

MODERN POLITICAL CONSTITUTIONS

AN INTRODUCTION TO THE COMPARATIVE STUDY OF THEIR HISTORY AND EXISTING FORM

BY

C. F. STRONG, O.B.E., M.A., Ph.D.

THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE BOOK SOCIETY
AND
SIDGWICK & JACKSON LIMITED
LONDON

CONTENTS

PART ONE

HISTORICAL APPROACH

CHAPTER 1

THE MEANING OF POLITICAL CONSTITUTIONALISM	3
General (3)—Society (4)—The State (5)—Law and Custom (6)—Sovereignty (6)—Government (8)—The Legislature (8)—The Executive (9)—The Judiciary (10)—The Constitution (11)—The National Democratic State (12).

CHAPTER 2

THE ORIGIN AND GROWTH OF THE CONSTITUTIONAL STATE	15
Introductory (15)—Greek Constitutionalism (16)—The Roman Constitution (18)—Constitutionalism in the Middle Ages (23)—The Renaissance State (27)—Constitutionalism in England (29)—The Constitutional Influence of the American and French Revolutions (33)—Nationalism and Liberal Reform (39)—National Constitutionalism in the Second Half of the Nineteenth Century (42)—Constitutionalism and the First World War (44)—The Reaction against Constitutional Government between the Wars (46)—Consequences of the Second World War (50)—Summary (53).

PART TWO

COMPARATIVE CONSTITUTIONAL POLITICS

CHAPTER 3

CLASSIFICATION OF CONSTITUTIONS	59
The Obsolete Classification of Aristotle and Others (59)—The Bases of a Modern Classification (62)—The Nature of the State to which the Constitution Applies (63): Whether Unitary or Federal —The Nature of the Constitution Itself (66): (a) Whether Unwritten or Written a False Distinction ; (b) Whether Flexible or Rigid —The Nature of the Legislature (68): (a) As to the Electoral System ; (i) Kind of Franchise , (ii) Kind of Constituency ; (b) Types of Second Chamber ; (c) Direct Popular Checks —The Nature of the Executive (73): Whether Parliamentary or Non-Parliamentary —The Nature of the Judiciary (75): Whether subject to Rule of Law or under Administrative Law —Summary (77).

Contents

viii

CHAPTER 4

THE UNITARY STATE 80

 Sovereignty, Internal and External (80)—The Process of State
 Integration (82)—The Essential Quality of the Unitary State (84)—
 Evolution of the United Kingdom as a Unitary State (86)—The Unitary State of New Zealand (91)—Eire (92)—South Africa
 (94)—The Unitary State of France (97)—The Kingdom and the Republic of Italy (99).

CHAPTER 5

THE FEDERAL STATE 103

 The Essential Character of a Federal State (103)—Variations of the Federal Type (105)—The Federal System in the United States of America (108)—The Swiss Confederation (114)—The Commonwealth of Australia (117)—The Modified Federalism of the Dominion of Canada (120)—German Federalism (123)—Federalism in Soviet Russia and Yugoslavia (128)—Federal States in Latin America (131).

CHAPTER 6

THE FLEXIBLE CONSTITUTION 135

 General Remarks (135)—The Nature of Law (138)—The True
 Character of a Flexible Constitution (140)—Growth of the Flexible Constitution of Great Britain (142)—The British Constitution at Work (146)—The Flexible Constitution of New Zealand (149).

CHAPTER 7

THE RIGID CONSTITUTION 152

 Special Machinery for Constitutional Legislation (152)—The Rigid Constitution of the French Republic (155)—The Rigid Constitution of the Italian Republic (158)—Constitutional Amendment in Eire and South Africa (160)—Rigid Constitutions in Canada and Australia (162)—The Rigidity of the Swiss Constitution (164)—
 The Rigid Constitution of the United States of America (165)—
 The Rigidity of German Constitutions (168).

CHAPTER 8

THE LEGISLATURE: (1) SUFFRAGE AND CONSTITUENCIES 171

 Introductory (171)—The Growth of Political Democracy (172)—
 The Suffrage and Attendant Questions (174)—The Single-Member
 Constituency (179)—The Multi-Member Constituency (183)—
 Proportional Representation in Theory and Practice (188)—
 Problems Connected with the Representative System (190).

Contents

ix

CHAPTER 9

THE LEGISLATURE: (2) SECOND CHAMBERS 194

 General Remarks on Bi-Cameral Constitutionalism (194)—The House of Lords: Past and Present (196)—The Nominated Second
 Chamber in Canada (202)—The Partially Elected Upper House
 (204): (a) The Senate in South Africa; (b) The Senate in Eire;
 (c) The Former Spanish Senate—The Elected Senate in two Unitary
 States (208): (a) France; (b) Italy—The Elected Senate in two Federal States (212): (a) The United States; (b) Australia—The Second Chamber in Switzerland and Germany (215): (a) The Swiss Confederation; (b) The German Republic—The Special
 Cases of the U.S.S.R. and the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia
 (218)—Conclusions (219).

CHAPTER 10

THE LEGISLATURE: (3) DIRECT POPULAR CHECKS 222

 Background to Current Usage (222)—The Referendum Today (225)
 —The Initiative and the Recall (227)—Arguments for and against the Use of these Devices (229).

CHAPTER 11

THE PARLIAMENTARY EXECUTIVE 233

 The Executive: Apparent and Real (233)—The Theory of the Separation of Powers (235)—The History and Present Form of the Cabinet System in Britain (237)—Dominion Status and Cabinet Government (242)—The Cabinet in the French Republic
 (246)—The Cabinet System in the Italian Republic (251)—
 Effects of two World Wars on the Parliamentary Executive (252).

CHAPTER 12

THE NON-PARLIAMENTARY EXECUTIVE 259

 General Observations (259)—Application of the Principle in the United States (261)—The Peculiar Executive of the Swiss Confederation (266)—The Interesting Case of Turkey (269)—Comparative Advantages of Parliamentary and Fixed Executives (271).

CHAPTER 13

THE JUDICIARY 275

 The Independence of the Judicial Department of Government
 (275)—The Judiciary and the Legislature (278)—The Rule of Law
 (282)—Administrative Law (285)—Judiciaries under the Two Systems Compared (287).

i*

PART THREE

NATIONALISM AND INTERNATIONALISM

CHAPTER 14

EMERGENT NATIONALISM	295
Introduction (295)—Nationalism in the Middle East (296)—The Retreat from Asia (299): (a) Britain and India ; (b) Britain and Malaya ; (c) France and Indo-China ; (d) The Netherlands and Indonesia ; (e) The United States and the Philippines —The Colonial Revolution in Africa (312): (a) Changes in British Africa ; (b) France and Algeria ; (c) Belgium and the Congo —Federal Experiments in the Caribbean (318)—Colonialism and Trusteeship (320).

CHAPTER 15

ECONOMIC ORGANISATION, NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL	324
Democracy, Political and Economic (324)—Economic Councils and the Soviets (327)—The Corporate State (330)—The European Economic Community (333)

CHAPTER 16

THE CHARTER OF THE UNITED NATIONS	337
Projects of Internationalism (337)—The League of Nations (339)—The Organs of the United Nations (344): (i) The General Assembly ; (ii) The Security Council ; (iii) The Economic and Social Council ; (iv) The Trusteeship Council ; (v) The International Court of Justice ; (vi) The Secretariat —The United Nations Organisations at Work (352).

CHAPTER 17

THE OUTLOOK FOR CONSTITUTIONALISM	357
BOOKS RECOMMENDED	367
INDEX	373