

১০৭০১

DAVID SELBOURNE

THROUGH THE INDIAN
LOOKING-GLASS

Contents

Author's Note	v
1 Paranoia and Paradox	1
2 The Corruption of a Nation	5
3 The Situation in India: Speech to Asian Workers at Birmingham Town Hall	8
4 Through the Indian Looking-glass	20
5 Asking Questions about India	34
6 Awaiting the Dawn: A Prose-Poem	38
7 On the Condition of the People	66
8 A Chorus of Sycophants: The Indian Press in an Attitude of Adoration	72
9 The Language of Deceit	76
10 On the Shah Commission	80
11 Men, Manners and Methods	84
12 Charlie Chaplin in Calcutta	89
13 Britain's Legacy Facing Trial	93
14 Portents in Indian Politics	97
15 Mrs Gandhi Rides Again	100
16 Racism and Hypocrisy	107
17 Beyond the Whisky Bottle	110
18 The Indian Rope-trick	113
19 The Chameleon in the Tree	116
20 On Charan Singh and Cleopatra	119
21 Letter to L'Unità	122
22 Images of India	125
23 Poems from West Bengal	128
24 On Mrs Gandhi's Visit to Britain	134
25 From Chikmagalur to Claridge's	137
26 The Naked and the Flood	140
27 State and Ideology in India	143
28 On Virginity-Testing and Related Matters	154
29 The CIA and the Congress	157

		161
30	East is East and West is West	164
31	Beneath the Surface	167
32	In Defence of India	171
33	The Big White Chief across the Waters: An Obituary	174
34	Once Bitten, Twice Shy?	178
35	India approaches the Hustings	182
36	Beyond the Mid-term Poll	186
37	The View from the Press Club	189
38	India on its Knees	194
39	The Route through Calcutta	199
40	As the Dust Settles	205
41	The Return of Mrs Gandhi	217
42	A Short Note on a Familiar Story	220
43	Going Nowhere, Backwards	223
44	The Tale of the Wicked Prince: A Fable
Appendix:
(a)	What India Would Rather Hide	229
(b)	In Defence of Mrs Gandhi's India (by Abu Abraham)	230
(c)	Interview with Janardan Thakur	233
(d)	Mrs Gandhi's Sorry Legacy	238