

THE THEORY AND PRACTICE OF MODERN GOVERNMENT

HERMAN FINER

University of Chicago

ASIA PUBLISHING HOUSE

METHUEN & CO. LTD. LONDON

11 New Fetter Lane, E.C.4

Contents

Part One MAN'S POLITICAL URGENCIES

1. Government and the State
What Can We Learn—Philosophy and Institutions—Why Government Matters—Government Is Politics Plus Administration—The Demand for Rights is the Demand for Government—The State—Coercion, Commonwealth, and Obedience—Sovereignty and Rights in Democracy—Geography and Political Power—Power and Morality—Nationality—The Characteristics of Leadership 3
2. Politics and Economics
Indirect Production—Production for Future Consumption—Division of Labor and Economic Groups—Division into Classes—Capitalism, Private Enterprise, and Economic Decentralization—The Arrival of Planning—The Nature of Planning—The Tensions of Acquisitive Societies—The State and Population—Property—He Who Has, Governs! 23
3. State Activity: Historical Development
To 1776—Adam Smith—Forces at Work from 1776 to 1870—From the Crises in the 1870's and 1880's until World War I—Since World War I 37
4. State Activity: Analytical
The State as an Instrument of Conversion—The Valuable Qualities of the State—The Conditions of State Activity 55

Part Two THE FUNDAMENTAL INSTITUTIONS OF GOVERNMENT

5. Forms of Government, Especially Democracy
The Democratic Spirit—Democratic Institutions—Democracy and Liberalism—The Stages of Democratic Development—Dictatorial and Democratic Leadership—Mystification versus Mystery, and Democracy 67
6. The Separation of Powers: False and True
From the Eighteenth to the Twentieth Century—United States: Problems and Readjustments—The Separation of Powers: Europe and Britain—The Fall of the Triad of Powers 94
7. A More Scientific Understanding of Powers
The Electorate—Party and Legislature—The Cabinet and President—The Administration and the Courts of Justice—The Courts of Justice 109

[viii]

CONTENTS

8. Constitutions: The Institutional Fabric of the State 116
Definitions—Form of the Constitution—Amendment
9. Constitutions: Supremacy and Contents 139
Difference between United States and British Constitutions—Government by Judges—Survey of the Guarantee of Constitutionality—Substance: Historical Development—The Significance of Constitutions
10. Federalism: The Central-Local Territorial Fabric of the State 165
Federalism in Australia and Canada—The Rise of Federalism in the United States—The Rise of Federalism in Germany: to 1848—Germany: From Economic to Political Union: 1848—1918—Sameness of Motives, Difference of Fate in Federations—Contrasts Between American and German Federalism—The Necessity and the Difficulties of Federalism—Main Trends of Federalism in the United States—International Federation—Federalism as the Guarantee of Liberalism
11. Federalism—Germany, 1918—39 191
The Founding of the Weimar Republic—The Weimar Republic's Federalism—Nazi Federalism—Past and Future of German Federalism

Part Three THE SOVEREIGN MAJORITY

12. The Electorate and Political Parties 219
Responsibility and Representation—What Entities Shall the Government Represent—Representing the Sovereign People—Who May Choose Representatives?
13. Representative Government Is Party Government 237
Requirements for Nomination—Nomination in England, France, and Germany—Nomination Regulated by Law: the United States—Nomination and Election of Legislators in Dictatorships
14. Public Opinion and the Parties 258
The Nature of Public Opinion—The Sources of Public Opinion—Party is King!
15. A Closer View of Party and a Sketch of Dictatorial Parties 283
The Central Machine—Funds, and Unpaid Workers—Sale of Honors—Spoils—Statutory Limits on Party Activities—A Sense of Proportion—Political Parties in Three Dictatorships
16. The Character and Policies of Modern Parties 311
England: Conservative and Liberal Parties—England: Labour Party—France—Political Parties in Germany—American Political Parties—Concluding Observations on Political Parties—Dictatorial Parties

[ix]

Part Four
LEGISLATURES

17. Legislatures: General Problems 369
The Mandate of the Legislature—The General Value of Legislatures—Legislatures: Their General Nature—The Duration of Legislatures—The Size of Legislatures—Incessant Pressure on Legislatures—Dissolution, and By-elections
18. Second Chambers 399
Origins—England: House of Lords—The United States Senate—The French Senate—Conclusions
19. First Chambers: The Functions of Legislatures 436
Time and Priority—Expertness and Interests—The "Lobby"—Drafting of the Law
20. First Chambers: Deliberation 474
The Presiding Officer—Discussion—Parliamentary Legislative Committees—Closure and Orderly Debate
21. Financial Legislation; Delegated Legislation; Legislative Control of Executive 508
Financial Legislation—Lawmaking by the Executive Departments—Legislative Control over the Executive—Conclusions—Dictatorial Legislatures
22. Proposals and Devices for Improving Democratic Legislatures 543
Guild Socialism—Electoral Systems—Direct Legislation—Compulsory Voting

Part Five
CABINETS AND CHIEFS OF STATE

23. The British Cabinet and Its Auxiliaries 575
General Characteristics of the Cabinet System—The Cabinet in Britain—Cabinet Responsibility—Cabinet Committees, Secretariat, and Advisory Bodies—Party Accessories to the Cabinet—The "Shadow" Cabinet—Weaknesses and Difficulties of the Cabinet
24. The French Cabinet 622
The Executive in the Third Republic—The Executive in the Fourth Republic
25. The German Cabinet System 647
The Fall of the Irresponsible Executive—The Cabinet System of 1919—The Actual Operation of the Weimar System—Hitler's Executive—General Survey of Executives—The Executive in the U.S.S.R.

[x]

26. The United States Presidency 668
A "Made" Executive—A "Solitary" Executive—The Consequences of Popular Election—More Than an Executive—The Executive Separated from Congress—The Presidency Can Be Tinkered With, Not Reformed

Part Six
THE CIVIL SERVICE

27. The Civil Service in the Modern State 709
The General Aspect—The Nature of Civil Service Activity—The Measure of the Value of Administration—The Tempering of Bureaucracy
28. Origins and General Character: Germany 724
Early History—The Rise of the Prussian Civil Service—Decline after Frederick the Great
29. Origins and General Character: France 741
The Rising Tide of Centralization—The Tide Turns—Corrupt Methods of Recruitment
30. England: Origins, Reform, and Recruitment of the Civil Service 755
Origins—Reform: From Patronage to Open Competition—How the Service is Constituted—How the Administrative Class is Chosen—Administrators, Scientists, Professional and Technological Servants—The Weaknesses and Improvement of the Administrative Class—British and American Contrasts: Some Vital Problems Yet to Be Solved—The Civil Service and the Values It Serves—The Civil Service in the Contemporary State
31. Recruitment in Germany in the Nineteenth and Twentieth Centuries 794
The Rise of Legal Training: To the 1870's—Legal Training Supplemented: The Period to 1920—Reforms of 1920 and Their Causes—Survey of German Experience to Hitler—The Nazi Régime and the Civil Service
32. Recruitment of the Higher Officials in France: Nineteenth and Twentieth Centuries 811
Napoleon: The Miracle of the Real Presence—From Napoleon to the Third Republic—The Civil Service in the Third Republic—The Higher Civil Service in the Fourth Republic
33. The United States Civil Service 829
The Perennial Psychology of Spoils—Towards a Spoils-Free Civil Service—The Contemporary Situation in the Higher Civil Service—Tentative Summary
34. Problems Which Arise After Recruitment 846
Promotion—Efficiency and the Rating of Capacity—Classification—Training of Civil Servants—Discipline, Morale, Loyalty—Political Rights—Some Conclusions on Political Rights and Duties—The Right to Associate and the Right to Strike

[xi]

CONTENTS

35. Redress of Grievances and Guarantee of Rights in the Civil Service	905
Legislatures and Treasuries as Mediators—Representative Councils—The Guarantee of Rights
36. Legal Remedies Against Public Administration and Administrative Law	918
England—France—Germany—The United States
37. The Public and the Services	933
38. Concluding Observations	937
Vindication of Democracy—The Reconciliation of Values?—In What Sense Government Is Only "Second Best"—What Is Lost and Gained by Wholesale Government—Democracy and Economic Welfare—Democracy and Happiness—Of the Influence of Time on Government—The Democratic and the Dictatorial State
APPENDIX A	955
ADDENDA	959
INDEX	963