

Aṃśa and drone take the place of our dominant and tonic as the basis of form, The Kīrthanam, Other forms, The Khyāl, Subsidiary forms, Specimens of Rāgs, The cycle of Rāgs.

XII Melody ... 320-342

Melody is homogeneous, Conjunct and disjunct motion, Climax, Tessitura,

Rhythm, cross-metre, Analysis of a European, and of an Indian melody, Their characteristics contrasted

| | | |
|---------------------------|-----|------------|
| Appendix I | ... | 343 |
| Appendix II | ... | 345 |
| Bibliography | ... | 346 |
| Glossary and Index | ... | 353 |