India is a country of great bygone monuments (Architectural gems of India) and the secret stories revolving around them. One such architectural gem is Jantar Mantar. The Jantar Mantar is an equinoctial sundial. Sundials are the oldest instruments to measure the time. There are several different types of sundials. Some sundials use a shadow or the edge of a shadow while others use a line or spot of light to indicate the time. The principles of sundials are understood most easily from the Sun's apparent motion.

Using the waste material present around you construct the most oriented form of time calculation and using the same principle throw light on some other project from the same model with a scientific approach in it.

Material required: A4 size coloured/white sheet, coloured sketch pens, decorative material (if required), evidence/data of the model based on same principle.
