

ISH LANGUAGE BOOK SOCIETY

2087

Financial and Cost Accounting for Management

FIFTH EDITION

2087

A. H. TAYLOR and
H. SHEARING

LOW-PRICED TEXTBOOK

CONTENTS

PREFACE	v
CHAPTER I—ACCOUNTING AND MANAGEMENT	i
The development of management—the role of accounting— managers and accounting—the accounting service—the plan to be followed
CHAPTER II—THE PRINCIPLES OF ACCOUNTING	5
Definition and objects—Distinction between capital and revenue—Fixed and current elements of capital—Revenue —Principle of double entry—Mechanics of double entry— Organisation of the accounts—Economy of ledger accounts —Source of entries—The cash book—Purchase and sales journals—Self-balancing ledgers—Specimen set of books
CHAPTER III—THE FINAL ACCOUNTS	57
Objects—Uses of the balance sheet—Drawing up the final accounts—Subdivision of the revenue accounts— The trading and profit and loss accounts—The summarised revenue account—Adjustments—Outstandings—Accruals Prepayments—Reserves—Valuation of stock—The routine summarised
CHAPTER IV—DEPRECIATION	87
Objects—The physical nature of depreciation—Assessing the loss—Accounting entries—Depreciation in final accounts —The problems of depreciation—A possible solution— The effect of the solution—The accounting entries
CHAPTER V—ACCOUNTING AIDS	101
Manual aids—Simplification—Slip system and batch posting —Posting boards—Bookless book-keeping—Mechanical ledger posting—Punched-card systems—Integrated data processing—Electronic data processing—Electronics— Organisation of the department
CHAPTER VI—ACCOUNTING FOR PARTNERSHIPS	119
The nature of partnerships—Partnership accounts—Good- will—Termination of partnership
CHAPTER VII—ACCOUNTING FOR COMPANIES	126
The nature of companies—The Companies Act 1948— The accounts—Statutory and other books—Books of account —Reports to shareholders—The directors' report—Group accounting—Pyramiding of control—Accounts of holding companies—Consolidated balance sheets—The accountant and management—The accountant as director; executive; controller

CHAPTER VIII—FINANCIAL ACCOUNTING AS AN AID TO MANAGEMENT
The necessity for showing a dynamic picture—Topicality— Up-to-date accounts—The principle of comparison—Profit as a sign of efficiency—The investment in assets—Statistical aids in interpretation—Presentation of statistics
CHAPTER IX—INTRODUCTION TO COSTING
Meaning and purpose of costing—Integration—Unit of cost—An exercise in costing—Costing for a complex busi- ness—Other applications of costing
CHAPTER X—ELEMENTS OF COST
The basic elements—Labour costing—Material costing— Standard costs—Control through standard costs—Report- ing performance—Variance analysis—Marginal costing— the Limiting Factor
CHAPTER XI—BUDGETARY CONTROL
The objectives—An outline of methods—The profit target —Functional budgets—Comparing performance with bud- gets—Practical budgeting—The Cash Forecast—The Move- ment of Funds
APPENDIX I.	30
The Provision of Capital
APPENDIX II	31
Taxation
APPENDIX III	32
Questions
APPENDIX IV	34
The Companies Act, 1967
SUGGESTIONS FOR FURTHER READING	35
INDEX	35